WHITHER ARE WE DRIFTING?

easiness in the conservative press as to what the future policy of the leaders will be. They seem to have lost sight of their guiding star, and to be becalmed and befogged. According to one of their oracles they are slowly drifting with the tide waiting for some favoring wind to fill their sails; one again sees them drifting upon the rocks of the liberal tariff reform; another warns them to beware of the quicksands toward which they seem to be driven; while yet another advises them to get out again into the open sea of protection, before destruction overtakes them. As a contemporary says: The growing extremely anxious over the situation. Those papers have no regard for principle or consistency. They are more anxious to keep the tories in power than they are to have the tariff reformed. They are not run by descendants of the man who said he would rather be right than be president; and consequently we find them hysterically calling upon Mr. Foster and his colleagues to save the party from defeat by sacrificing its policy. The Star seems to know the leaders of its party thoroughly. It wastes no time in making appeals to their sense of right at the polls is to be avoided. The Star leaders are quite willing that the consuming class of the dominion shall be robbed Gault type, provided such robbery does not put their offices in peril. It quotes the statements made by George C. Gibbons, of London, to the Free Press with the view of warning the conservative leaders that the reformers mean business. and that the ministers must change their policy or run the risk of being thrashed at the polls. What a high opinion the Star has of its party's leaders. It apparently thinks them an unprincipled lot of their convictions; sacrifice their friends and adopt free trade, all for the sake of office. Have the conservative leaders really sunk so low as the Star indicates? Have they neither principles nor convictions? Is it true that they cannot be induced to do right unless convinced that persistence in palpable wrongdoing means expulsion from office? Fancy an English liberal paper calling upon Mr. Gladstone to abandon his home rule policy to save his party from defeat. In their speeches in parliament and on the stump the conservative leaders have declared again and again that a re- young people intend following the exduction of the tariff would "ruin Canada's industries," make our country "a slaughter market" for American and English have a speedy and prosperous journey manufacturers; surrender the Canadian and reach the hub in safety! market to outsiders, and impoverish the country. Yet they are now called upon by some of their over zealous organs to invoke all these calamities for the sake of keeping themselves in office!

If the policy of protection is considered sound and just by the Canadian conservative leaders they ought not to abandon it because there is a popular outcry against it. But the Star appears to years. John Smith and Daniel DeWitt, have satisfied itself that the Thompson cabinet is composed of a rascally lot of time-servers who will do anything rather than abandon control of the public treasury; and as it wants these men to remain in office, and fears their adherence to McKinleyism may cause their expulsion, it tries to coerce them to take a new course by means of a "scare." So much for the honesty and sincerity of those tory organs which are urging the government to make an effort to humbug the people by petty and inconsequential tariff changes. Those papers do not oppose the Foster tariff because it restricts trade burdens industry and enables monopolists to plunder the people; but because its maintenance is likely to imperil the chances of the tory party at the next election. If the farmers, lumbermen, fishermen and other consuming classes would only consent to be robbed for the benefit of the Gaults, the Drummonds and the Masseys, the Star would be supremely happy. But as the Canadian people refuse to be plundered or humbugged, it thinks the tory party should abandon its policy and try something new. Possibly the man who abandoned the prohibition platform for a seat in a cabinet controlled by a whiskey ring would be quite willing to follow the counsel of his Montrea organ did he not know that a betrayal the present juncture would mean the annihilation of himself and his party. The men who are honestly demanding tariff reform are not going to be satisfied with such trumpery concessions as the monopolists will permit the government to make, and consequently the ministers will stick to those who provide them with

This is certainly an unhappy predicament for a great party to be in. Is it possible that in attempting to fool the people with pretensions of tariff reform the party leaders are also both beguiling and frightening their own satelites.

THE news from the lumber centres is most encouraging. The winter's operation for the province was an unusually successful one, and in spite of the rumors to the contrary by persons who did not know anything about it, there is plenty of water for driving purposes, and comparatively little lumber will be hung up in the streams. Generally speaking the season has been a profitable one from the operating standpoint. Of course the benefit to the lumber operators in particular, and to the province in general, will depend mainly upon the state of the market. It is to be regretted that the trade policy by which the country is burdened deprives the lumber industry, at the best, of a large share of the profits earned by the lumbermen, and always makes the business an uncertain on With any kind of fair show the people of New Brunswick should see fairly good times during the coming summer.
