BLOOD POISON

If you ever contracted any blood disease you are never safe unless the virus or poison has been eradicated from the system. At times you see alarming symptoms, but live in hopes no serious results will follow. Have you any of the following symptoms? Sore Throat, Ulcers on the Tongue or in the Mouth, Hair Falling Out, Aching Pains, Itchiness of the Skin, Sore or Itchy on the Body, Eyes Red and Smart, Dyspeptic Stomach, Sexual Weakness—indications of the second stage. Don't trust to luck. Don't rely your system with the old foggy treatment, —mercury and potash—which only suppresses the symptoms for a time, only to break out again, when happy in domestic life. Don't let quacks experiment on you.
Our New Method Treatment is guaranteed to cure you. Our guarantees are backed by bank bonds, that the disease will never return. Thousands of patients have been already cured by our New Method Treatment for over twenty years. No experiment, no risk—no "catch-up," but a positive cure. The worst cases solicited. We treat and cure Nervous Debility, Sexual Weakness, Gleet, Blood Poison, Stricture, Varicocele, Kidney and Bladder Diseases, and all diseases peculiar to men and women.

CURES GUARANTEED.
Consultation Free. Books Free. If unable to call, write for question blank for home treatment.

SOME VIVID DREAMS.

WARNINGS AND VISIONS THAT HAVE COME DURING SLEEP.

Lady Andover's Dream and Her Husband's Tragic Death—The Hardcore Butler Who Was Scared Away.
The Young Woman in Gray Silk.

In "The Story of My Life," by Mr.
Augustus J. G. Hare, are told the following dream stories. When staying at Reverend castle in November, 1870, General Stanhope, talking of dreams, said:

"Lady Andover, who was the daughter of Lord Leicester, was with her husband at Holkham, and when one day all the other men were going out shooting, she pitiously implored him not to go, saying that she had dreamed vividly that he would be shot if he went out. She was so terribly eager about it that she acceded to her wishes and remained with her in the painting room, for she painted beautifully in oils, and was copying a picture of the 'Misers' which was at Holkham.
But the afternoon was excessively beautiful, and Lady Andover's strong impression, which had been so vivid in the morning, then seemed to wear off, till at last she said: 'Well, really, perhaps I have been selfish in keeping you from what you like so much because of my own impressions; so now, if you care about going out, don't let me keep you in any longer.' And he said: 'Well, if you don't mind, I should certainly like to go,' and he went. He had not been gone long before Lady And-over's impressions returned just as virlally as ever, and she rushed up stairs and put on her bonnet and pursued him. But as she crossed the park, she met her husband's own servant riding furiously without his coat. 'Don't tell me,' she said at once, 'I know what has happened,' and she went back and looked herself into her room. His servant was handing him a gun through a hedge, it went off, and he was killed upon the spot.

While in Rome in 1870 Mr. Hare heard the following dream story:

Lady Vernon dreamed that she saw the butler, with a knife in one hand and a candle in the other, crossing the entrance hall, and she awoke with a great start.
After while she composed herself to sleep again, and she dreamed—she dreamed that she saw the butler, with a knife in one hand and a candle in the other, on the middle of the staircase, and she awoke with a great shock. She got up; she thought she could not be quite well, and she took a little salt volatile. At last she fell asleep again, and she dreamed—she dreamed that she saw the butler, with a knife in one hand and a candle in the other, standing at her bedroom door, and she awoke in a great terror, and she jumped out of bed, and she said, 'I'll have an end of this; I'll have an end of these foolish imaginations,' and she rushed to the door, and she threw the door wide open. And there at the door stood the butler with a knife in one hand and a candle in the other. And when he suddenly saw Lady Vernon in her white nightdress, with her hair streaming down her back, he was so dreadfully frightened that he dropped the candle on the floor and rushed off down the staircase and off to the stable, where there was a horse ready saddled and bridled, on which he meant to have ridden away when he had murdered Lady Vernon. And he rode away without ever having murdered her at all, and he was never, never, never heard of again.

