The Borden government is said to be preparing to spend millions on a more lavish scale than has ever been known in Canada. It must feed the hunger of its friends.

The debate in parliament yesterday was decidedly warm. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in a incisive speech, set out so clearly the troubles and failures of the government that Mr. Borden appears to have grown comewhat excited, and when Mr. Oliver proceeded to lay before the house the facts about the Macdonald by-election the premier could grand it to lay before the house the facts about the Macdonald by-election the premier could grand it to lay before the house the facts about the Macdonald by-election the premier could grand it to lay before the house the facts about the Macdonald by-election the premier could grand it to lay before the house the facts about the Macdonald by-election the premier could grand it to lay before the house the facts about the Macdonald by-election the premier could grand it to lay before the house the facts about the Macdonald by-election the premier could grand it to a lower and appears to lay before the house the facts about the Macdonald by-election the premier could grand it to be mich to be wicket before in a crush?

COLLEGE AND FARM

To connection with its extension work MacDonald College has a number of representatives in Quebec countries whome task is to bring the college to the farmer. In 1911 one of the first graduates of the college was sent into the country. Their graduates were sent out to Missiquol, Rouville, Sherbrooke and Pontias are more as a connecting into a brain the country of Humitagon and opened an extensing an office in the town of that name. This year four more graduates were sent out to Missiquol, Rouville, Sherbrooke and Pontias are more to make the country of Humitagon and opened an extensing an office in the chief town of the country. Their work is to act as connecting into a bravity of the graduates in different parts of the people cannot go to college, and that their other man on the farm, reversional training that the province of the man on the farm, reversional training that the country of the province of the country. INTEMPERANCE

The temperance campaign in parts of this province appears to be developing considerable heat. It is by no means certain that this will produce the best results. The best way to conduct a campaign would probably be to find out how far the majority of the people of a community were prepared to go toward prohibition and be really in earnest about it, and then proceed with as little friction as possible to that point. The more of bitterness there is injected into a campaign which relates to a social custom of the people, the more obstinate is the opposition and the less likely is the citizen whose interest has not been deeply aroused in the question to take an active part. We are all familiar with the kind of meeting which cheers and applauds a slashing speaker, who fiercely assails his opponents, and which then goes home perfectly satisfied with itself, and not at all disposed to assume any responsihome perfectly satisfied with itself, and not at all disposed to assume any responsibility in the matter. Some three years ago the temperance reform movement was making decided progress in St. John. To what extent ill-considered call may have been responsible for an obvious change in the situation it would perhaps not be wise to attempt to estimate, but it ought to be clear that a moderate course firmly and steadily pursued is most likely to produce
