The Chocolate Soldier

Two of the characters in The Chocolate Soldier, coming to the Opera House next week.

"The Chocolate Soldier" is enjoying its third season of unabated popularity and has broken the old rule that "familiarity breeds contempt." In the case of this masterpiece of Oscar Strauss and the Viennese school of music, the familiarity that the American people possess of "The Chocolate Soldier" with its captivating melodies and its enthralling wit, has only made them more eager to repeat the experience of an evening in the company of The Chocolate Soldier. This explains the coming of the epigrammatic opera bouffe that Oscar Strauss fashioned from George Bernard Shaw's immortal comedy "Arms and the Man" to the Opera House for the entire week starting Monday.

Not content with the strength of his company last season and the widely remarked beauty of his scenic equipment, Mr. Whitney, the producer of "The Chocolate Soldier," has sought to surpass his former achievements and to increase, if possible, the power of the spell that the romantic Bulgarian atmosphere and the wondrous music cast over every audience.

The Whitney Opera Company is something of a phenomenon among light opera companies, for it is a rule of Mr. Whitney's, one which he rarely breaks, that every member shall have had a grand opera training. This means a richer and more intelligent rendering of all the subtleties of the music, and insures a dramatic union which is all-important to the success of an opera which offers as many dramatic opportunities as does "The Chocolate Soldier." Such well known names as Tena Rasmussen, Kattie Burke, Walter Green, Della Nivins, Francis J. Boyle, George Tallman, W. H. White, and the Whitney Opera Orchestra, of picked musicians under the direction of Max Fleischer, are a guarantee that the production will be positively first-class. Seats go on sale tomorrow morning.

FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN
FEATURED AT THE GEM

"The Return of Richard Neal"
Leads the Big Mid-Week Programme — Kalem Comedy and Fine Orchestral Selections

When Francis X. Bushman takes the leading role in a special picture feature, it is an assurance in advance that the production is of more than ordinary merit. This has been proved in various endeavors in the photo-film field, and it was further proved in the showing of a special three part feature "The Return of Richard Neal" at the Gem Theatre yesterday, to be repeated today for the last time. The story was intensely interesting, containing many strong dramatic situations, and portraying romance and adventure with the aid of a well-balanced cast. Audiences at the Gem yesterday thoroughly enjoyed the production.

There was also a very funny Kalem comedy, "The Hicksville 'Tragedy Troupe,'" which afforded pleasure and caused many smiles, while a fine musical programme was given by the Gem orchestra. The UPI's entertainment in "The Perils of Pauline" will be given tomorrow and Saturday, "In the Grip of the Gorgon."

FAIRVILLE'S PICTURE HOUSE HAS FAMOUS FEATURE,
CARDINAL RICHELIEU'S WARD

In many respects this is the most ambitious work that the Theatre Company have as yet undertaken, and they have every reason to be abundantly satisfied with the results of their efforts. Written, as most of the works of the late Lord Lytton, in every language, "Richelieu" was a favorite with the play-going public of past days; it was included in the repertoire of the late Sir Henry Irving; and the role of the cardinal has been associated with the names of many leading actors. As a play, it appealed more by reason of the brilliance of the cast appearing therein than by any magnetic power of dialogue, but what it lacks in this respect is amply atoned for in the beauty and grace of its pageantry, and it thus offers a wonderful opportunity for filming—an opportunity that has been utilized to the very best advantage by the Theatre Company.

The settings and the staging are sumptuous and dignified, and supported by superb photography, the production is rightly deserving of the very highest praise. The acting generally is excellent to a degree, James Cruise and Florence La Badie in particular giving a magnificent performance. The management of the Gaiety is given credit for bringing such productions to Fairville. A Keystone Comedy concludes the programme and to judge by the laughter it caused it must be one of the funniest films ever.

THE PRINCE OF WALES
"I must tell you about the prince, who is here with us," writes Private A. Butler and Coldstream Guards, writing to friends at Penarth, Cardiff. I can assure you and all Welsh people he is as brave as a hero. Only last night he passed me when German shells were coming over.

"You can take it from me that he is not only the Prince of Wales but a soldier and a man, and we are all proud of him. He is not very big, but he has got a bigger heart than a lot who are hanging back in Great Britain. I hope please God, he will come back safe and sound without a scratch."

WILL FINISH IN STYLE
(Canadian Courier)
No more splendid phrase has been coined in this war period than that sent over by Lieut.-Col. E. W. B. Morrison of the Canadian artillery. Colonel Morrison was editor of the Ottawa Citizen for years, but his enthusiasm for soldiering took him to South Africa for the campaign of 1900 and eventually led him into the militia department. Writing home after Langemarck he said: "Whatever may happen, I think Canada can depend that we will finish in style." Such a phrase is an inspiration. To those of us who are forced to stay home and miss the glory of it, there is a lesson. We, too, must finish in style. Whatever must be done to support our soldiers abroad, whatever is necessary to produce the supplies that are needed, whatever is advisable in the Empire's interest must be done, no matter what the cost. We, too, must finish in style, even if that should mean the effacement of our most thrilling occupations—the playing of petty politics and the scrapping over political patronage.

"Is the man your sister is going to marry rich?" "Not every time the marriage is mentioned she says, 'Poor man.'"