Lord Deleigh sent the following story to Mr. Hare of a supernatural vision which he had heard from Henry Malet in 1869: In the winter of 1854-55 Malet was in Paris and saw a good deal of Palgrave Simpson, the dramatic author.
One evening after a dinner Simpson expressed himself a believer in clairvoyance.
A few days afterwards Malet received a letter from Simpson in which he invited him to return to London and hold himself in readiness to embark for the Crimea with his regiment. On the night before his departure for Malta he received a note from Simpson including an antique ring. The note said: 'Do not laugh at me, but while you are in the Crimea wear the inclosed ring. It was given to me by the last representative of an old Hungarian family on her deathbed. In her family it was a heirloom and considered as a most precious talisman to preserve the wearer from any external harm.' Malet slipped the ring on his finger without attaching any great importance to the matter and the next morning sailed from Portsmouth. We will let him tell the remainder of the story.

"We touched at Gibraltar, but it was not till our arrival at Malta that I heard from my family. Then I found a letter from my mother dated from Frankfurt on the very day of our sailing from England.
It said: 'I have been quite broken hearted about you, and could find no comfort anywhere, but now all is changed, for a most extraordinary reason. This morning as I lay in bed in broad daylight and after my maid had brought my hot water, just as I was about to get up, a most beautiful young lady, very fair and dressed in gray silk, drew aside the curtain of my bed and leaped over me and said: 'Do not be unhappy about your son; no harm shall happen to him.' I am quite certain I have had a vision, yet it seemed as if I were awake; certainly I was so the moment before this happened. The whole thing is as distinct as possible and as unlike an effect of imagination. Of course, I cannot account for it, but it has made me quite happy, and I know you will come back safe.' On receipt of this letter I betought me of the ring, and begged my mother in reply to describe minutely the appearance of the mysterious visitor.
My mother said it was a young woman about 27 years of age, rather past the very straight features, large gray eyes and an abundance of brown hair worn in rather an old fashioned manner. The sleeves of the gray silk dress were what we call 'bishop sleeves.' I sent copies of my mother's letter to Palgrave Simpson, and he answered me that the description was in the minutest particular the counterpart of the lady who on her deathbed had given him the ring, some 16 or 17 years before. It is to be observed that no communication whatever passed between me and my mother between the receipt of the ring and my arrival at Malta, and I will swear that I told no one the

Sugar Water.
Eau sucree is said to dispel thirst more effectually than any other drink, and it is simplicity itself. Put three large lumps of sugar in a tumbler with a tablespoonful of water and allow the sugar to dissolve, then fill up with more cold water.
The French say that the perfection of this drink consists in letting the sugar first melt slowly in a small quantity of water.

A BATH IN FINLAND.

Steaming, Switching and a Roll in the Snow Are the Processes.

A primitive sort of Turkish bath is indulged in by some of the Finlanders of northern Norway. In winter in this part of the country the thermometer averages 40 degrees below zero, and water bathing is not practicable.
These Finlanders, unlike the Lapps farther north, have an instinct for bodily cleanliness and manage to preserve it after the following fashion. Paul da Challu, who spoke from personal experience, declared the method fine. Each bath has a bathhouse for common use.
It is perhaps 15 feet long by 12 wide. It boasts no windows, and only when the door is opened can air or light enter. In the middle of the interior is an oval-like structure of bowlders piled one upon the other.

Rows of seats constructed of the branches of trees along the sides of the wall convey no other furnishing.
Bathing day comes once a week—Saturday. Early in the morning of that day wood is brought and a fire started.
When the stones become hot the fire is put out, the place cleaned, a large vessel of water and some slender birch twigs brought in and the preparations declared complete.

As no dressing room is provided toilet are unmade and made in the various homes. It is scarcely necessary to add that no time is lost in the progress from the home to the bathhouse. No clothes, and a temperature of 40 degrees below zero are incentives to haste.

When all the boys and men are in the bathhouse and the door closed, water is thrown upon the hot stones until the place is filled with steam. Perspiration pours from the sweating bodies, yet more active exercise is demanded, and switches come into play. Each bather lays on his neighbor with a will until "Enough" is cried.

Again water is thrown upon the stones, more steam raised and another switching indulged in.
As may be imagined, the bodies are now as red as boiled lobsters and the blood circulating actively.

