

PUBLIC SERVICE

TABLING OF TOMENSON-ALEXANDER STUDY OF PUBLIC SERVICE PENSIONS

Hon. Robert K. Andras (President of the Treasury Board): Mr. Speaker, pursuant to Standing Order 41(2) I wish to table in both official languages a study of public service pensions conducted by Tomenson-Alexander and Associates.

Mr. McIsaac: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. There have been discussions through the usual channels about the fact that the statement that is about to be made by the hon. minister, and perhaps the comments, responses and questions will certainly run us into the private members' hour. I believe it is generally understood that we would agree to that, and perhaps approaching six o'clock we could deal with Bill C-1001. We could proceed with that following the statement of the President of the Treasury Board.

Mr. Speaker: Is that agreed?

Some hon. Members: Agreed.

Mr. Baker (Grenville-Carleton): Mr. Speaker, so that we could clear up some of the other matters, would it be possible for us to change our proceedings a bit? I know that my friend wants to put two motions standing on the order paper in the name of the Deputy Prime Minister, and we are prepared to deal with those very quickly. Perhaps we could get them out of the way and then we can deal with the minister's statement.

Mr. Speaker: Order. The sensible solution might very well be, in the circumstances, to try to finalize routine proceedings and leave outstanding the statement on motions and orders of the day only. That would enable us to do that, and I hope we can move to do that with dispatch in a few minutes. We could then get to the minister's statement, and that would leave only his statement and the responses and questions, and then orders of the day later. Whatever is left of the private members' hour before six o'clock could be used, of course, in the way described. Is it agreed?

Some hon. Members: Agreed.
