First German Liner To New York

The Bayern Scheduled for Arrival There Today.

New York, Sept. 30.—Bayern, the first German passenger steamer to arrive in American waters since the war, is due here Saturday morning.

Mayor Hylan has appointed a committee to go down the harbor to welcome the Bayern officially. The arrival marks the opening of German passenger traffic by United American lines which, with the old Hamburg-American line, is headed by W. Averell Harriman and associates.

The Bayern was launched at Bremen, June 4, last, and is the first of three ships to be launched by the old Hamburg-American line, before consolidation with the Harriman line. The sister ships, Winterberg and Hansa, formerly Victoria, Louise are scheduled to arrive here within the next two months. On board the Bayern is Max Warmholz, dean of Old Hamburg-American line's directors.

Only one other German vessel, and this a freighter, has appeared in New York since the war. This was Sophie Rickmers, one of large fleet owned by the Rickmers Corporation.

Lapland Carried Distinguished Party

Colonel Walter L. Bill, who served as transportation officer for the 27th United States Division during the war, is on the Red Star liner Lapland, which left New York on Tuesday for Plymouth, Cherbourg and Antwerp.
