These guards are similar to the 7th, 1th, 2nd, and 1st of the Infantry Sword Everfrus, pass the right case, the numbers being reversed. The bott to the front, and less is high, the 2nd low, (as in 7th and 4th thange position, and 1st is high, the 2nd low, (as in 7th and 4th analyte to the Left guards), with point of bayonet downwards. The 3rd and 4th to the right and left, with point upwards, as in 1st and 2nd guards,

At command Change with reference to right engage only, but are negative to restaurant the state of the state ide to the rear, and are equally applicable to left engage; the difference being the hand, foot, and position reversed.

FIRST GUARD.

Raise the right hand a little higher than the head, and in front of the right shoulder; sling of musque: upwards; left hand opposite and as high as left cheek; bayonet pointing downwards to the left. This guard defends the head and left shoulder, being similar to 7th, or hanging guard; but by lowering the musquet, will also defend the whole of the left side and leg, according as the attack is made.

SECOND GUARD.

Raise the right hand, with sling of musquet outwards, as high as the shoulder to the right; left hand in front towards the right; point of bayonet diagonally downwards, rather inclining to the left. This guard defends the right side, and also the leg, being similar to the 4th guard of the sword exercise.

THIRD GUARD.

POURTH GUARD.

Musquet pointing upwards to left side of head; right hand in front of right hip; left hand in front of left breast; elbows close. This guard protects the head, neck, and left shoulder, corresponding to the 1st guard of the sword exercise.

Note -It must be born in mind that a return right leg a short step; thrust with the favourt should always be made at the same moment after forming a guard, whenever an opportunity frawthepiece and left offers, whether the sing of the musice is up or leg hack to Engage down, without turning the harrel; the straight line being always the shortest and quickest.
