The proposal was cordially received, with cheers, and it was resolved to communicate the address to the House of Commons...

Lord John Russell appeared at the bar of the House of Commons, and stated that the Lords desired the concurrence of the House...

The Colonial Gazette says: The culprit was immediately secured; and although at first it was generally assumed that he intended to kill the Queen...

THE MURDER OF LORD Wm. RUSSELL.—The Globe on Thursday published a confession made by Courvoisier, and sent to the Home Office from Newgate on Tuesday.

"After I had warmed his Lordship's bed, I went down stairs and waited about an hour, during which time I placed the different articles as they were found by the police."

"Francis Benjamin Courvoisier. Prison of Newgate, 23d June, 1840. This declaration was made before me, this 23d June, 1840."

An account of a conversation between Sheriff Evans, and the prisoner, is also given in the Morning Chronicle as follows:— "In the conversation which Sheriff Evans had on the day this declaration was made, and which lasted for an hour, the murderer assured the Sheriff that there was no truth in the statement that Lord William Russell had gone down stairs, and after charging him with dishonesty, threatened to discharge him on the next day without a character."

The Sheriff having expressed some surprise at the variance between the two accounts, the murderer said that his uncle had entreated him most solemnly to tell the facts exactly as they occurred; and he determined to state nothing but what was actually correct.

"The Sheriff questioned him a good deal upon the acknowledgment that he had so long contemplated the murder as well as the robbery; and he persisted in stating that the murder was premeditated, and not, as had been previously stated, the suggestion of despair at losing his character."

"Upon being asked by the Sheriff whether he had committed any other atrocities, he replied that he had merely stolen two books belonging to Mr. Fector, when in that gentleman's service."

"I am most anxious," said the Sheriff, "to know whether there is any foundation in the report which has got abroad that you had something to do with the death of Eliza Grimwood, who was murdered near the Waterloo Road. Have you any thing to say upon that subject?"

"Courvoisier assured the Sheriff that he knew nothing in the world about that or any other murder, except the murder of Lord William Russell. He knew, he said, that he must die, and if he had committed any other dreadful offence, he would not hesitate to mention the fact to the Sheriff."

He has told so many palpable lies since his conviction, that not the slightest reliance can be placed on any thing he states.—Courier.

On being taken to the condemned cell on Saturday night, after the jury had delivered their verdict, the culprit appeared to be sullen, and endeavoured to choke himself by cramming a towel down his throat, but his object was frustrated by the vigilance of the officer in whose charge he remained.

He is doomed to die on Monday week, and may we never again have to record an event so deeply stamped with guilt, as the murder of Lord William Russell.

The Queen and Prince Albert are taking advantage of every fine day to obtain fresher air than circulates in the rather damp and swampy neighbourhood of the Picnic Palace. On Saturday they delighted with their presence the old pensioners of Greenwich Hospital. In a few days they go to Claremont; soon after to Brighton; and thence to Windsor Castle. In the course of the summer or autumn, the royal pair intend to visit the Marquis of Westminster, at his superb palace near Chester.

Since the Earl of Durham has arrived at Cowes his health has been gradually improving, and he is beyond all question decidedly better.

An address with 300 signatures of persons of different politics resident in Birmingham was presented to Mr. Villiers, to thank him for his exertions in the cause of Corn-law repeal.

On Wednesday, the annual meeting of the British and Foreign Anti-Slavery Society was held in Exeter Hall. The Duke of Sussex was in the chair, surrounded by several Members of Parliament. Mr. O'Connell's speech occupied nearly three columns of the Morning Chronicle, and consisted chiefly of a defence of his conduct in refusing to fight a duel with Mr. Stevenson, the American Ambassador. God had forbidden it, and he refused to obey him; and of proofs extracted in the form of advertisements from American papers, that he had not libelled Mr. Stevenson's countrymen when he charged them with being dealers in and breeders of slaves. He denounced the whole body of slave owners.

By the Governor Maclean, Morley, in the London Docks, from Cape Coast Castle and Sierra-Leone, a very fine young lioness has arrived, sent from Coomassie as a present to her Majesty, from the King of the Ashantees; which the Queen has directed to be added to the splendid collection of animals in the Regent's Park Zoological Gardens.

To give any thing like a correct picture of the depressed state of trade in Birmingham, and its consequences, would be no easy matter. The oldest, most extensive, and respectable merchants, manufacturers, and traders, concur in representing the present depression as unprecedented in their experience.

From the returns made by the London Fire Establishment, it appears that during the last six months upwards of 300 conflagrations have occurred in the metropolis. The amount of property destroyed is immense. It is estimated at £160,000.

We learn from Weimar that the Emperor Nicholas has addressed an autograph letter, to the Queen of England, congratulating her Majesty on escaping from the attempt on her life.

We learn from Vienna that Baron Solomon de Rothschild has alienated property to the amount of 4,000 flor. (about £400) a year for the purpose of giving wedding portions annually and for ever, to four young females of irreproachable conduct and poverty, and without distinction of religious faith, who are to be natives of Brum the capital of Moravia.

It is calculated that all the works in connection with the Thames Tunnel will be completed in two years and a half from the present time.

FIRE ON THE GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.—On Tuesday a destructive fire broke out in one of the luggage-carriages on the Great Western railroad. The train had not started from the terminus at Paddington more than a quarter of an hour when it caught fire. It consisted of twelve luggage carriages, containing hogsheads of sugars, teas, butter, cheese, hemp, and other goods. Two of the carriages, which contained sugars and other groceries, with one laden with hemp, were burnt, containing property to an immense amount. The firemen succeeded in saving the other part of the train. The flames were seen for miles round the country. The fire originated, it is supposed from some sparks, flying from the engine amongst the hemp in the front carriage.

The discussions in Parliament this week tend to strengthen a growing opinion that England's prosperity is intimately connected with the good or bad government, the welfare or detriment of her distant dependencies. Colonial subjects force themselves upon the attention of the reluctant Legislature, and the more closely they are examined, the more evident it becomes that to neglect the concerns of the Colonies is one of the surest methods of preparing loss and vexation for the mother country.

The Judge of the Admiralty Court will not be allowed to sit in any future Parliament. A proviso to that effect has been added to his salary bill.

DIED.

On Sunday the 12th instant, the Honorable WILLIAM BAUCE ALMON, M.D. a Member of Her Majesty's Legislative Council, and for very many years, a physician in very extensive practice in this town. From the estimation both in his private and professional character, in which Dr. Almon has so long been justly held, the suddenness of his departure, cast a greater gloom over the face of the community than we ever remember to have witnessed, on a similar occasion. His death was occasioned by Typhus Fever, contracted from attendance on the Emigrants just arrived at Halifax. The numerous circle of affectionate friends who mourn Dr. Almon's sudden removal, will long cherish the remembrance of his worth, and the poor of Halifax, will deeply deplore an event which has deprived them of a humane and benevolent friend, ever ready to afford them sympathy and assistance. Whatever difference may have occasionally been elicited during his life with any portion of the community, in the turmoil of political opinion, but, one common sentiment of deep regret for his loss, seemed to animate every breast, in paying the last tribute of respect to his memory.