A roll in the snow completes this novel bath.

GOOD BOOKS.

Good books, like good friends, are few and chosen—the more select the more enjoyable.—A. Bronson Alcott.

A good book is the precious lifeblood of a master spirit, embalmed and treasured up for purpose, to a life beyond life.
—John Milton.

Books, like proverbs, receive their chief value from the stamp and esteem of ages through which they have passed.
—Sir William Temple.

Of all the things which man can do to make here below, by far the most momentous, wonderful and worthy are the things we call books.—Thomas Carlyle.

Knowledge of books in a man of business is the wealth of the Indies. The minute and able to show those who are bewildered the way which leads to prosperity and welfare.—Joseph Addison.

A taste for books is a most precious possession. The wealth of the Indies is the wealth of a man of letters. The minute of a man of letters is never known to a man whose hours are insufficient for the inexhaustible pleasure of study.—Gibbon.

Except a living man, there is nothing more wonderful than a book, a message to us from the dead, from human souls whom we never saw, who lived perhaps thousands of miles away, and yet these, on those little sheets of paper, speak to us, amuse us, vivify us, teach us, comfort us, open their hearts to us as brothers.
—Charles Kingsley.

Above all, there is this value in books—that they enable us to converse with the dead. There is something in this beyond the mere intrinsic worth of what they have left us. When a person's body is mouldering, cold and insensible, the spirit is still alive, and the soul is still willing and able to show those who are
perity and welfare.—Joseph Addison.

Books, it is true, are silent as you see them on their shelves; but, silent as they are, when you enter a library I feel as if almost the dead were present, and I know that if I put questions to these books they will answer me with all the faithfulness and fullness with which a book can do so by the great men who left the books with us.

The Ear and the Thumb.
There is a whole world of self-education in the apex of the ear. If it lies close to the head, the owner possesses a refined nature, but if the top starts away from the head at a well defined angle that person has an uneven disposition and is not to be relied upon. If a girl's thumb lies flat or droops a little, marital submission to the master mind is indicated. If the thumb has a tendency to stand up at a right angle to the hand, the damsel owning it is headstrong.

A person of weak character has a pendent thumb. The strong character has a strong, erect thumb. Fingers which bend back mean powerful determination. If they are round, strength, both physical and mental, is indicated.
Stubby fingers are grasping fingers. Fingers that are rounded show refinement; if long and rather square at the top firmness and energy are denoted.

Kinship Names.
Katie, the romping 6-year-old, came dancing and singing into the parlor.
Then, seeing a stranger caller, she stopped, abashed. "A little daughter," said her mother. "Katie, this is Mrs. Baggs."
"How do you do, Mrs. Baggs?" said Katie, anxious to remove any unfavorable impression the visitor might have formed. "I show a little girl at school named S--- Is she any relation of yours?"

The Canadian Seacoast.
The eastern Canadian seacoast, from the bay of Fundy to the strait of Belle Isle, covers a distance of 5,000 miles, and British Columbia, with its multitude of bays and mountainous islands, has a sea-coast of 7,180 miles and a salt water inshore area, not including minor indentations, of 1,500 square miles.

Not Positive.
"I want a positive answer, Miss Jones.
Will you marry me?"
"No."
"That's hardly fair. I asked for a positive answer, and you have given me a negative."

A Great Physician's Favorite Prescription

A New and Different Remedy That Has Revolutionized the Method of Treating Nervous Diseases and Effected a Multitude of Marvellous Cures.

The discovery of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food produced a wonderful sensation among medical men, because it introduced an entirely new method of treatment and proved its superiority by curing scores of hundreds of sufferers from nervous diseases prostration and exhaustion. Morning Languor, trembling, aching limbs, unsteady hand, jerking muscles, sleeplessness, frequent headaches, heart palpitations, failing memory, clouded brain and depressed, gloomy spirits tell of approaching nervous collapse. These symptoms warn you to turn at once to the greatest treatment for nervous ailments—Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

AN EDITOR'S OPINION

Mr. A. R. Fawcett, the well-known editor and proprietor of The Leader and Recorder, Toronto Junction, writes: "It is very seldom that I find medicine of any description, but this spring if got so badly run down and out of sorts generally that I became somewhat alarmed. Chancing to read testimonials about the results derived from Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, from a gentleman whose case seemed to be identical with my own, I purchased a box and commenced using it."

