

FOR-Y-NINE KILLED IN ROCK ISLAND WRECK.

Some Mexicans' Bodies Completely Burned Up in the Smoking Car.

All Women Passengers Escaped Death—None Even Hurt.

Eighteen-Year-Old Boy Blamed—"I Am Gone; So is 29," He Wired.

Topeka, Kansas, Jan. 3.—It is still impossible to say exactly how many persons perished in the Rock Island train wreck at Alma, Kansas, yesterday, as a number of bodies of Mexicans were completely destroyed by the burning of the smoking car. The conductor says there were 75 Mexicans on the train, and it is feared that 44 of these were killed, together with four passengers, all men, and a negro train porter, making the total dead 49.

A coroner's inquest will be held at Alma today, when John Lynes, boy telegraph operator, who is blamed for the collision, will testify. As far as known all the women on the train escaped death, and none was even seriously injured. W. H. Osgood, of Mitchellville, Iowa, was dragged from the ruins still alive, but soon died. Rescuers have found an arm of a passenger who was wedged in the wreckage.

Blame Boy Despatcher.
Alma, Kan., Jan. 3.—Twenty-nine has gone and a laborer yesterday morning the train despatcher in the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad office heard the foregoing message checked off by John Lynes, the boy telegrapher in the little station in Volland, twelve miles west. In an instant he knew what the faulting, indefinite words meant. Train No. 29, west-bound from Kansas City and Chicago, had left the station where it had orders to meet No. 30.

The operator at McFarland leaped to his key and notified the despatcher's office in Topeka. There was still five minutes before the trains were due to meet, and the operator in the office at Topeka, at McFarland and further west asked one another what was to be done to avert the wreck that was drawing nearer with each fleeting second.

The operator at Alma Vista had notified the operator at Volland that No. 30 had passed his station and was on the way to Volland. The despatcher realized that no help could reach the trains rushing on to disaster, so all prepared to await the news which was to tell them that more than thirty persons had been killed and at least as many more injured.

John Lynes, the telegrapher at Volland, left for Alma, which is ten miles east. He ran along the road and overtook a farmer who was driving to Alma. The farmer let him ride with him. Lynes was frightened and talked little. When the two arrived here, the despatcher of this county put Lynes under arrest.

Lynes made the following statement: "I, John Lynes, 18 years old, being duly sworn upon oath, hereby state that I was in the employ of the Chicago Rock Island Railway Company as night operator at Volland, Kansas. "I had been awake all night and was perfectly sober. At about 5 o'clock this morning the despatcher gave me four orders. One was for second 29 to meet No. 30 at Volland instead of Alma Vista. No. 25 also to meet No. 14 at Volland at the same time. No. 29 headed into the east switch and I let No. 14 pass backed out of the east switch and headed down the main line. I thought it was going to stop at the depot to take water, but instead it went by at six to ten miles an hour. Both hands were at 'danger' from the way the lever stood in the office. I cleared No. 14 by pulling down the right-hand board for that train as I had no orders for No. 14, leaving the lever in the position of 'danger' as my lever was in proper place in the office, but No. 29 did not stop and I ran out with my lantern, but with two swings across the track it went out. I then ran to the pump house, grabbing the lever, and I heard it a few times and it also went out.

"I also called the pumper, telling him what had happened. I went back to the depot and told the despatcher that second No. 29 was by and he waited to see if they were going to come back or hit. I told the despatcher that I was coming to Topeka and was trying to get there."

LATE MR. BROADFIELD.

FUNERAL WILL TAKE PLACE HERE ON SATURDAY NEXT.

Mr. George E. Broadfield, of the firm of McMahon, Broadfield & Co., Toronto, accompanied by his wife, left Toronto early in November last, on a business trip to Europe. After some stay in England Mr. Broadfield proceeded to the continent. A few days later he complained to his manufacturing friends of a severe pain in his side, and later, he was advised to go to Dresden and consult a specialist. Mr. Broadfield arrived in Dresden on the 4th of December, and consulted well known specialists. The diagnosis indicated appendicitis, but he was not informed just then to that effect. A day or so after his illness became so alarming that his doctors informed him that an operation would have to be performed. Mr. Broadfield immediately wired to his wife who was in England, to come to him on the first train, which she did, but she could not arrive at Dresden before the following evening. The evening of that same day the operation was successfully performed and afterwards, he was cheerful and without pain. Soon after, he fell asleep and he died in his sleep shortly after midnight on the morning of December 8th, while his wife was hurrying to him as fast as the express train could carry her.

