Rain Cut No Ice.

The rain in the morning did not keep the crowds away. Every trolley was loaded to capacity, and this year the street railway people were compelled to use two more cars than a year ago. And for the excellent service provided, Manager King earned the hearty thanks of Chairman Strong.

When the crowds arrived at the park, they began to unpack hampers. but they only got nicely started when rain began to fall, and they hurriedly stewed their goodies away and made

Good Old Pavilion.

With improved weather, the trolleys were taxed to the limit to carry the crowds. Everybody seemed assured that the rain was over, and Springbank was the destination of every Londoner who could get away from the city.

But the end was not yet-that is, the wet end. About 1:30, rain began to in sufficient quantities to put a damper on the picnickers. Though many numbers were applauded, it is probable that the rendition of the catchy score of the "Isle of Spice," proved the favorite with the people.

A Generous Act.

As usual, Ex-Mayor Little treated the children. He sent down a lorrie load of bananas, 6,000 in all, and each child who came to the stand was treated picnic to an abrupt and inglorious Needless to say the scholars had many words of praise for the Colonel.

Chairman Strong had two men patrol the river bank all day and during most inopportune times, he played fair the evening, in case any of the children on the whole, and favored the outing should fall into the stream. Quite a with the finest kind of weather in number of the picnickers indulged in the later hours of the afternoon and paddling, and the lookouts kept a sharp eye on them. Mothers were especially grateful to Mr. Strong for this wise precaution.

Chairmen Gammage, Westervelt Tillman, English, McCormick, Teasdall and Fitzgerald, of the different divisions, share with Chairman Strong in MANY AMENDMENTS PROPOSED the credit for the great success of the pienic. Though the affair was a decided success, it is quite probable that a couple of thousand more people would have gone down the river in the evening had it not been for the rain of the morning and afternoon, which somewhat affected people who would have liked to have spent a couple of hours at the park on a dry night.

No Accidents.

Beyond one very slight accident to a little girl, no untoward incidents were reported. This speaks volumes for the care taken of the children by the trustees, principals and teachers, and also for the care exercised by the employes of the London street railway. men were on the grounds.
