On examining the contents of a bottle of Psychine, which I selected, I find it to contain no amount of the drug mentioned in the list of prohibited drugs of "Bill no 146" assented 20 th. July 1908, "An Act respecting Proprietary or Patent Medicines", or any other drug sufficient in quantity in dose as prescribed to be deleterious on internal administration.

The amount of alcohol present I do not consider more than sufficient as a solvent or preservative, and in the dose prescribed, namely, two teaspoonfuls or 20 minims, there is only about 1/3 of a drachm or 20 minims of Proof Spirit.

In addition I may state that among the drugs named in the prohibited list I wish particularly to draw attention to strychnine as being one that is not an ingredient of Psychine.
