AN ACCURATE TIMEKEEPER.
The best timekeeper in the world is said to be the electric clock in the basement of the Berlin Observatory, which was installed by Professor Forester in 1865. It is enclosed in an air-tight glass cylinder and has frequently run for periods of two and three months with an average daily deviation of only fifteen one-thousandths of a second. Astronomers are making efforts to improve even this and to secure ideal conditions for the clock by keeping it not only in an air-tight case, but in an underground vault, where neither changes of temperature nor of barometric pressure shall ever effect it.

The yakamik, a species of crane, is said to be one of the most intelligent birds known. The bird is used by the natives of Venezuela, South America, in place of shepherd dogs, for guarding and herding their flocks of sheep. It is said that however far the yakamik may wander with the flocks, it never fails to find its way home at night, driving before it all the creatures entrusted to its care.

While opening a box, J. C. Mount, of Three Mile Bay, N. Y., ran a ten penny nail through the fleshy part of his hand. To my surprise it removed all pain and soreness and the injured parts were soon healed." For sale by All Druggists.

MURDERER IS MINISTER'S SON
Father of Slaughter, the Essex Murderer, is Bearing up Well
Began His Pastorate Sunday of Colored Church in Amherstburg—Messages from the Murderer

Amherstburg, Ont., Oct. 10.—Laboring under a grief which almost unnerved him, Rev. David S. Slaughter preached his first sermon as pastor of the First Baptist church here, and he could not refrain from referring to his own sorrow.
Only a few hours before Rev. Slaughter ascended the pulpit he had heard his son, Edward Slaughter, sentenced to be "hanged by the neck until dead."
Rev. Slaughter's eyes were dimmed with the tears which have been falling almost constantly since he heard the words which, unless sentence is commuted, means his son must die almost on the eve of Christmas. Even now the death watch paces the cell in the Sandwich jail eyeing every movement of the young man who probably will be permitted to leave the prison walls only to wend his way to the scaffold.
"Dear brethren," spoke the old minister, his voice quivering with emotion, "the Lord's providence seems strange to me to-day. But God doesn't at all times explain what he does. At some future day we will understand why, just at this time, I am sent to minister to you."

MOTHER PROSTRATED.
The service over the members of the congregation, deeply affected by the words of their pastor, walked forward, shook his hand and tried to speak words of consolation. In a neighbor's home, not far from the church, lay Mrs. Slaughter, prostrated by the shock of her son's fate. "God knows best," she whispered. "If it hadn't been for the circumstances surrounding our boy, we would never have been called here to tell God's truth and cause his children to believe in Him. If we were far away, perhaps, they would not treat my dear boy even as well as they are doing now. It has been the means of our boy's conversion, and I believe God will save his life."

Rev. Slaughter is a light-complexioned colored man, of sturdy build and pleasant appearance, 57 years old. Born in Danville, Boyle County, Ky., as a young man he went to the front as a member of the One Hundred and Fourteen United States colored infantry, serving his country nearly three years and receiving an honorable discharge. Naturally of a deeply religious nature, Mr. Slaughter early chose the ministry as his life work, and June 24, 1877, in his home town, he was ordained. Edward was the black sheep of the family of six boys and two girls.

NOT A BAD BOY.
"I am the last person in the world to complain of my calling," Rev. Slaughter observed in a talk with a reporter, "but don't you know it is a difficult task for a minister, who must travel from one church to another, to give his children the education and attention they require?"
"Eddie was never a bad boy. Sometimes he was mischievous, but not unlike most boys. He was quiet and hard to be aroused. I tried to do all I could for him and he attended the public schools, receiving an ordinary education. I am a plasterer by trade and I have done odd jobs, Eddie working with me."

"It is often said preachers' children are the worst. I do not believe that. Teach the child the way he should go while he is young and when he is old he will not depart therefrom, is a quotation over which I have pondered so much since Eddie got into this trouble. Writers have substituted 'may' for 'will' and this affords me, as a minister, the consolation that I have done my duty toward my son, Eddie."

ACCIDENTAL BLOW.
"I do not believe my boy ever struck that man with murderous intent; I believe it was an accidental blow struck when Eddie was in fear. In the United States he would have been charged with manslaughter, and not murder. Yet I have no fault to find with the court or the crown prosecutor. My son's attorney, D. R. Davis, is doing all he can. I only ask the mercy of those who are now in position to save my son's life."

"Our trust is all in Christ. We firmly believe he will save this young life. Like Job, we say—'Though He slay me, yet will I trust Him.' God knows best; His will be done." The sentence will be commuted; God will bring it about."

Rev. Slaughter declares the son is resigned to his fate, but expects the sentence to be commuted.
"Father," he said to his parent, after the sentence, "I never meant to kill that man. I am no murderer and never consider me as such, no matter what comes of me."

MESSAGE FROM MURDERER.
From the prison Slaughter has written a number of letters to his father in which he speaks of his conversion. Here are some extracts: "I am the best of spirits and am not in the least worried about anything. I have plenty of good reading and of the kind I like best. Just as I used to like other books and shun the Bible and its kind, I now love the Bible and shun the others. No other book can interest me unless it is a way to learn more about Jesus. Just as I used to long for the world and the things in the world now I long to forget and to do something that will help some one else to know and see as I do."

I suppose you were surprised to hear I have been converted. I have often laughed at people when they would say that they had been born again and wondered how they had the nerve to get up and tell people so, but now I know that it was not them, but the spirit that was in them.

I suppose you were surprised to hear I have been converted. I have often laughed at people when they would say that they had been born again and wondered how they had the

I like this country and if I should happen to get out I do not believe I would want to go back to Indiana or any other place where I am known. I intend to live in this new land that I have found and would prefer a new country. I can go back, but I do not want to, and hope it will happen that I will not.

All of the letters end practically in these words, indicating that the convicted slayer of Farmer John Budden has the deepest regard for his parents and his brothers and sisters. "Give my love to all. Kiss the little ones and mamma, and tell her that as I pray, I hope she still prays for me."

His father solemnly predicts that Edward Slaughter's love for Christ will save him from the hangman's noose.
