You ask me why I always insist on be-ing my own lawyer, and why I have a general repugnance for lawyers. It is just this: The mass of mankind are helpless when they get mixed up in a lawsuit, and the lawyer, knowing this, takes advantage of the circumstances, and the laws, too, are admirably adopted to aid the lawyer in preying upon the rest of mankind. When an estate is to be partitioned the law gives the lawyer his percentage, sometimes a very large sum,
