ASKED NO QUESTIONS
The head of a concern sometimes asks a subordinate to do difficult things and without bothering to give details. An illustration of this is given in a book entitled "The Modern Executive". The president of a large firm once asked a man who applied for a position to bring a baby carriage from the former's out-of-town residence to his office. The man asked no questions but brought the perambulator to the office in a short time, together with a taxi driver demanding $4. The president paid this without demur and set the man to work. "It that chap had asked me how he was to get the baby carriage into the subway he would not have got the job," was the president's comment, "but it was worth $4 to me to know that I was hiring a man who could execute an order without asking why or how."

ROUGH ON THE TOUGH.
"Mister," began the tough-looking man, "I haven't got no home and—" "No taxes to pay," interrupted the man addressed. "No coal bills, no worry lest the landlord raise your rent. Permit me to congratulate you."

"I have no job—"

"Lucky chap! No danger of getting fired!"

"But I'm serious, mister. I have no money and—"

"No temptation to spend it foolishly on able-bodied beggars. Why, you're the very child of fortune. Good-day." O. A. C. Review.
