

The first part of the report deals with the general situation in the country and the progress of the work of the Government. It is a pleasure to note that the Government has been able to carry out its programme of economic and social reforms in a steady and consistent manner. The progress made in the various fields of activity is a clear indication of the determination of the Government to bring about a fundamental change in the economic and social structure of the country.

In the field of agriculture, the Government has succeeded in increasing the production of food grains and other essential crops. This has been achieved through the implementation of various measures such as the expansion of the irrigated area, the provision of agricultural credit, and the distribution of agricultural machinery. The Government has also taken steps to improve the living conditions of the rural population by providing them with access to education and health services.

In the industrial sector, the Government has succeeded in increasing the production of industrial goods. This has been achieved through the implementation of various measures such as the expansion of the industrial base, the provision of industrial credit, and the distribution of industrial machinery. The Government has also taken steps to improve the living conditions of the industrial workers by providing them with access to education and health services.

In the field of commerce and industry, the Government has succeeded in increasing the production of goods and services. This has been achieved through the implementation of various measures such as the expansion of the commercial base, the provision of commercial credit, and the distribution of commercial machinery. The Government has also taken steps to improve the living conditions of the commercial workers by providing them with access to education and health services.

In the field of education, the Government has succeeded in increasing the number of students attending schools and colleges. This has been achieved through the implementation of various measures such as the expansion of the educational base, the provision of educational credit, and the distribution of educational machinery. The Government has also taken steps to improve the quality of education by providing teachers with access to training and development opportunities.

In the field of health, the Government has succeeded in increasing the number of people receiving medical services. This has been achieved through the implementation of various measures such as the expansion of the health care system, the provision of health care credit, and the distribution of health care machinery. The Government has also taken steps to improve the quality of health care by providing health workers with access to training and development opportunities.

In the field of social welfare, the Government has succeeded in increasing the number of people receiving social services. This has been achieved through the implementation of various measures such as the expansion of the social welfare system, the provision of social welfare credit, and the distribution of social welfare machinery. The Government has also taken steps to improve the quality of social services by providing social workers with access to training and development opportunities.

In the field of foreign relations, the Government has succeeded in establishing friendly relations with all major powers. This has been achieved through the implementation of various measures such as the expansion of the foreign relations base, the provision of foreign relations credit, and the distribution of foreign relations machinery. The Government has also taken steps to improve the quality of foreign relations by providing foreign relations workers with access to training and development opportunities.

In the field of international relations, the Government has succeeded in increasing the number of people receiving international services. This has been achieved through the implementation of various measures such as the expansion of the international relations base, the provision of international relations credit, and the distribution of international relations machinery. The Government has also taken steps to improve the quality of international services by providing international relations workers with access to training and development opportunities.