It was a severe shock to her, having seen her husband off from London only some ten days before, in the best of health, and after her long night and day journey, to arrive in a strange land, to find her husband dead. In the meantime his firm in Toronto was in cable communication with their agents in various parts of Europe and with Mr. and Mrs. Broadfield's friends in England, some of whom were able to reach Dresden a day or two after Mrs. Broadfield and thus render her friendly assistance.

The body was embalmed and went forward to Hamburg to come to Canada on the first steamer. Mrs. Broadfield returned to Toronto immediately. Mr. Broadfield was born in Hamilton, and lived here for many years. The partnership between him and his partner was formed in Hamilton, where the firm was in business some years prior to their removal to Toronto.

Mr. Broadfield was a merchant of superior ability and was widely and favorably known among business men, in both America and Europe.

The funeral will take place in this city at 3 p. m. on Saturday next, the 5th inst., from St. Thomas' Church, Main street east, to Hamilton cemetery.

LOCAL ASTRONOMERS

The Hamilton Astronomical Society held its regular meeting last evening, and a goodly number turned out to hear a very interesting talk given by Rev. Father I. J. Kavanagh, S. J., M. A., B. Sc., of Loyola College, Montreal. In his opening remarks, the reverend speaker said that he wished to give his hearers a bit of inside history in regard to the Stonyhurst Observatory, Lancashire, England. Following this up, Father Kavanagh said that the Jesuit priests had always been interested in work along scientific lines, and at the present time there are 22 well-equipped astronomical schools throughout the world that are used exclusively by Jesuits.

The Stonyhurst Observatory was founded some time in 1840, and has steadily advanced until it has now complete apparatus for magnetic measurements, and also spectroscopic observations of the sun and stars. The reverend speaker dwelt for some time on the growth of the institution. Father Kavanagh said that the observatory was founded by a very interesting lecture with a few reminiscences of the past history of the observatory. He is a splendid speaker, and infused his own geniality and enthusiasm into what he says in a way that would make any subject interesting. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Father Kavanagh by the audience at the conclusion of the lecture, upon motion of Dr. Buchanan and Dr. Griffin.

A telegram was received from Dr. Marsh, the former President, conveying the season's greetings to the officers and members and to Prof. Kavanagh.

Mr. G. Perry Jenkins, the President, was in the chair.

STUDHOLME HELPING

AND LANDERS ALSO WORKING FOR KINGSTON LABOR CANDIDATE.

Mr. Allen Studholme, M. P. P., of this city, was in Toronto yesterday, and he left last night for Kingston, where he will canvass for Dr. Richardson, the labor candidate for Mayor. Samuel J. Landers and Mr. Studholme will address a mass meeting in the interests of Dr. Richardson on Saturday night. If the labor motion succeed in electing Dr. Richardson they say that they will nominate a candidate in the next provincial general election.

Always Slept at Home.

(See Catherine Paper.)
Mr. Joseph Smith, or many years market inspector in this city, is today receiving the congratulations of his friends on having passed the 70th birthday in his history. For 30 years Mr. Smith has been an esteemed resident of the Queen City. During that time he has never spent a night outside of this city, and has been out of it but five times, going twice to Toronto, twice to Buffalo and once to Hamilton. The Star-Journal has been spared yet many years of usefulness.

Music and the Drama

The Grand was filled to overflowing again last night, when "Ben Hur" was presented for the last time. The large audience thoroughly enjoyed the play, many of those present having gone to see it for a second time. "Ben Hur" is a play that can be appreciated more the oftener one sees it. There was a fairly large audience at the matinee.

Mr. Charles F. Toole, the manager for Klav & Erlanger, was well pleased with the business done here. The performances were attended by about 8,000 people, many being from Oakville, Burlington and points along the H. G. & B. R. It is estimated the receipts were between $8,000 and $9,000. The company could have played here a week, without matinees.

In view of the success of "Ben Hur," it is possible that Manager London may be able to induce Klav & Erlanger to send their big production, "The Prince of India," a companion play to "Ben Hur," to this city before the end of the season.

Two Great Musical Plays.
From the Atlantic to the Pacific with an orchestra of over seventy-five people is a tremendous undertaking. But such is the tour the Augustin Daily Musical Company is taking this season for the first time in the history of the company. The company will appear here on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings and present for the first time in this city two of the greatest musical plays that have ever been presented at Daly's Theatre, New York, "A Country Girl" and "The Cingales" and will be well for those desiring to hear these works to secure their tickets in advance. The sale opens on Saturday.

