ONE OF THE MANY FACTORIES THAT TAKE IN MILK 12 MONTHS OF THE YEAR

Cows are profitable and at their maximum only when they are milked to the full limit of their lactation period, which is ten months out of every twelve. More and more our dairy farmers are discovering this truth and because of this together with the fact that satisfactory farm labor is to be had only when hired by the year and given steady yearly work, winter dairying is becoming more and more popular and more generally practised. Thus is our dairy industry steadily progressing and enlarging. Many of our cheese factories now make butter during the winter months, thereby running throughout the year. The small, yet exceedingly neat factory here shown, runs winter and summer. It is owned by E. W. Jackson, Leeds Co., Ont. Dairy Instructor, S. C. Cheatham, for Brockville West division, may be seen sitting in the rig in the foreground.
