The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

Well may we say our infelicity is of ourselves; since there is nothing we do that we should not do, but we know it and yet do it.

—William Penn.

"It is horrid, I know, but I can't help it," philosophically remarked my quick-tempered friend after one of her outbursts had spent itself. "It's just my disposition to go off the handle and say what I mean and a good deal more."

That's the kind of philosophy that keeps the world from getting better any faster than it does—the philosophy of "I can't help it." It's just my disposition.

It is almost a universal philosophy. Everybody says it once in a while and some people say it continually.

If you think that's exaggerated, watch for it. Ten to one, you will hear that or its substance half a dozen times in the next few days. And the same odds that you will be one of the offenders.

Hardly an hour after I had decided to write about the prevalence of the habit I actually caught myself answering, when I was accused of worrying unduly over something, "I can't help it. I've always been frightened to death of typhoid."

"I can't help feeling that way. I've always been terribly jealous."

"I can't help being so nervous when I'm in a boat. I've always been afraid of the water. I think it was born in me."

"I can't help sitting up late. I know it isn't good for me, but I do so hate to go to bed."

"I can't help losing my temper with him. He is so exasperating."

These are a few of the "I can't help it's" that I have gathered in the last two or three days since I have been specifically watching for them.

And not one of the people who said it seemed to be in the least ashamed of himself or to realize that he was using a word which ought not to be allowed to exist.

That's the worst about the "I can't help it" people. They are so complacent. They seem to feel that that settles the matter in a very simple and comfortable way.

Some of them seem to be rather proud of it. "I can't help it. I'm made that way," they announce as complacently as if they felt that, by becoming part of them, the fault of weakness was transformed thereby into something rather nice.

As a matter of fact it seems to me that the admission "I can't help it" is a much greater weakness than the fault you admit.

Honest acknowledgement of a fault is splendid—as a beginning. To recognize your imperfections, it has been said, is half their cure. The grain of salt to take with that epigram is, "if with the recognition comes the intention and expectation of curing them."

"I can't help it" is the white feather shown by that which should be the proudest part of man—his will power.

Strong Healthy Women

If a woman is strong and healthy in a womanly way, motherhood means to her but little suffering. The trouble lies in the fact that the many women suffer from weakness and disease of the distinctly feminine organism and are unfitted for motherhood. This can be remedied.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Cures the weaknesses and disorders of women. It acts directly on the delicate and important organs concerned in motherhood, making them healthy, strong, vigorous, virile and elastic.

"Favorite Prescription" banishes the indispositions of the period of expectancy and makes baby's advent easy and almost painless. It quickens and vitalizes the feminine organs, and insures a healthy and robust baby. Thousands of women have testified to its marvelous merits.

It makes Weak Women Strong. It makes Sick Women Well.

Honest druggists do not offer substitutes, and urge them upon you as "just as good." Accept no secret nostrum in place of this non-secret remedy. It contains not a drop of alcohol and not a grain of habit-forming or injurious drugs. Is a pure glyceric extract of healing, native-American roots.

Fads and Fashions.

Curls are to form an important part of one's coiffure this coming winter. The hair will be coiled flat on the crown of the head, the curls being disposed artistically in the centre of the coil.

Early showings of fabrics for suits are mostly tweed and serge, in mixed colorings. Velvets will be extremely fashionable for winter wear, in dark colors, with a fine stripe of another hue.

Elaborate little boleros of embroidery transform a simple gown into attractiveness. They look wonderfully smart, too, over a last season's dress, and they are particularly pretty over dresses of soft net.

Broken lace and white checks in those open weave are chosen for some of the long coats, but are slightly conspicuous for general street wear though admirable for driving, motor-ing and travelling.

Satin for several months has been advancing to a leading place in fashion and with the coming of cool weather is it doubly prominent. It is used for dresses and in combination with veiling fabrics and Persian silks.

Heavy rope cords are used as a finish to the dressy capes, whether of broadcloth or heavy satin. An attractive model in this style of wrap has a square yoke effect in the back quite suggestive of the collegian gown.

Belts of suede, studded with steel or gilt nail heads, placed in more or less elaborate designs, are among the novelties. They are fastened with buckles of the same metal as the nail heads. An oblong buckle is the favorite shape.

Many new waist models are worked out in chiffon, either of the plain variety, mounted over underbodies of printed satin in Persian designs, or made over plain colored satins and finished with white lace yoke and sleeves.

Striped and checked materials are very popular just now, and they make very charming tailor-made suits. The stripes or checks are either close or widely separated, and in some cases they are used in combination with plain material.

Rather effective and equally unusual is the gown of two-toned silk veiled with chiffon or other shimmering material. The combination is intensified if the underdress is itself trimmed with handwork or done in the Persian colors of metallic threads.

