

TALK ON THE PLEBISCITE

Bill Passed Its Second Reading in the House.

SIR W

Ottawa, May 3.—In the House today Mr. Sifton introduced a bill to amend the Northwest Territories Act. It provides for giving to the Legislative Assembly the control of education now vested in the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council. The bill also allows Dominion officials to sit in the Legislative Assembly.

Another bill introduced by the Minister of the Interior extends the time for the granting of homesteads to veterans of the Northwest Rebellion.

THE PLEBISCITE. Mr. Fisher contended that the straight question of prohibition had never been passed upon by Parliament. While no action had been taken upon the report of the prohibition committee, the habits and sentiments of the people of Canada had so far progressed that he now believed a prohibition law possible of enforcement. The submission of the question to a plebiscite of the people was one of the blanks of the Liberal platform adopted at the Ottawa Convention in 1928. However, he would not deliver a prohibition speech; prohibition being a question for the people to decide. The bill, he added, was a simple measure, made so by the object of factoring the people and obtaining a fair expression of popular opinion. While the bill fixed no specific date for the taking of the plebiscite, the Government intended to bring it on as soon as possible, consistent with the demands of public business and the public convenience.

To a question by Mr. Foster, as to the probable cost of the plebiscite, Mr. Fisher said the cost would be about the same as that of a Federal general election—about $200,000 or $250,000.

THE BILL INCLUDES CIDER. Mr. Ferguson wanted to know why cider had been put in the question. He did not think cider made in Canada was an intoxicating drink.

Mr. Fisher replied that it was to be told the same thing, and when he was younger, and believed the people who tempted him, he had tasted cider and could say from the pure product that it was about the same as the question did not affect pure apple juice or sweet cider.

Mr. Ferguson thought all the same it would lead many people to vote against it. It was put in, remarked Mr. Montague, "not for the intoxicating effect, but for the knocking-out effect of cider."

MR. FOSTER DUBIOUS. Mr. Foster asked if it was to be considered that a majority of the voters of the country will be a mandate to the Government sufficiently clear to continue the present policy of Canada as a wine and a prohibition law? He was quite willing a plebiscite should be taken if the country thought it was worth the cost to vote on an abstract question without assurance that the next step would be to put the question to that vote. He recognized the difficulties in the way even if a prohibition bill was passed, and he believed that the financial, moral and racial. Yet as a temperance man and a prohibitionist, he was ready to vote for it, believing that the gain in revenue could be made up in other ways, with a resultant saving to the people in the end. And, further, if the people of Canada in overwhelming majority want prohibition enforced, they can have it enforced, as well as any other law. At least, they had a right to have a trial of their plan. In conclusion, he said he would vote for the bill, and hold the Government responsible for carrying out the second step.

SIR WILFRID EVASIVE. The Premier dwelt briefly on the revenue question, alluding to Mr. Foster, he said: "And now I come to the other class of rider, which has been suggested by Mr. Foster, and which we should provide in this bill that if there was an affirmative majority, then, immediately and mechanically, prohibition would come into force."

My hon. friend, interrupted Mr. Fisher, "has a perfect right to state his own views, but he certainly is not stating matters as they stand. I ask him that when the Government takes the first step, which involves this expense and requires the consent of the Government, will it follow with the second step if the people will tell them to do so?"

My hon. friend, replied Sir Wilfrid, "wants to have a declaration to this effect. I have often said, and I can only have repeat it, that when the will of the people has been affirmed, as it will be affirmed, then the Government—every Government—will be prepared to abide by the consequences."

At this the Opposition laughed, and Mr. Foster arose to make another attempt to get a definite answer, but the Government's supporters howled him down.

Sir Wilfrid went on: "My hon. friend stated a moment ago that there was a majority recorded in favor of prohibition. I accept his challenge, and his notice that he will hold us to strict account to bring in immediately a prohibitory liquor law."

But, he continued, if the Government had troubles, the Opposition had little troubles of their own. For, if Mr. Foster attempted to force the hand of the Government in this way, he would have his own friends, Mr. Ferguson, against him. The Government wanted to leave it to the people to decide on this question, and to dictate to the Government what its policy should be afterwards. "I have already said," he added, "that if the government should be reluctant to do that, that it would be imposed upon them by the people, my friends would be there to support the Government of it, and to abide by the will of the people."

WANTED LIGHT UPON THE SUBJECT. Mr. Foster interrupted again. "For the sake of clearness," he said, "I want to know just where we stand. The hon. gentleman has said that whatever the will of the people is, he will carry it out. That is one remark I want to Scott's Emulsion is not a "baby food," but is a most excellent food for babies who are not well nourished. A part of a teaspoonful mixed in milk and given every three or four hours, will give the most happy results. The cod-liver oil with the hypophosphites added, as in this palatable emulsion, not only feeds the child, but also regulates its digestive functions. Ask your doctor about this.

EDEN MILLS.

Eden Mills, May 3.—On account of the inclemency of the weather the observance of the Sunday school review services in the Methodist church last Sunday night was not as large as usual at these exercises, though the church was comfortably filled. The school, conducted by Mr. J. M. MacKay, was well attended, and much appreciated by the assembled interested persons in Sunday school work, as was also the review by the choir, under the direction of Mr. C. C. Cocksburn, also of the same place, gave some good instruction and advice in the teaching of Sabbath schools, and reminded the teachers of the responsibility of instructing the young people in the Bible truths. The Rev. Mr. Keale, of Lockwood, spoke for a few minutes on the divinity of Jesus, and the rewards of obedience in the work here and in the hereafter. The Rev. Mr. Bruce also conducted the regular afternoon services in the Presbyterian church last Sunday, and is expected to preside at the services on Sabbath.

The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was dispensed in the Methodist church here on Sunday last, the Rev. Mr. Keale presiding. Several members of the congregations of the two churches were present.

Two of our local fishermen, big fish, Campbell and Kennedy, secured a very nice lot on Monday—three each, about four inches long.

Next Tuesday night there will be a meeting in the church, addressed by Rev. Mr. Doyle, of Toronto. He is lecturing on the forward march of the Epworth League. All will be welcome.

Next Sunday there will be no service in the Methodist church here on account of the quarterly meeting, which will be held at Arkell in the forenoon.

There was a very small attendance at church Sunday, on account of the threatening condition of the weather. Mrs. Mahon is on the sick list, with inflammation, and we all hope to see her around soon.

Mr. Peter Stewart is still very poorly.

What appears to be scarce now, when the millers are anxious to get it. They are paying $1 a bushel here.