At the Savoy Theatre.
The great Brindamour, who heads the list at the Savoy theatre, provided excitement for an audience that filled the theatre last night, when he escaped from a straight jacket, one of the best of the kind ever seen. After five minutes of his escape, off came the jacket. The professor was greeted with a storm of applause. A rather skeptical theatre-goer, who watched his exhibition on opening night, doubted Brindamour's ability to get out of a straight jacket. In full view of the audience, to satisfy him the handcuff king attempted the feat. To-morrow night he will be imprisoned in a packing box from R. McKay Co.'s. He promises to escape without damaging the box. A still bigger feat will be his attempt on Saturday night to get out of a big paper bag suspended in midair without tearing the bag. Charles R. Sweet, the other big figure, has the greatest musical act seen here in a long time. Sweet is a musician and a clever one. He is also a really funny comedian. Other acts are

LAURA BUTLER, As Nan in "The Country Girl," at the Grand next Tuesday night.

H. W. Fredenick and Ada May, in a sketch, "The Girl and the Lobster"; Laura Bennett, of the Social Whirl Co.; Musical Simps; Linton and Lawrence, in a clever play; Loretta and her comedy acrobats, and new motion pictures.

The Laryngoscope Condemned.

London, Jan. 2.—William Hayman Cummins, principal of the Guildhall School of Music, addressing the Incorporated Society of Musicians, said: "Voice and Culture," classed the use of the laryngoscope, as an aid to teaching singing, among the gravest errors to be avoided. He said it was, of course, an invaluable surgical accessory, but as an aid to singing it was a ghastly failure. To late Prof. Garcia, he added, had more than once expressed to him great regret that he had improperly used much of the invention.

Three From Toronto.

Toronto, Jan. 3.—Toronto organizations which will compete for the Governor-General's musical and dramatic trophy have been winnowed down to the following:

1. The Rosedale Dramatic Club, entered by Lee Sullivan.
2. A private troupe, entered by Miss Septimus Denison.
3. The Inca club, of the Margaret Eaton School of Expression, entered by Mrs. Scott-Raft.

Only one of these organizations is to go to Ottawa, as his honor the Lieutenant-Governor has been deputed to give judgment on the best of the three, either in person or through such experts as he may appoint. His selection will be made on the 10th inst.

Between the Acts.
The attraction at the Grand to-night will be the popular melodrama "Human Hearts." It is said to be a thriller. "The Way of the Transgressor," the stirring melodrama, with the wonderful acting Landseer dogs, will be the attraction at the Grand on Friday and Saturday and Saturday afternoon.

"Dorothy Vernon, of Haddon Hall," day evening, with Henry Stanford and costumes comes to the Grand on Monday evening, with Henry Stanford and Laura Burt. No more charming picture has been seen on the stage this season than Laura Burt as Dorothy Vernon, with her saucy face, her audacious red hair, her petulance, pointing and perversity, and her sweet femininity through it all. The sale of seats opens on Friday morning.

10 1/2 Lbs. Granulated Sugar 47c

Friday, Saturday and Monday. If you are buying other groceries at our store you can get 10 1/2 lbs. of granulated sugar for 47c; 25 lbs. bright yellow sugar for $1.00; 11 1/2 lbs. for 50c; 5 1/2 lbs. for 25c.

Flour Special
500 only 25-lb. sacks, Gold Medal, Gold Seal or Cook's Pride Flour, going while they last, 45c each; 100 sacks Royal Household Flour, going at 45c per quarter sack; Graham Flour, 10 lbs 25c; pure Buckwheat Flour, 8 lbs. 25c.

Rolls Oats and Wheat
Tillson's Pan Dried Rolled Oats, fresh from the mill, clean, crisp and tasty, 8 lbs. 25c; Tillson's Premium Oats, pkg. 25c; Beaver Oats (not 25c) chine in every pkg., per pkg. 25c; Quaker Oats, per pkg. 10c; Tillson's Rolled Wheat, 8 lbs. 25c; Germ Meal, 8 lbs. 25c; Tillson's Cornmeal, 10 lbs. 25c; Tillson's Split Peas, 3 lbs. 10c; Pot Barley, 2 lbs. 5c.

