Montreal, May 18, 1849.

IMPERIAL CONNEXION.

IMPERIAL CONNEXION.

THE permanent subjection of the Canadian Pruyinces to British rule has ceased to be the doctrine of any class of British Statesmen. The termination of Colonial dependence can only be delayed so long as, split up into hostile parties, and torn by internal dissensions, the people of Canada shall continue to weste their energies upon fraitics expedients and to neglect using the power, they inherently possess, of applying a herois remedy to their anitization for a common purpose will yet prove the salvation of Canada.

That common purpose is already openly named—already it warms the heart of the aspiring, cheers the timid, and assists in sinking into oblivion asperities of every kind, whether growing out of irrational political attachments, or differences of religion and race. In lact, the predicted day and hour are at hand. Independence is the inevitable solution of the convulsions which now distruct the Province a.

The desire for independence to no longer confined to a scattered tew; it has its most ardent votaris among the agricultural and laboring masses. External causes have aided in producing this healthy political feeling.

English Free-Trade is a death blow to the Colonial ternal causes have sided in producing this nearthy political feeling.

English Free-Trade is a death blow to the Colonial connexion. The Canadian is no stranger to the fluctuations and temporary stagnations of commerce; nor is he tempted to despair, when suffering from their effects. But under the altered commercial system of Great Britain, he loses all hope of future prosperity. London and Liverpool become foreign, and not friendly, ports; and he terns to New York and Boston as he natural outlets for the products of his industry.

New York and Boston as the natural outlets for the products of his industry.

The traveller who crosses the line which severs Canada from the United States is compelled to make painful comparisons. On the American side, he beholds well compensated industry, unceasing activity, untiring enterprise, liberty of action, and security of property from Government exactions. He leaves behird him camerce in decay, a country bereft of life, a desponding people, a corrupt government, and an aimiess social condition, embits red by foolish jealouses and strikes.

The opponents of self-government are staggered when they contemplate such results, and are constrained to admit, that where the soil, climate, and the people have so many features in common, the advancement of the one country, and the languor of the other, must proceed from the difference of their political institutions.

The centrusing industries to the American Citizen, is but too well established by comparative statistics of art, science, literature, and education. The Canadian Colonist to the American Citizen, is but too well established by comparative statistics of art, science, literature, and education, in but to well established by comparative statistics of art, science, literature, and education, and the estimation of the Metropolitan. The Roman prode in presence of the Provincial is renewed in his case. He commands in voice in the Imperial Legislation, even when it specially affects his own interests. Counigned to an obscurity nich atflets and checks subition, he drags out a moody valuable to British Statesmen, as affording facility for assailing a rival maritime power, and his out becomes the inevitable battle-field, whenever a contact is entired.

As year has succeeded year, the public mind in Canada has been gradually moulded by circumstances to the contemptation of a great revolution in their relations with the Parent. State 3 to many apparation has appeared to be the only admining the innumerable ambarransments, brought apon the country by the total abundanment on the part of England of her old Colonial policy 4—and excent agents have brought to maturity principles and grantings which were already germinating in the broats of a large majority of the people.

A Convention, elected by the masses, will assemble in August next. This Convention, called into aistence by the present critical state of affairs, will insugurate a movement, to terminate, it is hoped, in providing permanently for the passes and happiness of a distracted and suffering people.

The moment is deemed opportune for the establishment, in the City of Montreal, of a Journal orbic from the Imperial demission, and the institution of a lower the Imperial demission, and the institution of a lower the Imperial demission, and the institution of a lower the Imperial demission, and the institution of a lower the Imperial demission, and the institution of a lower the Imperial demission, and the institution of a lower than the contents.

OUR PARHICPARES GIRLS.—Mrs. Swint

ing matter-of-fact information in one of her admirable "letters, to country girls:"

"There are hundreds of girls in every large ciry who parade the streets in feathers, flowers, silks, and laces, whose hands are soft and white as use leastfeas can make them, whose mothers keep hoarders to get a living for their dughters. These mothers will cook, aweep, wait on the lables, carry loads of marketting, do the most menial drudgay, to liste and carly with very little more clothing than would be allowed to a Southern slave, while their hopeful daughters spend their mornings lounging in had, reading some ailly book, taking lessons in music and French, fixing fluery, and the likether evenings are devoted to dressing, displaying their charms and accomplishments to the best advantage, for the wonderment and admiration of knights of the yard-stick and young aspirents for professional honors— doctors without patients, lawyers without elients—who are as brainless and soulless as themselves. After a while the piano-counding simpleton captivake a tape-measuring, law-arpounding, or pill-making simpleton—The two ninnies spend every cent that can be reised by hook or crook—get all that can be got on credit in broudeloth, satin, flowers, face, carriage, attendance, &c.,—hang their empty pockets on sone-body's chair, lay their empty heads on some-body's capens—with no highes purpose than living genteelly and apitting at the neighbors. This is a cynopsis of the lives of stousands of street and ball-room belies, perhaps of some whose shining costume you have envied from a passing glance.

The approaching contest between the two great died to the attack which earnied of the Grand Duke Michael. His Imperial Highness, it is stated, presented himself to the Czar so soon as the order was also sued, remonstrated warmly, and declared that he would never submit to rise or to pay the required compliments. A hot Aisensaion is said to have ensued, which so much affected and irritated the Grand Duke, that he was attacked on parade in the manner known to all. Let us add another worder two of Warsaw gossp. It was stated in an earlier letter that the Emperor, who, during his residence at Warsaw, lodged and fed not only his own household and staff, but the foreign diplomatists, had mode propositions for lodging and iseding Gen. Lamorteiers, on a suite of apartments similar to those inhabited by the Austrian Minister; but, for motives which are best known to the Emperor himself, this mitention was changed, and Gen. Lamorteiers, on a striving, was informed that he must provide for himself and suite, which he did at the expense of 2,000 frances per month lodging, and 14 france per day for each as a suite, which he did at the expense of 2,000 frances per month lodging, and late the most favored from the first time in any Anglo-Saxon community, the convert? for himself, blick method which, in the approaching struggle, will decide the contest in favor of the party whose side they take.
