

them? Would their position and their lot be better if Quebec broke the Confederation? Here, sir, is an interesting table which will show you how the French Canadian population has progressed since 1867.

CENSUS OF 1861.

| | French population | Total population |
|---------------|----------------------|---------------------|
| Lower Canada. | 867,320 | 1,110,664 |
| Upper Canada. | 33,287 | 1,396,091 |

CENSUS OF 1911.

| | French population | Total population |
|-----------------------|----------------------|---------------------|
| Alberta. | 19,825 | 374,663 |
| British Columbia. | 8,907 | 392,480 |
| Manitoba. | 30,944 | 455,614 |
| New Brunswick. | 98,611 | 351,889 |
| Nova Scotia. | 51,746 | 492,338 |
| Ontario. | 202,412 | 2,523,274 |
| Prince Edward Island. | 13,117 | 93,726 |
| Quebec. | 1,605,339 | 2,002,712 |
| Saskatchewan. | 23,251 | 492,432 |
| Yukon. | 482 | 8,512 |
| Territories. | 226 | 17,196 |
| | 2,054,896 | 7,204,838 |

That is to say, Sir, that there are today in Canada, outside the province of Quebec, nearly 500,000 French Canadians, or more than one half the number there were in the two Canadas in 1867. Is it in the interests of all those of our people of whom I have just spoken that we should leave Confederation?