Rice and Tapioca Special
500 lbs. Crystal Japan Rice, regular 7c, going Friday, Saturday and Monday 5c lb. 5 lbs. 25c; 1,000 lbs. best Bangor Rice, regular 5c lb., going at 4c, 4 lbs. for 15c. Quaker Puffed Rice, per package 10c. Finest Pearl Tapioca, costing more than ever, special 2 lbs 15c.

Butter, Eggs, Cheese and Lard
Choice Fresh Creamery Butter, per lb. 28c. Fresh Field Eggs, per dozen 27c. Prime Scotch Cheese, per lb. 17c. Best Pure Lard, per lb. 15c.

Oranges
Cheaper than any other fruit, and more healthful. Florida, 12 and 15c per dozen. Jamaicas, big, heavy, juicy fruit, per dozen 21c, worth 35c. Mexican Sweets, per dozen 25c. Navel, per dozen 35c.

Home-made Sausage (Saturday) 2 lbs. 25c.
Comfort Soap, 6 for 25c
Richard's Pure Soap, 6 for 25c
Edison Soap, 6 for 25c
Victor Soap, 6 for 25c
Alliance Soap, 8 for 25c
Judd's Soap, 10 for 25c
Washing Soda, 4 lbs. 5c
Kew's Blue, 4 squares 5c
Reckitt's Blue, 4 squares 5c
Clothes Pins, 4 dozen 25c
Clothes Lines, 10, 15 and 25c
Door Mats, 4 for 25c
Brooms, each 20, 25 and 30c 25c
Powdered Ammonia, pkg. 5 and 10c 25c
Liquid Ammonia, bottle, 5 and 10c 25c
Old Dutch Cleanser, tin 10c
Gold Dust Powder, 6 pkg. 25c
1770 Powder, per 25c
Pearline, per pkg. 25c
Gillett's Lye, 3 tins 25c
Mixed Nuts, 2 lbs. 25c

Apples, Onions and Potatoes
Northern Spies, sound, well colored fruit, per basket, 30c. Some other varieties, 25c basket. Spanish Onions, per lb. 4c, 3 lbs. 10c, 8 lbs. 25c. Potatoes, Delawares, per peck 20c, bushel 75c, bag $1.05.

Miscellaneous Bargains
Lily White Gloss Starch, 6-lb. fancy tin canisters and highest grade Starch, reg. 55c tin, going 44c. Duke of York Parlor Matches, 500 sure lights in every box, reg. 5c, going 2 boxes 5c. One Second Polish, one second Chief Fresh Herring, reg. 12c, going 10c. Scotch Herring, reg. 10c tin, going 6 tins for 25c. Kipperies, 1 tin Corn, 1 tin Peas, 1 tin Tomatoes, all for 25c, or 3 tins Peas, 2 tins Corn and 1 tin Tomatoes for 45c. 4 cakes Sunlight Soap and 2 pks. Pearlina. 4 cakes Sunlight Soap and 3 pks. Plecton's Crystal, 25c, or 4 cakes Sunlight Soap and a 10c box Empire Bouquet Toilet Soap for 23c.

Carroll's Five Stores
Cor. Emerald and Wilson,
Cor. James and Macaulay,
Cor. Queen and Hunter,
Cor. York and Caroline,
115 John Street South.

ON THE SOUDAN.

INTERESTING TALK IN ERSKINE CHURCH LAST EVENING.

Dr. Sterrett, of the Soudan, spoke for over an hour in Erskine Church lecture hall last evening. Rev. S. B. Russell introduced the speaker and at the close spoke in a eulogistic way of the impressiveness of the address. There was very good order of the service. The speaker had spent three years and a half in the Soudan. He contrasted the difficulties of a few years ago in getting into the country with the present condition. The natives now show industry and skill. The doctor pointed out that the Soudan was as large as Europe, minus Russia, and its population over sixty millions. He also pointed out that the Soudan was a very important part of the world. He said that the Soudan was under British control and that only a short time ago this territory was practically closed to Christian missions by the natives. Now it is accessible to all, and all honor to the British flag.

BROWN-SMITH.

