> Special Machine for Ice Work Maken Dog Train Unnecessary.

London, Oct. 28-Lieut, Shackelton's preparation for a motor trip to the South Pole have been completed. He British Antarctic expedition. The motor is made of specially prepared steel which is supposed to be able to resist exposure. It has two sets of wheels, one of the ordinary pattern and the other of wood. The front pair is of wood and s to be used to travel over snow on wooden runners shaped like skis. The driving wheels are fitted with steel blocks, into which steel spikes can be inserted when stretches of ice and free snow are encountered. A box placed on the side of the car has a pipe which is warmed from exhaust gases to melt snow for cooking and drinking. Footwarmers are heated in the same way. The car will run only about twenty-fire miles a day, but will carry enough petrol for 3,000 miles. Dogs will not be necessary, and the elimination of carrying provender for them will give plenty of room for storage. The motor has two seats and is only protected by a gabardine and a wind screen against the temperature.
