Hensall, who has done some very credit able riding this season, was out of condition. He has been sick in bed since the Toronto Bicycle Club's races three the Toronto Bicycle Club's races throe weeks ago and had not consequently been able to do any training. Those who were present to witness the prowess of the Queen City's road race scalp-raiser, however, were not cognizant of these circumstances, and the disappointment which they felt was obvious. Hensall's robust physique called forth audible comments from the admirers of Herculean beauty. He is, in fact, a typical instance of well-developed manhood, and has an easy mode of propulsion.

Deeks, of Toronto, did the best riding. He secured first place in both the half-mile dash and the one mile open. His time in the former was the best made during the afternoon-115 2-5, while that in the latter reminded onlookers of the hare and the tortoise fable. Deeks is a tolerably fast man when there is none who can beat him on the track, but it is exceedingly improbable that he will ever reach the front rank. McCartby, of Stratford, who, together with Hensall, he defeated in the two events mentioned, was not in his usual form. The entioned, was not in his usual form.