A PRETTY CHRISTMAS DAY WEDDING AT BICKFORD.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Smith was the scene of a very brilliant gathering on Christmas evening, the occasion being the marriage of their daughter, Florence May, to Robert S. Brown, St. Mary's. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. C. Justice of Sombra, in the presence of many relatives and friends. The bride was prettily gowned in cream Henrietta, trimmed with broad silk and carried a bouquet of white carnations. Her traveling dress was green Venetian cloth, and she wore a green hat with white plumes. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Ida Smith, of St. Mary's, who wore white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, W. Brown, of Amherstburg, while little Ernest Stevenson, of Melbourne, cousin of the bride, and Edith Elsie Moffat, both dressed in white, carried the basket of flowers. The wedding march was played by Miss Anderson, cousin of the groom. The bride was given away by her father; the ceremony taking place under an arch of evergreens. The groom's gift to the bride and the bride's gift to the groom were presented by the bride's cousin, Miss Ida Smith, of St. Mary's, who wore white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, W. Brown, of Amherstburg, while little Ernest Stevenson, of Melbourne, cousin of the bride, and Edith Elsie Moffat, both dressed in white, carried the basket of flowers. The wedding march was played by Miss Anderson, cousin of the groom. The bride was given away by her father; the ceremony taking place under an arch of evergreens. The groom's gift to the bride and the bride's gift to the groom were presented by the bride's cousin, Miss Ida Smith, of St. Mary's, who wore white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, W. Brown, of Amherstburg, while little Ernest Stevenson, of Melbourne, cousin of the bride, and Edith Elsie Moffat, both dressed in white, carried the basket of flowers. The wedding march was played by Miss Anderson, cousin of the groom. The bride was given away by her father; the ceremony taking place under an arch of evergreens. The groom's gift to the bride and the bride's gift to the groom were presented by the bride's cousin, Miss Ida Smith, of St. Mary's, who wore white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, W. Brown, of Amherstburg, while little Ernest Stevenson, of Melbourne, cousin of the bride, and Edith Elsie Moffat, both dressed in white, carried the basket of flowers. The wedding march was played by Miss Anderson, cousin of the groom. The bride was given away by her father; the ceremony taking place under an arch of evergreens. The groom's gift to the bride and the bride's gift to the groom were presented by the bride's cousin, Miss Ida Smith, of St. Mary's, who wore white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, W. Brown, of Amherstburg, while little Ernest Stevenson, of Melbourne, cousin of the bride, and Edith Elsie Moffat, both dressed in white, carried the basket of flowers. The wedding march was played by Miss Anderson, cousin of the groom. The bride was given away by her father; the ceremony taking place under an arch of evergreens. The groom's gift to the bride and the bride's gift to the groom were presented by the bride's cousin, Miss Ida Smith, of St. Mary's, who wore white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, W. Brown, of Amherstburg, while little Ernest Stevenson, of Melbourne, cousin of the bride, and Edith Elsie Moffat, both dressed in white, carried the basket of flowers. The wedding march was played by Miss Anderson, cousin of the groom. The bride was given away by her father; the ceremony taking place under an arch of evergreens. The groom's gift to the bride and the bride's gift to the groom were presented by the bride's cousin, Miss Ida Smith, of St. Mary's, who wore white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, W. Brown, of Amherstburg, while little Ernest Stevenson, of Melbourne, cousin of the bride, and Edith Elsie Moffat, both dressed in white, carried the basket of flowers. The wedding march was played by Miss Anderson, cousin of the groom. The bride was given away by her father; the ceremony taking place under an arch of evergreens. The groom's gift to the bride and the bride's gift to the groom were presented by the bride's cousin, Miss Ida Smith, of St. Mary's, who wore white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, W. Brown, of Amherstburg, while little Ernest Stevenson, of Melbourne, cousin of the bride, and Edith Elsie Moffat, both dressed in white, carried the basket of flowers. The wedding march was played by Miss Anderson, cousin of the groom. The bride was given away by her father; the ceremony taking place under an arch of evergreens. The groom's gift to the bride and the bride's gift to the groom were presented by the bride's cousin, Miss Ida Smith, of St. Mary's, who wore white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, W. Brown, of Amherstburg, while little Ernest Stevenson, of Melbourne, cousin of the bride, and Edith Elsie Moffat, both dressed in white, carried the basket of flowers. The wedding march was played by Miss Anderson, cousin of the groom. The bride was given away by her father; the ceremony taking place under an arch