That is What the People Say

Pleasing the Convalescent.

BY RUTH CAMERON.

It is most unpleasant to be very sick. It is sometimes even more unpleasant to get well. Of course, you understand that I refer not to the fact of getting well, but to the process. A convalescent ought to be very grateful and happy, but he is more likely to be unhappy, impatient and very hard to please.

The way to succeed in pleasing the convalescent is to put yourself in his place, try to imagine his limitations, his weakness, and the scarcity of his interests, and then devise something which would please you under similar conditions.

An intelligent visitor suggested that her sick friend's bed be moved close up to the street without lifting her head from the pillow. This had previously been so placed that the convalescent could only look out when sitting up, and then on a patch of uneventful garden, instead of into the street with its movement and activity.

This convalescent received many gifts of flowers, fruit, magazines, etc., during her illness, but she afterwards declared that none meant so much to her as the gift of the intelligent suggestion. She was too weak to sit up or read much; she could not be constantly attended; and time hung cruelly heavy. To be able by merely turning her head on the pillow to see the simple but interesting drama of the neighborhood life as it was enacted on the street below, was an invaluable diversion.

Anything which occupies the convalescent's mind in a pleasant and not too exciting manner is invaluable. Instead of giving an invalid cut flowers, give him a growing plant with plenty of buds and half-open blossoms upon it. In addition to his pleasure in the beauty of the flowers he will also enjoy watching the development of the plant.

When giving books or magazines be sure to pick out those in which the print is coarse and there are plenty of pictures. When the body is weak, the eyes are likely to be weak also, and much steady reading is usually bad for invalids. A fashion magazine full of beautiful illustrations delighted a sick friend of mine more than any other of the reading matter she received, because it did not tax her eyes to look through it.

A bit of interesting news, an amusing story or a scrap of harmless gossip, often pleases an invalid as much as a material gift, because it gives him something to think about after his visitor has gone. A friend of mine who has had a good deal of experience in sick rooms, and is always a most welcome visitor therein, says that whenever she is going to visit an invalid she makes a point of gathering together all such interesting scraps from the four corners of her mind.

Youth, old age and convalescence are the days of little things. Little things disappoint and little things please. Remember this when you have to deal with a convalescent.

Household Notes.

Things that are good for your skin are all green vegetables, particularly spinach, onions, eschaloats, eggs, and nearly all fresh fruit.

When baking pies, either fruit or meat, place the pie in a tin with a little cold water. It will save the syrup or gravy from boiling out.

Mussed pieces of tissue paper are excellent to clean mirrors. First rub the mirror with a damp cloth, then polish with the paper.

If table silver is placed in hot soapsuds immediately after being used and dried with a soft cloth, much of the work of polishing will be saved.

Rubber bands are inexpensive and are of great use in preparing lunches to fasten the waxed paper around sandwiches, cakes, fruit, etc.

The combination of potatoes with other vegetables to form a salad offers infinite variety and a chance to utilize small amounts of vegetables.

A safe laxative for children is two soaked figs that have remained in a little water overnight. These are eaten in the morning before breakfast.

When baking, the scissors are useful; a snip and the biscuit dough is quickly apportioned; a quick cut and the drop cookie falls into place on the baking tin.

Nothing will clean and sweeten a sink better than a strong solution of washing soda, and the refrigerator likewise should frequently be washed with this.

If you are arranging short-stemmed flowers, throw into the water a number of ordinary bottle corks. These will buoy up the flowers, keeping them in position.

To clean brass that has been exposed to the weather, make a paste of salt and common vinegar; rub the brass with the mixture and leave for ten minutes. Then clean in the usual way.

Even when there is cream in the coffee, the stains can be removed from the most delicate silk or woolen fabric.

Headaches and Heart Trouble

Nervous Prostration of Three Years
 Suffered Cured a Year Ago by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Anyone who knows the discouragement and despair which accompanies the helplessness of nervous prostration will appreciate the gratitude felt by the writer of this letter.

Mrs. H. C. Jones, Scotch Lake, N. B., writes: "I suffered from nervous prostration for nearly three years. I had frequent headaches, had no appetite and was troubled with my heart. After consulting two doctors, without obtaining satisfactory results, I began the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and was completely cured by his treatment. It is nearly a year since I was cured, and I want others to know of this splendid medicine. I now attend to my housework with pleasure and comfort, and am glad to have the opportunity of recommending Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

At least some benefit is bound to be derived from each dose of this grand cure, as day by day it forms new blood, and builds up the system. 50 cents a box, 5 for $2.50, all dealers or Callahan, Glass & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Heir to her Mother's Title.

None of the family histories of the British peerage surpasses that of the Duke of Norfolk in romantic interest. The first title in the family was the feudal title of the Earl of Arundel, granted about 1155 and confirmed in 1433. The seventh and eight earls were attainted and beheaded, and John Mowbray, the first baron of that title was proclaimed a traitor, but later was restored to favor. The 18th earl was attainted, but the title was restored to the 19th, who later was created Earl of Norfolk.

The dukedom had its beginning in the house of Mowbray, the sixth baron or that title being made Duke of Norfolk in 1307. The fifth duke, dying without male issue, the title became extinct, but was later revived for Sir John Howard, who had married a daughter of the fifth duke and who also became earl marshal of England. The family suffered heavily under Henry VII and Henry VIII, several members of it being executed. The titles, too,

Where's Mother.

When father came from work at night,
 Before he'd wash his hands and face
 Or hang his hat upon the peg,
 His glance would wander round the place
 And if dear mother's sunny head
 Was not within his vision's ken,
 He'd search for her from room to room
 He'd stop and ask:
 "Where's mother?"
 But if he found her in her chair
 He'd pester of about the lot,
 And pick a mess of early greens
 Or fix a chicken for the pot;
 He'd mend a fence, or set a hen,
 Or do some other homely chore,
 With only now and then a glance
 Toward the half-open kitchen door.
 That seemed to ask:
 "Where's mother?"
 When mother left us sorrowing
 He followed her within a day;
 And while we laid white flowers around
 His smooth-brushed hair, as white
 as they,
 We could but think that when the light
 And beauty of that wondrous place
 Burst on his newly-quicken'd gaze,
 He must have raised an eager face
 And simply asked:
 "Where's mother?"
