John Nelson and Dagnio Savino, the former with a pair of black eyes, pleaded guilty to fighting on Wharf street, and were given an opportunity to pay fines of $10 each. Failing payment they will spend ten days in jail. R. Pinkerton and E. Hancock were fined to each for riding bleycles on the side.

Harry Karl, on remand, charged with leaving his horses untied on Government street, was allowed to go. The case arose out of the accident to Mrs. John Grant last week, when she fell to the roadway in attempting to board a street car. The magistrate said that while accused had left his truck he had evidently done so to render assistance to the injured woman. William S. Skinner pleaded not guilty to an abominable offence, and a remand was granted the prosecution until to-morrow. Warrants were issued for the arrest of Joseph Stephens, his wife, George Adams
