LOCAL MARKET.

London, Saturday, July 4. Considering the threatening appearance of the weather in the early part of the morning, and the rain which followed, there was a large attendance at the market. The bulk of the offerings consisted of the smaller lines of produce and garden truck. The feature of the market was the large supply of new potatoes, a majority of the rigs on the square having their quota on sale. As intimated in a former issue, prices took a drop, the result of the large offerings and the very favorable condition of the

No Substitute For "Hello."

In one of the June publications an inquirer asks if there is no other mode of address than "Hello" that may be employed in telephoning. She is told gently but firmly that she will do well to keep to "Hello." But the inquirer's disappointment may be imagined, says in exchange. Doubtless she never says "Hello" except through the telephone; never, save over the wire, is addressed with "Hello." And the grievance is that find them right in every particular.
