A terrible scene occurred in the Austrian Parliament some years ago member made a twelve hours reech with the object of obstructing Bill that it was proposed to pass into law. A member who had had nough of the "tank" node a grab to be President's bell, and was promptly eized by other members. A fierc truggle ensued, members being guilty f the most outrageous violence. One man had half of his hair torn out of he roots, while another was nearly throttled. Chairs were flung all over he place, and one member drew an vil-looking knife and, brandishing it loft, shouted, "I will stab all who pproach me!" The knife was wrenched from his hand before he could use it.

Off With His Head.

In earlier times it was the custom commit a British political prisoner o the Tower of London, where he was ften shortened by a head by means f the ill-famed axe and block. More ecently he was transported to the nemorable Botany Bay, or one of the ther British penal colonies, but now hat transportation is a thing of the ast he is either shut up in the House f Commons itself or in the ordinary ails of the Kingdom. There is room or two prisoners only at St. Stephen's nd any beyond that number would robably be boarded out at Holloway r Pentonville

The Parliamentary "cells" are tuated 30 feet up in the Clock Towof the Commons, and they are relete with every modern convenience nd command an admirable view of he Thames, the Embankment, and New Palace Yard. Each "cell" conists of a comfortably furnished siting-room, measuring about 19 feet by 4 feet, and a couple of bedrooms, one or the prisoner and the other for his ailer. All food is supplied by the efreshment department of the Comnons, but the prisoners are obliged to ay for their meals.
