

actions and its example make a substantial contribution to the solution of these two problems -- a contribution much more substantial than its mere size and wealth would warrant. Here is a task worthy of Canada as it enters the second century of its existence.