of evergreens. The groom's gift to the bride and the bride's gift to the groom were presented by the bride's cousin, Miss Ida Smith, of St. Mary's, who wore white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, W. Brown, of Amherstburg, while little Ernest Stevenson, of Melbourne, cousin of the bride, and Edith Elsie Moffat, both dressed in white, carried the basket of flowers. The wedding march was played by Miss Anderson, cousin of the groom. The bride was given away by her father; the ceremony taking place under an arch of evergreens. The groom's gift to the bride and the bride's gift to the groom were presented by the bride's cousin, Miss Ida Smith, of St. Mary's, who wore white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, W. Brown, of Amherstburg, while little Ernest Stevenson, of Melbourne, cousin of the bride, and Edith Elsie Moffat, both dressed in white, carried the basket of flowers. The wedding march was played by Miss Anderson, cousin of the groom. The bride was given away by her father; the ceremony taking place under an arch of evergreens. The groom's gift to the bride and the bride's gift to the groom were presented by the bride's cousin, Miss Ida Smith, of St. Mary's, who wore white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, W. Brown, of Amherstburg, while little Ernest Stevenson, of Melbourne, cousin of the bride, and Edith Elsie Moffat, both dressed in white, carried the basket of flowers. The wedding march was played by Miss Anderson, cousin of the groom. The bride was given away by her father; the ceremony taking place under an arch of evergreens. The groom's gift to the bride and the bride's gift to the groom were presented by the bride's cousin, Miss Ida Smith, of St. Mary's, who wore white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, W. Brown, of Amherstburg, while little Ernest Stevenson, of Melbourne, cousin of the bride, and Edith Elsie Moffat, both dressed in white, carried the basket of flowers. The wedding march was played by Miss Anderson, cousin of the groom. The bride was given away by her father; the ceremony taking place under an arch of evergreens. The groom's gift to the bride and the bride's gift to the groom were presented by the bride's cousin, Miss Ida Smith, of St. Mary's, who wore white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, W. Brown, of Amherstburg, while little Ernest Stevenson, of Melbourne, cousin of the bride, and Edith Elsie Moffat, both dressed in white, carried the basket of flowers. The wedding march was played by Miss Anderson, cousin of the groom. The bride was given away by her father; the ceremony taking place under an arch of evergreens. The groom's gift to the bride and the bride's gift to the groom were presented by the bride's cousin, Miss Ida Smith, of St. Mary's, who wore white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, W. Brown, of Amherstburg, while little Ernest Stevenson, of Melbourne, cousin of the bride, and Edith Elsie Moffat, both dressed in white, carried the basket of flowers. The wedding march was played by Miss Anderson, cousin of the groom. The bride was given away by her father; the ceremony taking place under an arch of evergreens. The groom's gift to the bride and the bride's gift to the groom were presented by the bride's cousin, Miss Ida Smith, of St. Mary's, who wore white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, W. Brown, of Amherstburg, while little Ernest Stevenson, of Melbourne, cousin of the bride, and Edith Elsie Moffat, both dressed in white, carried the basket of flowers. The wedding march was played by Miss Anderson, cousin of the groom. The bride was given away by her father; the ceremony taking place under an arch of evergreens. The groom's gift to the bride and the bride's gift to the groom were presented by the bride's cousin, Miss Ida Smith, of St. Mary's, who wore white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, W. Brown, of Amherstburg, while little Ernest Stevenson, of Melbourne, cousin of the bride, and Edith Elsie Moffat, both dressed in white, carried the basket of flowers. The wedding march was played by Miss Anderson, cousin of the groom. The bride was given away by her father; the ceremony taking place under an arch of evergreens. The groom's gift to the bride and the bride's gift to the groom were presented by the bride's cousin, Miss Ida Smith, of St. Mary's, who wore white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, W. Brown, of Amherstburg, while little Ernest Stevenson, of Melbourne, cousin of the bride, and Edith Elsie Moffat, both dressed in white, carried the basket of flowers. The wedding march was played by Miss Anderson, cousin of the groom. The bride was given away by her father; the ceremony taking place under an arch of evergreens. The groom's gift to the bride and the bride's gift to the groom were presented by the bride's cousin, Miss Ida Smith, of St. Mary's, who wore white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, W. Brown, of Amherstburg, while little Ernest Stevenson, of Melbourne, cousin of the bride, and Edith Elsie Moffat, both dressed in white, carried the basket of flowers. The wedding march was played by Miss Anderson, cousin of the groom. The bride was given away by her father; the ceremony taking place