HEALTHIEST ONE IN THE FAMILY

No Sign Of Dropsy And Kidney Trouble
Since Taking "FRUIT-A-LIVES"

MATTIE WARREN
Port Robinson, Ont., July 8th, 1915.
"We have used 'Fruit-a-lives' in our house for over three years and have always found them a good medicine. Our little girl, Mattie, was troubled with Kidney Disease. The Doctor said she was threatened with Dropsy. Her limbs and body were all swollen and we began to think she could not live. Finally, we decided to try 'Fruit-a-lives'. She began to show improvement after we had given her a few tablets. In a short time, the swelling had all gone down and her flesh began to look more natural. Now she is the healthiest one in the family and has no signs of the old ailment. We can not say too much for 'Fruit-a-lives' and would never be without them."

Germans Admit Loss of Zeppelin

Berlin, June 18th, via London.—The Zeppelin Z-48 was lost with all on board in Saturday night's raid on Southern England, the admiralty announces. The statement follows:

On the night of June 16th, one of our naval air squadrons in command of Captain Victor Schmetz, attacked important fortress in the South of England. Good results were observed. The airships had a fierce fight with British sea and land forces and airmen, in which the Z-48 was brought down in a burning condition over the sea. The entire crew, including Captain Schmetz, met the death of heroes. The remaining air ships returned safely.

An official British account of the raid said two persons were killed and sixteen injured by bombs.

The Zeppelin fell in a field a few miles from the coast, instead of in the sea, as the German statement reports.

Britain Plans to Deal With the Raiders

London, June 18th.—Replying to a series of questions in the House of Commons this afternoon as to whether the British Government had decided upon reprisals for the German air raids on England, Mr. Bonar Law, member of the British War Council, said the Government intended to take steps, not only for damaging the enemy, but for preventing raids on England.

It was a mistake, Mr. Bonar Law said, to assume that air raiding was confined to the enemy. The British air force in France had raided German communications and all important objectives behind the lines which were of sufficient importance to justify such enterprises. With the increase of the British air forces and the improvement of airplanes, raids against objectives at longer range were becoming more practicable. The Government was in consultation with France and the military authorities at the front as to the most effective means of meeting the situation.

British Give up Advanced Posts

London, June 18th.—The British have fallen back from some of their advanced posts in Northern France, according to an official statement issued by the War Office this morning. The main new positions are still held. The statement follows: Early this morning, the enemy delivered a strong local attack under cover of heavy bombardment, upon the positions captured by us on the morning of June 14th, east of Monchy, Le Pruux. After severe fighting our troops were compelled to fall back from certain advanced positions, which we still hold on Infantry Hill.

There was considerable artillery activity on both sides during the night north of the Scarpe. Hostile artillery activity continues in the neighborhood of Ypres.

Kaiser's Investments Causing Him Worry

The Hague, June 14 (delayed).—The official North German Gazette publishes an angry attack on the neutral papers which have circulated the story of the Kaiser holding American shares. The paper says: "A notice, now going the rounds of the neutral papers, throws a glaring light on the methods of the enemy's agents. This story declares the Kaiser and his brother, Prince Henry have invested considerable capital in American shares. Previously these agents had declared the Kaiser had property in England hence the war against England being conducted gently. The enemy propagandist lies on a big scale."

The facts are that the story of the Kaiser's property in England was circulated by the German press and was admitted at the time by the Von Tirpitz and Reventlow enthusiasts to explain why the submarine warfare was delayed. Similarly, the German story, which by the way dates from long before the war, is being revived, not by allied agents, but by the Germans, to explain the supposed reluctance of the Kaiser to let matters come to a climax with the United States. It may be added that the Kaiser is supposed to own ranches and other property in the Middle West, and in the Canadian West.

A portion of the cathedral was being restored, and a gentleman noticed a man busily engaged in carving a grotesque face with apparently no design to go by. He went up to him and said: "How do you manage to invent such frightfully ugly faces?" The man replied: "I eat a piece of cold pork before I go to bed, and then I dream 'em."—Pearson's Weekly.

Went Over Vimy Ridge

Halifax Herald London correspondent.—Rev. Arthur K. Herman, B.D., is in a hospital in France with one leg amputated. He is doing well, and it is only a matter of a short time before he will be home again. It will be remembered that he resigned his pastorate at Milton, N. S., and joined the colors. In a Highland battalion he served as a sergeant and in other capacities faithfully and well. At last the call came for a draft from the Highland Brigade to go to France. Sergeant Herman reverted to the ranks in order to cross with the first draft. His request was granted and he did his bit. After being in France for about six months or probably a little less, and having gone over the top in the famous Vimy Ridge, he was out one night with a party of nine and was wounded by a shell which killed one of his comrades and disabled the others.

A Prayer for Victory

Thou God, who strik'st the anvil of the world
With war's dread hammer that the souls of men
Shall by the mighty blows upon them hurled
Be purified and know Thy peace again,
Uphold our cause, and guide through battle's flame
The marching legions: and the ships at sea
America has given in Thy name,
To save humanity alive and free.

Admits at Last Loss of Bremen

London, June 16.—The Neueste Nachrichten, of Kiel, according to the Hague correspondent of the Daily Mail, at last admits the loss of the commercial submarine Bremen with its valuable cargo. The newspaper says: "The commercial submarine Bremen left Hamburg last August and since then unfortunately has not been heard of. She carried a large parcel of American securities. The owners of part of these shares have applied to the railways in question and have asked for duplicate shares on the ground that the Bremen had been lost with her whole cargo. 'The railway companies have made out fresh papers after the deposit by the share owners of suitable guarantees.'"

How German Officers Urge Their Troops Into Our Fire

Paris, June 15.—The Matins correspondent at the Flanders front telegraphs as follows: Prince Rupprecht's troops enter a fight dejectedly and without a punch secret orders discovered show that behind each section marches an officer, whose duty it is to shoot the laggards. This officer is supported by two machine guns which collaborate in the slaughter of the demoralized shirkers. The wounds of many of the German dead and the statements of prisoners proved that these guns are kept busy urging the waves of German troops into the hell of British fire.

"Fourteen enemy divisions participated in the last five days fighting between Wythchaete and Warneeton nine divisions were decimated and the other five hit hard. Finally four divisions were sent to the rear to rest and were replaced by troops hastened from the Russian front."

The correspondent says: "Our British friends do things on a big scale and the Germans do also, for they have left twenty thousand dead on or under the ground and forty thousand more are out of business for a long time."

A Bavarian in a letter home says: "When the British mines exploded, we thought hell had opened to receive us."

THE CORRECT WAY TO TREAT A COLD

A cough is not a distinct disease, it is the result of inflammation caused by a cold. Therefore, the only way to cure a cough is to allay the inflammation which invades the delicate bronchial tubes. All of the narcotics in the world will not correct the conditions which cause a cough—they simply deaden the senses and afford temporary relief.

Penslar White Pine and Spruce Balsam with Menthol will promptly soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and overcome the nervous irritation. Price, 25c and 50c the bottle.