"The result was simply marvellous.
I was benefited from the first, and soon restored to my usual good health.
I never felt better in my life than I do now. To tell the simple truth, I did not have very great faith in any medicine until I used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, but now I have no hesitation in strongly recommending this great remedy to others, as a valuable and effective remedy."

So long as the laws of nature remain unchanged, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food cannot fail to benefit the health of anyone who uses it, for it contains in condensed form the very essence of the most powerful blood-creating and nerve-restoring elements to be found in all nature's realm. It naturally and gradually forms new, firm flesh and healthy tissues, and through the medium of the circulation and the nervous system reaches and revitalizes every organ in the human system. A few weeks' treatment will convince you of the extraordinary power of this famous food cure to put new vim and energy into the body and increase flesh and weight. 50c a box, 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co.,

THE BRIDEGROOM WAS LATE.

Why He Arrived Tumbled and Covered With Cobwebs.

"One of the most embarrassing situations I ever saw," remarked a gentleman at one of the hotels, "was at a big wedding celebration at one of the large churches in a southern city several years ago. It was the event, socially, of the season, and the church was filled with bellies and beaus. The bride and bridegroom were among the most popular of the social set. The young lady was the very essence of grace in all things. But the man who had won her was one of the most awkward specimens of humanity I had ever seen. He was simply built that way. He looked it. He walked more like a camel than any human being I have ever seen. He was the kind of fellow, too, who was always blundering except in business. In business he was as keen as they made them, and among the older men in the commercial community he was held up as a splendid example of the young manhood of the time.

"But, getting back to the wedding, after whispering folk who generally look after such things had arranged for the affair in the most popular church of the city, and in spite of his protests they had made it a trifle more elaborate than he had even expected. They had arranged for the bride and the bridegroom to approach the altar from the front part of the church, and 7:30 was the time exactly when the meeting between bride and bridegroom should take place at the altar.

"The bridegroom was to come from the back of the church. The organ thundered forth the usual strains, and the pretty bride walked down the aisle toward the altar with the attendants. They reached the altar. It was 7:30 p. m., on the last tick of the half hour. The bridegroom was not there. All eyes turned to the door through which he was to enter. But it never opened, and the seconds seemed to lengthen into centuries. It was awful.
The bride's face flushed, and she was rapidly weakening under the trying wait.
"Five minutes nearly had passed, when the door was flung open and the embarrassed bridegroom entered. His face, too, was flushed, his hair was tousled and disarranged, his gloves and shirt front were soiled, and, in fact, he was literally covered with cobwebs and dust. But he had the smile of victory on his face when he broke through the door, and everybody seemed to be almost in a humor to forgive him.

"After the ceremony he explained why it was that he did not arrive on time.
The yard behind the church was not well lighted. A big organ box had been placed up close to the church, and it was one of the boxes with a folding door that swung on hinges. In his excitement and hurry he had opened this door and had walked into the organ box, and before he could get his bearings he had managed to undo all the little tidy arrangements he had made for the occasion, and this accounted for the dust and the cobwebs which clung to his hair and clothing when he rushed into the church.

Kidneys and Bladder

Don't neglect these most important organs of the body, as you will regret it. Have you pain in the back, a dull feeling in the region of the kidneys? At times your water comes freely, a large quantity, light in color, with no peculiar sensations, while at other times you do not make liquid so freely, it is dark in color, you make a small quantity, and a sort of burning sensation? If such is the case give your kidneys immediate treatment and more serious conditions will result. Our Latest Method Treatment guaranteed as a positive cure for such conditions, and remember WE CURE YOU OR NO PAY.

If you have this awful disease you are in danger until completely cured; this various symptoms you notice should be a warning to take immediate treatment. Don't put off until too late, as it continually gets worse. If you have sore throat, patches on tongue, mouth, swollen glands, hair falling out, blotches on body, itching skin or other signs of this awful disease call on us. We give you a written guarantee to cure you by our
