CROFTS & JOHNSTON.

Stanley Branch Fall Show.

Friday was a beautiful day—moderately warm with balmy breezes blowing from the lake, tempering the autumnal atmosphere to a delicious medium betwixt heat and cold. On that day Bayfield had the advantage of good weather to exhibit herself in holiday attire, and the display made was highly creditable. The attendance was large, comprising people from Goderich Township, Stanley, Tuckersmith and Hullett, and the hotels were well provided with guests during the day. Mr. McCann's Exchange Hotel was the headquarters for the members of the committee, and he deserves great praise for the manner in which the dinner was gotten up. The Commercial seemed to be the gathering place for the gaily inclined, and through the afternoon a good-natured throng engaged in the pleasure of the dance in the spacious hall. The success of the day was complete, and last Friday will be recollected in Bayfield as a red letter date. One thing we noticed, however, which is to be regretted, and that was the presence of a number of sharks of the black leg stripe who plied their trade openly; but the good sense of the people insured the success of their efforts.

On reaching the ground we found a large number collected around the ring intent on criticising the horses on exhibition, and this feature of the farm yard seems to receive greater attention than anything else in this section, judging from the entries in the other classes. In sheep the entries were confined to three or four, and in pigs there were none. Cattle were represented by a small number of grades; but the lack in this respect was made up in the number and quality of the horses shown. The show of implements was pretty fair, Bell of St. George, Thomson & Williams of Mitchell, and J. R. Cryderman of Porter's Hill being the chief exhibitors in this class. R. J. Whitely of Goderich, showed three buggies and two double seated carriages of fine finish and build; Knox & Rothwell also showed a fine buggy, and Jas. Wheatam, Londesboro', exhibited a substantial and well finished farm wagon and double carriage. The entries in poultry were very limited.

The outside show was small, but on entering the exhibition building we were agreeably surprised to see the best show of farm produce that we have met with this year, particularly in grain, fruit and vegetables. In the former class there were 27 entries, and the quality was certainly excellent, every grain being full and plump and remarkably uniform in size. Potatoes were well represented, there being 15 entries, and these shown were large and will grown. Some monster beets were exhibited, making a very bulky appearance; carrots were not so numerous; turnips solid but not so large as in previous years; cabbages very large and of good quality; celery not well represented, but good. Fruit was exceedingly well represented, particularly in the classes of pears and winter apples. The peaches shown were small, with the exception of one plate of remarkable ones shown by Mr. Holmes of Clinton. Plums and grapes were not numerous, the latter being the most plentiful. In dairy produce there were no entries for cheese, but in butter the show was good, particularly in respect of quality. A very pretty feature was the show of bouquets, which were very tasteful arrangements of everlastings, asters, zinnias and other pretty flowers. Home-made bread was fully up to the mark of other shows, as well as honey and sweet-meats. The ladies' work department was replete with tasteful samples of feminine skill, and we might mention particularly the crochet work and embroidery. Messrs D. Cameron & Son showed a finely finished and strong set of double harness and an equally fine set of single, in the making of which, together with horse collars, this firm has earned a large reputation. Mr. Homan showed stoves and tinware, and Messrs. J. & T. Armstrong exhibited a quantity of coopers' work. We had almost forgotten to mention the display of corn, which was large and good. The inside show was decidedly the best we have yet seen, in the matter of grain and fruit, Stanley takes the palm so far in the line of farm produce. The following is the

THE SCIENCE OF ACCOUNTS.

DOCTOR JOHNSON, writing on the Science of Accounts, uses the following language, "This is a science which no condition of life can render useless, which must contribute to the advantage of all who keep or call, of all that wish to keep or improve their possessions, of all that desire to be rich, and all that desire to be wise."

The evils resulting from imperfect systems of Bookkeeping are great, and terminate in the insolvency and bankruptcy, not only of those who regulate their accounts by them, but also of innumerable unfortunate connected with these persons who have adopted imperfect systems of Bookkeeping. It is well known that a large proportion of the trading community adopt the old mode of single entry, on the disadvantages of which it is not necessary to enlarge, as it does not even pretend to be a means, fallacious as they are in principle, of making the Ledger agree with the Cash. The system of Double Entry generally in use is well calculated to cover fraudulent entries in the transactions of ordinary business, is troublesome to keep and perplexing to balance. Comparatively, these are but few mercantile men whose books are carefully balanced. Indeed it would seem that the strict balancing of books is of very secondary importance with the majority, who entirely omit taking any notice of such for the purpose of making an annual settlement of their affairs; and even many thinking men, who keep their books by double entry, find much difficulty in balancing them, owing to one or other small differences, and sometimes large ones, rather than go on forever examining the last twelve months' accounts. It is also common for small errors to be passed over as of no consequence; whereas the difference by the Italian system may be only the balance of numerous errors of uncertain amount, which may be exceedingly injurious, and should never be tolerated, especially in PARTNERSHIP CONCERNS. The question may now be pertinently asked, Why are so many students of Commercial Colleges found upon trial to be inadequate to the duties of a Bookkeeper? The answer is obvious,—the teachers generally are merely theoretic in their teaching;—wanting that thorough practical acquaintance with bookkeeping and business customs which actual experience alone can give. How necessary then is it that the teachers in these institutions (professedly established for the purpose of a practical knowledge of Bookkeeping,) should themselves be practical men. With these facts before us, it is of importance that the many hundreds of young men who are annually coming into business life should have a thorough knowledge of accounts, and especially of that important matter, the BALANCING OF BOOKS. Parents and Guardians should maturely consider this, and take care that the youths who are under their guidance shall study this science, as their services will not only become more valuable at the desks of their employers, but when they commence business for themselves, more conducive of success.

All admit the importance of KEEPING BOOKS simply and correctly, and most young men entering into business are anxious to become well-qualified Book-keepers, but others are slow to obtain the requisite training, as the problem.

Let the practical philosophy of these facts be expressed on the young Men of Canada, then shall Commercial Colleges receive their true station among the institutions of our land.

JAMES E. DAY,
Accountant.