The beauty of the wall silks indicate that they will have greater vogue than ever. Satin liberty, messaline, satin crepe and crepe de Chine are foremost because of their substantial quality and the artistic effects that are wrought by their supple texture.

Scant fullness characterizes the skirts of afternoon gowns when they are made of soft thin materials, such as crepe de Chine, messaline and similar fabrics. When they have slight gathers at the waistline they are very carefully arranged so that no thickness of the figure results.

Jerseys of every description are the order of the day, and some of the coats are the smartest and most charming things; armed with these, light-weight suits are quite practical. A knitted cap "to match" completes a useful and yet becoming outfit. Gray, white or blue are first choices.

Rough surfaced cloth is very strong white or blue are first choices.

scen, not only in the wide diagonals with which we are familiar, but in the newer mannish suitings that have a mixture and mingling of heavy and light threads, and several colors which are blended into a harmonious general tone.

Scarfs grow in favor. For day wear with tailor costumes the supple satin scarf is worn. For afternoon dress the scarf of mousseline de sole or voile. For receptions the large Empire scarf makes a pretty accompaniment, and for evening wear luminous scarfs of bright tones contrasting with the costume are worn.

Picnic at Upper Gullies

On Friday evening, September 9th, the annual Sunday School Picnic was held at this place, aided by the Sunday School teachers, and headed by Mr. R. Bailey, Superintendent. On Thursday evening preparations were made at Mrs. Charles Dawe's field; amp built and all things useful to make the event successful were got ready. Friday morning came; the day was fine and all that could be desired. The flags were hoist, which hewed to the children's delight, that he event was to take place. At 10 o'clock the children gathered in the school room from where they marched in procession to the church; the boys bearing flags and banners; the girls flowers. A short service was held. Peter's Church by the Incumbent, Rev. E. K. H. Caldwell, who gave them a brief address on "Sabbath-Keeping," which the children paid deep attention. Immediately after the service the children paraded to the selected field where an enjoyable evening was spent by all. Many interesting competitions took place, for which the children received many and useful prizes; after which the children were gathered and tea served. After eating a hearty meal they spent the remainder of the evening in various games. In the meantime tea was served by the teachers to the older folk, and all who entered the field did not leave until having a part of the refreshments. This was kept up until the sun disappeared and darkness made its appearance. The children then made their way to their homes very tired and quite satisfied after their day's sport. The L. O. A. gave a dance in their hall to the young men and women, and thus ended the picnic for this season.

Another Schooner Wrecked at Cranberry Head.

Through an error of judgment the little schooner Nyanza, owned by three brothers named Buffett, of Rose Blanche, Nfld., and commanded by one of them is a total wreck at Big Pond, quite near the place where the steamer Beatrice went ashore a couple of years ago. The Nyanza was loaded with a cargo of twenty-five tons of coal from the Mackay mine, and was bound from the home port. About midnight Monday when rounding Cranberry Head the captain mistook the land, and the little craft was soon high and dry. The Douglas H. Thomas took a pull at her last night, but only succeeded in pulling out her stern post. The loss will be complete, there being no insurance on either vessel or cargo. The schooner was recently purchased by the Buffetts for $1,000.—Sydney Herald, Sept. 7.

Did Not Know Sister After 25 Years.

Brockton, Aug. 31. — For the first time in 25 years Mrs. George Oliver, of St. John's, Newfoundland, has met her sister, Mrs. Edward Farrell, at the home of the latter, 25 Banks St. So long had the sisters been apart that Mrs. Farrell failed to recognize her sister, and the recognition was only brought about when little 14-year-old Katherine Farrell, the namesake of Mrs. Oliver, remarked to her mother, "Mamma, this must be my aunt, she looks so much like you."

Fire Alarm on Saturday Night.

At 9.28 Saturday night an alarm of fire was turned in from box 226, brining the Central and Western firemen to the residence of Mr. Jno. Noseworthy, Carter's Hill. A swinging lamp lit in the hallway of the house exploded, but before the burning oil scattered and any damage could result the two girls in the house threw water over it and smothered the flames with mats. No damage was done and the "fire out" signal rang at 9.30.

TRAP FISHING STILL.

At Grate's Cove Mr. Norris has up to date 1,300 qts. fish for one trap, and fully 40 qts. out of this he gave away to people who assisted him to land his fish. He is trying an experiment in trap fishing this year and still has his twine in the water, taking from 15 to 20 qts. daily, which is splendid work. He intends trapping until October as a matter of experiment, and up to the present is highly pleased with the results obtained. Mr. Broderick has 600 qts. landed to date for his trap and hook and line boats. In August he had two fine hauls, one of 120 qts. and another of 80 qts., a surprising catch for a trap at such an advanced season. All the boats are doing well yet.
