TUG OCEAN EAGLE

COMMANDER OF

DEATH AT LEPREAU.
The death of Charles Archillis, ocred at his late residence, Lepreau.

When Captain Greenlaw reached the spot he was unable to bring his tug near the wreck, but he, with two members of the crew, launched a life boat in which they drifted down to the trawler and by this means hauled the survivors of the crew into the lifeboat and then transfered them to the tug. Eight of the fifteen members of the crew indicated the vecked was being lifted on to the deck of the Ocean Eagle.

A familiar personality and one insembly of the wrecked vessel. They could not get alongside but were able to float a sile, son of Charles McMonagle, and life-line down to the trawler and by this means hauled the survivors of the crew into the lifeboat and then transfered them to the tug. Eight of the fifteen members of the crew died from exposure before Captain Greenlaw reached the wreck and one died just as he was being lifted on to the deck of the Ocean Eagle.

RECOGNITION GIVEN.

At the City Hall here on August 24, 1925, a silver cup was presented to Captain Greenlaw by His Honor Life Gov. Todd, acting in behalf of the British Board of Trade, for the heroism displayed during the rescue. He also later received medals in appreciation of his bravery.

The body, accompanied by the chief engineer of the Ocean Eagle, Raiph Riley, was taken today to Canso, the home of Mrs. Greenlaw, where interment will be made. Comrades were at the depot on the sad mission of farewell.

self, which later suggested the forma-tion of the British and Foreign Bible Society. From this country came Lloyd George, who had proved one of the Empire builders—here, too, were scenes George, who had proved one of the Empire builders—here, too, were scenes which inspired the great poets, Wordsworth and Shelley.

Great possibilities for summer resorts were dearly evident in almost all the scenes—places enjoyable, not only for their beauty, but the historic connection of the surrounding country. The ancient Castles of Criccieth, Harlech, and Aberystwyth were shown and stories connected with each related. The famous song "Men of Harlech," as well as the Welsh National Anthem "Hen Wlad fy Nhadau," were sung in Welsh, "Jesus Lover of My Soul" was also sung to the old Welsh hymn tune, "Aberystwyth." The Legend of the "Bells of Aberdovey" was told and the music played by Miss A. McColgan very effectively bringing out the spirit of the legend.

Castles which were scenes of conquest of the country by Edward I, strongholds of the Welsh in the Wars of the Roses, were shown on the screen. The lecture explained the language of Wales and the endeavors of the people to preserve it.

Bits of Welsh history and tradition were of great interest, especially of the Druids, the formation of the Mountain of Criccieth, the first Prince of Wales, and an account of the royal national Eisteddiod, also the ceremony of the Gorsedd and the chairing of the chief bard of the year.

HEROIC DEED.

A most heroic deed was performed by Captain Greenlaw when he and members of his crew rescued several of the coast of Cape Breton in May, 1924. During the night preceding May 26, 1924, the trawler went ashore on Forchu Island and was rapidly breaking up during the storm that raged.

The young people of the Fairville United Church and their friends were favored last night with an interesting lecture by Sergt. Major E. J. Simon on Wales, his native country.

Slides of this land, famous for beauty and tradition, were shown, depicting the beautiful country along the shores of Cardigan Bay and Major Simon, at many points emphasized the heritage which Wales has given to the Empire and the World. It was through the carnest desire of a Welsh woman—Mary Jones—to obtain a Bible for herself, which later suggested the formation of the Rritish and Rouse Points.

NAVES SAYS GUILTY

George Levine pleaded guilty this morning to stealing a case of liquor in transport from the C. N. R. yards to the steamer Gray County. He was sentenced by Magistrate Henderson to six months in jail.

John Davis was charged with being drunk and using abusive language in the Park Hotel, King Square. J. Delbert Seely, proprietor of the hotel, gave evidence. A fine of $8 was struck on each charge.

Perry Leard was charged with doing grievous bodily harm to Azar Abdullam in a pool room on Friday. The complainant said that Leard had or-Gorsedd and the chairing of the chief bard of the year.

The lecture was thoroughly enjoyed by all and Sergt. Major Simon's ability to relate stories and vitalize scenes of his home country made the address deeply appreciated.
