THE CRYSTAL STREAM

The public interest demands a most rigid investigation into the cause of the fire which destroyed the river steamer Crystal Stream. That such an appalling disaster could occur under such circumstances is as amazing as it is shocking to the public mind. The first thought is of sympathy for the families so terribly bereaved, and the natural sequence is a desire to know how such a catastrophe could be permitted to occur. With the information at hand judgment cannot be passed upon the conduct of any person, but surely this accident should not have occurred. It is one of the most serious accidents in the history of the river and lake steamers.

NOT VERY EDIFYING

There was an interesting discussion in the Toronto Methodist conference the other day over the question whether a minister on leaving the ministry without remuneration, and engaging in secular pursuits, should forfeit his right to the use of the title "Reverend." We quote from a report of the debate:

"It has become a sort of obnoxious thing to men in business," said W. P. Page, "to have men call upon us with ministerial titles, and other such things, and try to force them on us by the force of the prestige their title gives them."

"Strong objections to this statement were raised. Rev. Dr. Campbell said it was unjust for the laymen to take such a stand, as it was through their pressure that clergymen 60 years of age were edged out of the church, after living thirty years on about $300 a year. Then if a man sought some secular occupation, why should he be asked to give up the title of reverend? He himself hoped to end his days in some honorable work."

"S. C. Thip thought that special cases where ministers had disgraced their right to the title should be dealt with by the proper church authorities, but did not consider that the humiliation should be made general."

"Dr. Hough felt that the request for the withdrawal of the word applied to ministers who ask to be left without a station in order that they may accept secular work, and yet want to parade the title of reverend."

"Rev. Mr. Bartlett said that clergymen often used the word reverend in order to persuade people to buy things which otherwise they would not touch."

"The discussion finally went over, to be taken up at a later session. It was surely a somewhat humiliating debate, from whatever standpoint it may be viewed. One would like to see the ministry, who would deserve the criticism of Mr. Page and Rev. Mr. Bartlett, while there is but two much truth in the remark of Rev. Dr. Campbell that because of the small salaries paid ministers are frequently compelled in old age to engage in some secular work."

TEMPERANCE IN QUEBEC

The growth of the temperance movement in Quebec province has been referred to in former issues of this paper, and is one of the notable movements of the time in Canada. Some persons in other provinces have been in the habit of cynically remarking that Quebec would be the last stronghold of the liquor traffic in the dominion. We read with interest, therefore, the following statement from the Montreal Witness:

"Before separating for the summer holidays, the members of the Anti-Alcohol League of Quebec held an important meeting last week, under the presidency of Judge Langier. In submitting a report of the work done during the year, the chairman made special mention of the good results obtained through the Saturday early closing of bar rooms. A delegation was named to meet Sir Wilfrid Laurier at Rimouski, upon his return, and submit to him the request already sent to Ottawa asking government aid for the distribution of temperance literature among the working classes. It was decided to request the provincial secretary to furnish every school teacher in the province a copy of the book 'Alcohol and Alcoholism.' It was also decided to hold a grand temperance demonstration in September when all the bishops of the province will be in Quebec. The question of reducing the numbers of licenses by twenty-five in the provincial capital was brought up and placed on the programme for discussion at the next meeting."

THE WALL STREET WOMAN

The mere man who writes Wall Street news for the New York Journal of Commerce is somewhat severe upon the woman speculator. It is a well known fact that a great many women dabble in stocks, but apparently not always with the shrewdness of the skillful male speculator. The Journal man writes:

"Great is the faith of women operators. A glance at the order books of commission houses affords entertainment and starts a train of thought. The frenzied speculation of last fall, with its sensational rises, captivated not only the Newport 'set' but others whose trading did not run to thousands—share but to odd lots. It is almost pitiful to see the number of stand-

—sellers to sell at figures 10, 20, 30 and even 40 points above the current level. When the stocks were bought—for a sure profit—the order was given to sell at a certain price, a price that in many cases was not reached. Determined not to lose, many holders still adhere to the instructions then given. By this process women customers argue themselves into believing—or at least they so persuade their friends—that they have not 'really' lost anything in the stock market; they are simply holding on until they can pocket a substantial profit. These ridiculous orders give brokers no end of trouble, for they require attention week after week and month after month."

BRITISH POLITICS

The troubles of the Campbell-Bannerman government are not all connected with affairs in Ireland. The Nonconformists demand an education policy more satisfactory to them, and their press is very vigorous in its denunciation of the government's course. "Although the house of lords was responsible for the defeat of the Birrell education bill, the measure proposed by his successor, Mr. McKenna, was," an exchange points out, "advanced only languidly in the commons and finally dropped for the session. As it was, two of its clauses were attacked by all the Nonconformist journals, who remind Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman that when Gladstone's Nonconformist supporters failed him, he went out of office. Today, they mutter ominously about again disrupting the liberal party. The leading Methodist organ says, for example: 'The fact remains that the injustice wrought by the late government remains entirely unremedied.' Baptists and Congregationalists made the threat that if the government are not going to do something, they must give way to men who will.' The British Weekly remarked of the McKenna bill: 'Of all solutions conceivable, this is the most detestable.' Finally, the Christian World says that the Nonconformists 'will not put up with' the present policy."

