Strikes Derelict, SINKS IMMEDIATELY.

One Fisherman Drowned—Seven Missing—Thirteen Saved—Accident Occurs to French Schooner "St. Pierre" During Gale Yesterday Off West Coast of Miquelon—What Can the Derelict Be?

Another marine tragedy which possibly may have resulted in the drowning of eight fishermen, occurred yesterday west of Miquelon. It is certain that one man has been drowned, and the fact that the other seven have not yet turned up is sufficient cause for great anxiety about their safety. The seven are evidently the portion of the crew that left the tanker in one dory after the collision. The full crew appears to have been 21 men and it is probable that they got away in three dories, seven in each. We judge from the despatch that two of the dories reached St. Pierre safely this morning, having been rowing all night. There was a strong breeze of north and northwest wind blowing the past 24 hours, and the missing dory may have been swamped. It will be seen from the headline that the French tanker struck the derelict yesterday, presumably in broad daylight, a fact which indicates that the wreck must have been well submerged, otherwise the look-out would have seen it. The wind was blowing on the Miquelon shore yesterday a strong gale from the N.W., and as the St. Pierre sank so quickly, it is likely that she struck the wreck head on, allowing the crew barely time to launch the dories and jump into them when she went down in a hurry and scurry of doing this.

Nutritive Hypophosphites.

When a person feels "blue"—all tired out—"doesn't feel like doing anything"—cannot concentrate his mind on his work—feels weak mentally and physically—doubts his powers—complains of poor appetite and sleeplessness—suffers from headaches—then his nervous system is run-down and demands a good up-building tonic. Nervous exhaustion is a modern disease, caused by too close attention to business, overwork, worry, devotion to family cares, overstudy, etc.

Nutritive Hypophosphites forms the best nerve and brain food known, and have restored thousands of sufferers to health.

doubt the man referred to fell overboard and was drowned, or possibly he may have been sick in the bunk and would not have time to get on deck. Our despatch published yesterday referred to a large quantity of floating debris having been seen by a vessel that had arrived at Lamaline. The word "Empire" was stencilled on some of the plank. It is possible that those debris may have come from the derelict that sank the French tanker. If the derelict was floating bottom up it would be no easy matter to discern it, even in the daytime. In the heavy fog that was caused by the gale of N.W. wind that blew there yesterday.

The information given above was received from our correspondent at St. Pierre this afternoon.

Women Wearing Monocles.

London's Smart Set Adopt One Similar to Lorgnettes.

London, Oct. 4.—Rumor has it that the monocle is to be the real smart thing this winter for the women of fashion. This single glass is to be mounted on a long handle, much after the fashion of lorgnettes. The effect, it is held, will be to emphasize the fact that any human target which comes within range is under a stare of maximum impertinence. There are a number of prominent London women, including Lady Doreen Long and the Hon. Mrs. Brassey, who have worn monocles for years, but these have been of the kind that caught under the lid of the eye. The projected type will be as deadly as a range-finder to a garting gun.

Such is Salesmanship.

"It makes you look small," said the saleslady to the elephantine woman, who was trying on a hat.

"Sold!"

"It makes you look plump," she said to the cold, attenuated damsel.

"Sold!"

"It makes you look young," she said to the fair fat, and forty lady.

"Sold!"

"It makes you look older," she said to the slate-and-suns miss.

"Sold!"

"It makes you look short," she said to the lamp-post lady.

"Sold!"

"It brings out your color," she said to the feminine ghost.

"Sold!"

"And, of course, all the hats were exactly alike."

A Land of Flowers.

Switzerland is a land of flowers, and its thrifty inhabitants have made the blossoms very largely contributory to the food supply. The Philadelphia Record says that, according to statistics gathered by the Swiss Society of Agriculturists, there are 250,000 hives or colonies of bees in the country, each of which produces forty pounds of honey during the season, a total of 10,000,000 pounds a year. The average price of Swiss honey for the year 1909 was 25 cents a pound, giving the year's product a total value of $2,500,000. As the flowers grow without cultivation, and the bees work without wage other than caretaking, producing their food supply, the honey crop is in great part clear profit. The Swiss honey is of very delicate flavor and fine quality.