under an arch of evergreens. The groom's gift to the bride and the bride's gift to the groom were presented by the bride's cousin, Miss Ida Smith, of St. Mary's, who wore white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, W. Brown, of Amherstburg, while little Ernest Stevenson, of Melbourne, cousin of the bride, and Edith Elsie Moffat, both dressed in white, carried the basket of flowers. The wedding march was played by Miss Anderson, cousin of the groom. The bride was given away by her father; the ceremony taking place under an arch of evergreens. The groom's gift to the bride and the bride's gift to the groom were presented by the bride's cousin, Miss Ida Smith, of St. Mary's, who wore white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, W. Brown, of Amherstburg, while little Ernest Stevenson, of Melbourne, cousin of the bride, and Edith Elsie Moffat, both dressed in white, carried the basket of flowers. The wedding march was played by Miss Anderson, cousin of the groom. The bride was given away by her father; the ceremony taking place under an arch of evergreens. The groom's gift to the bride and the bride's gift to the groom were presented by the bride's cousin, Miss Ida Smith, of St. Mary's, who wore white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, W. Brown, of Amherstburg, while little Ernest Stevenson, of Melbourne, cousin of the bride, and Edith Elsie Moffat, both dressed in white, carried the basket of flowers. The wedding march was played by Miss Anderson, cousin of the groom. The bride was given away by her father; the ceremony taking place under an arch of evergreens. The groom's gift to the bride and the bride's gift to the groom were presented by the bride's cousin, Miss Ida Smith, of St. Mary's, who wore white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, W. Brown, of Amherstburg, while little Ernest Stevenson, of Melbourne, cousin of the bride, and Edith Elsie Moffat, both dressed in white, carried the basket of flowers. The wedding march was played by Miss Anderson, cousin of the groom. The bride was given away by her father; the ceremony taking place under an arch of evergreens. The groom's gift to the bride and the bride's gift to the groom were presented by the bride's cousin, Miss Ida Smith, of St. Mary's, who wore white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, W. Brown, of Amherstburg, while little Ernest Stevenson, of Melbourne, cousin of the bride, and Edith Elsie Moffat, both dressed in white, carried the basket of flowers. The wedding march was played by Miss Anderson, cousin of the groom. The bride was given away by her father; the ceremony taking place under an arch of evergreens. The groom's gift to the bride and the bride's gift to the groom were presented by the bride's cousin, Miss Ida Smith, of St. Mary's, who wore white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, W. Brown, of Amherstburg, while little Ernest Stevenson, of Melbourne, cousin of the bride, and Edith Elsie Moffat, both dressed in white, carried the basket of flowers. The wedding march was played by Miss Anderson, cousin of the groom. The bride was given away by her father; the ceremony taking place under an arch of evergreens. The groom's gift to the bride and the bride's gift to the groom were presented by the bride's cousin, Miss Ida Smith, of St. Mary's, who wore white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, W. Brown, of Amherstburg, while little Ernest Stevenson, of Melbourne, cousin of the bride, and Edith Elsie Moffat, both dressed in white, carried the basket of flowers. The wedding march was played by Miss Anderson, cousin of the groom. The bride was given away by her father; the ceremony taking place under an arch of evergreens. The groom's gift to the bride and the bride's gift to the groom were presented by the bride's cousin, Miss Ida Smith, of St. Mary's, who wore white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, W. Brown, of Amherstburg, while little Ernest Stevenson, of Melbourne, cousin of the bride, and Edith Elsie Moffat, both dressed in white, carried the basket of flowers. The wedding march was played by Miss Anderson, cousin of the groom. The bride was given away by her father; the ceremony taking place under an arch of evergreens. The groom's gift to the bride and the bride's gift to the groom were presented by the bride's cousin, Miss Ida Smith, of St. Mary's, who wore white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, W. Brown, of Amherstburg, while little Ernest Stevenson, of Melbourne, cousin of the bride, and Edith Elsie Moffat, both dressed in white, carried the basket of flowers. The wedding march was played by Miss Anderson, cousin of the groom. The bride was given away by her father; the ceremony taking place under an arch of evergreens. The groom's gift to the bride and the bride's gift to the groom were presented by the bride's cousin, Miss Ida Smith, of St. Mary's, who wore white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, W. Brown, of Amherstburg, while little Ernest Stevenson, of Melbourne, cousin of the bride, and Edith Elsie Moffat, both dressed in white, carried the basket of flowers. The wedding march was played by Miss Anderson, cousin of the groom. The bride was given away by her father; the ceremony