AN OTTAWA INSTANCE

Another striking evidence of the value of the probation system in dealing with youthful delinquents has come to hand. It comes from the city of Ottawa, and is thus stated in the Toronto Mail and Empire:

"Mr. W. L. Scott, Master-in-Chancery at Ottawa and president of the Children's Aid Society, who is in Toronto, strongly favors the extension of the probation system of dealing with youthful offenders. The movement has proved successful in Ottawa since its adoption. In nine months only one boy has been committed to a reformatory. Two ladies have been acting as probation officers. They are Madame Bruchaud, sister-in-law of the Archbishop of Montreal, and Miss Cassidy, of the city mission. These ladies give all their time to the work and enlist the interest of business men in the reclamation of young offenders. Mr. Scott states that there have been some remarkable instances in Ottawa of boys, believed incorrigible, becoming law abiding and ambitious, because of the faith shown in them by good people."

The secret of the success noted is made clear in the last two sentences. The personal influence and interest of good men and women turn the current of the lives of these boys into new and helpful channels. The relatively small number of persons willing to interest themselves in the work accounts for the very large number of cases of delinquency on the part of children. That there are some incorrigibles does not lessen the responsibility of society, but society is unwilling to accept the responsibility and the personal effort is invaluable. That community is the most fortunate, the most orderly and the most progressive, in which the altruistic spirit is most manifest.

NINE YEARS OLD AND A FIREBUG

Belleville Child Confesses to Setting Many Incendiary Fires

Belleville, Ont., June 20.—Dorland Foster, nine and one half years old incendiary, has admitted since being taken into custody, to having set fire to several places within the past three months, including the fire station yesterday. Sergeant Hayes, who suspected the boy, took him over the scene of the different fires, and he showed exactly how he did his work. He went to the rear of a stable, struck a match and threw it blazing into the hay in the rear of horses. As soon as he did this he ran to city hall and was there when the alarm was sent in.

A young girl named Amy Stewart, alias Brown, sixteen years old, was taken into custody as an accomplice. The boy said the Stewart girl incited him to do the deed. A few days before May 24 the girl Stewart proposed to him that they burn all the barns and frame buildings along the east side of the river between the lower bridges, a distance of 200 yards. Both of them, he said, set fire to Jenkins' livery stable twice, but each time the fire was extinguished. The case was enlarged till Monday and the boy and girl were left in charge of their mothers.

BOSTON SINGER

AT NICKEL TODAY

New Song and New Pictures—

A First Class Show.

Owing to the throat trouble with which Mr. Austin, of the Nickel staff, has been suffering for more than a week, the management has had to write to Boston for a vocalist to take the illustrated songs and today one of the best baritone in the Keith employ will arrive to go on the programme immediately after lunch hour. Panella, a Mexican love-song, will be the piece during the remainder of the week and those who attend from now on will be delighted with its unique melody and gorgeous picture-setting. Last evening Ernest Appleby, of this city, sang this number with fine effect, but the services of this rising young vocalist are available during the evenings only.

Yesterday's presentation of the new views was greatly enjoyed by large numbers. The Parisian story of A Wayward Son took particularly well, the home scene, business scenes, at the race track, in the coils of an adventure, the discovery of theft, banishment and heroic finale make a most dramatic and realistic sequence of events. The other scenes, Pals, A Terrible Experience and Wet Paint caused great merriment.

Major H. E. Taylor
Halifax, June 19.—Henry A. Taylor, one of the oldest pharmacists in Canada, died this morning, aged 87 years. Mr. Taylor was a native of Scotland, coming to Halifax in his youth and carrying on a drug business for over fifty years. He was a prominent Oddfellow and a member of the Sons of Temperance. George H. Taylor, manager of the Royal Bank here, is a son of deceased. Another son, John, carries on a drug business in Halifax in succession to his father.

THE DEAD HAND

Life in whose life all life began, Thou great All-Wise, Who has decreed Within the babe shall be the man, The larger life within the seed.

Who sowed the aching void of space With dust of systems yet to be, The swiftest of whose thunderous race Chitras Omnipotent is Thine.

Since life is thus from less to more, Why should we speak with sobbing breath Of those not lost but gone before, Into that larger life called death?—George Jackson Hewison, in the Independent.

IN LIGHTER VEIN

FOR FISHING
A certain John Simmons had been a twenty years' abstainer, but fell from the ways of grace and worshipped the vinous god with all the fervor of a convert. Feeling the need of recuperation, he sent his boy to an adjacent hotel for a bottle of whiskey.

"But," cried the hotel proprietor, "who's it for?"
"For my father," said the boy.
"Nonsense! Your father is a total abstainer, and has been, to my knowledge, for longer years than you've lived."
"Well, at all events, he sent me for a bottle of whiskey."

"What does he want it for?"
"To let you into a secret," said the boy, ashamed to tell the truth. "He's going fishing and he wants the cork to use for a float."—Illustrated Bits.

RELIGION AND SHORT WEIGHT
In Manchester are two brothers, who are engaged in the retail coal business. An evangelist visited the city and converted the elder brother of the firm. For weeks after his conversion the brother who had lately "got religion" endeavored to persuade the other to join the church. One day when the elder brother was making another effort, he asked:

"Why can't you, Richard, join the church as I did?"
"To all right for you to be a member of all right," replied Richard, "but if I join who's going to weigh the coal?"—London Telegraph.

IN COURT

Magistrate (to vagrant)—Well, sir, what do you do all this week?
Vagrant—Nothing.
Magistrate—And on Sundays?
Vagrant—I take a day off.—London Telegraph.

"You look downcast, old man."
"Yes, I feel that way. I asked Miss Hensley to marry me and she fired the day in the last week of June."
"Well, the time will pass quickly."
"Yes, that's what's worrying me."—Philadelphia Press.