taking place under an arch of evergreens. The groom's gift to the bride and the bride's gift to the groom were presented by the bride's cousin, Miss Ida Smith, of St. Mary's, who wore white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, W. Brown, of Amherstburg, while little Ernest Stevenson, of Melbourne, cousin of the bride, and Edith Elsie Moffat, both dressed in white, carried the basket of flowers. The wedding march was played by Miss Anderson, cousin of the groom. The bride was given away by her father; the ceremony taking place under an arch of evergreens. The groom's gift to the bride and the bride's gift to the groom were presented by the bride's cousin, Miss Ida Smith, of St. Mary's, who wore white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, W. Brown, of Amherstburg, while little Ernest Stevenson, of Melbourne, cousin of the bride, and Edith Elsie Moffat, both dressed in white, carried the basket of flowers. The wedding march was played by Miss Anderson, cousin of the groom. The bride was given away by her father; the ceremony taking place under an arch of evergreens. The groom's gift to the bride and the bride's gift to the groom were presented by the bride's cousin, Miss Ida Smith, of St. Mary's, who wore white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, W. Brown, of Amherstburg, while little Ernest Stevenson, of Melbourne, cousin of the bride, and Edith Elsie Moffat, both dressed in white, carried the basket of flowers. The wedding march was played by Miss Anderson, cousin of the groom. The bride was given away by her father; the ceremony taking place under an arch of evergreens. The groom's gift to the bride and the bride's gift to the groom were presented by the bride's cousin, Miss Ida Smith, of St. Mary's, who wore white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, W. Brown, of Amherstburg, while little Ernest Stevenson, of Melbourne, cousin of the bride, and Edith Elsie Moffat, both dressed in white, carried the basket of flowers. The wedding march was played by Miss Anderson, cousin of the groom. The bride was given away by her father; the ceremony taking place under an arch of evergreens. The groom's gift to the bride and the bride's gift to the groom were presented by the bride's cousin, Miss Ida Smith, of St. Mary's, who wore white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, W. Brown, of Amherstburg, while little Ernest Stevenson, of Melbourne, cousin of the bride, and Edith Elsie Moffat, both dressed in white, carried the basket of flowers. The wedding march was played by Miss Anderson, cousin of the groom. The bride was given away by her father; the ceremony taking place under an arch of evergreens. The groom's gift to the bride and the bride's gift to the groom were presented by the bride's cousin, Miss Ida Smith, of St. Mary's, who wore white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, W. Brown, of Amherstburg, while little Ernest Stevenson, of Melbourne, cousin of the bride, and Edith Elsie Moffat, both dressed in white, carried the basket of flowers. The wedding march was played by Miss Anderson, cousin of the groom. The bride was given away by her father; the ceremony taking place under an arch of evergreens. The groom's gift to the bride and the bride's gift to the groom were presented by the bride's cousin, Miss Ida Smith, of St. Mary's, who wore white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, W. Brown, of Amherstburg, while little Ernest Stevenson, of Melbourne, cousin of the bride, and Edith Elsie Moffat, both dressed in white, carried the basket of flowers. The wedding march was played by Miss Anderson, cousin of the groom. The bride was given away by her father; the ceremony taking place under an arch of evergreens. The groom's gift to the bride and the bride's gift to the groom were presented by the bride's cousin, Miss Ida Smith, of St. Mary's, who wore white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, W. Brown, of Amherstburg, while little Ernest Stevenson, of Melbourne, cousin of the bride, and Edith Elsie Moffat, both dressed in white, carried the basket of flowers. The wedding march was played by Miss Anderson, cousin of the groom. The bride was given away by her father; the ceremony taking place under an arch of evergreens. The groom's gift to the bride and the bride's gift to the groom were presented by the bride's cousin, Miss Ida Smith, of St. Mary's, who wore white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, W. Brown, of Amherstburg, while little Ernest Stevenson, of Melbourne, cousin of the bride, and Edith Elsie Moffat, both dressed in white, carried the basket of flowers. The wedding march was played by Miss Anderson, cousin of the groom. The bride was given away by her father; the ceremony taking place under an arch of evergreens. The groom's gift to the bride and the bride's gift to the groom were presented by the bride's cousin, Miss Ida Smith, of St. Mary's, who wore white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, W. Brown, of Amherstburg, while little Ernest Stevenson, of Melbourne, cousin of the bride, and Edith Elsie Moffat, both dressed in white, carried the basket of flowers. The wedding march was played by Miss Anderson, cousin of the groom. The bride was given away by her father; the