The Tariff Deputation.

A number of manufacturers waited upon members of the Dominion Government yesterday to ask for a revision of the tariff. They presented a schedule of duties, prepared by themselves, for the private consideration of the Cabinet. The Minister of Finance refused the confidence, and asked that the schedule be made public. The motive of the Manufacturers' Association for wishing secrecy in this matter is the fear that a counter-agitation will be provoked if the exact nature of its demands becomes known. This is frankly admitted by Mr. Birge, president of the association, who was the chief spokesman for the deputation. A section of the public, he said, was still wedded to old free trade ideas, and the association feared its schedule would not receive fair criticism. The Minister of Finance promptly rejected such a plea, and insisted that the public be fully informed. In this he was doing a public duty, as the interests affected by the tariff are a great deal wider and more important than those represented by the gentlemen who framed the secret schedule. Mr. Fielding announced that he had received letters from other manufacturers, who desired the tariff left as it was, fearing that the demands of the association if granted, would be disturbing and hurtful. The representations from both parties are entitled to consideration, and in coming to a conclusion the Government will be guided by general and not particular interests.

The grounds upon which a revision of the tariff is asked by the Manufacturers' Association are unique in the fiscal history of Canada. The last time a Liberal Government was urged to increase the duties by a body of manufacturers was over 25 years ago, during a period of acute depression. Protection was then advocated as a panacea for hard times. No such pretense can now be put forward. Mr. Birge admits that "Canada is prosperous as never before." The deputation had to fall back upon the argument that hard times were coming, and that a higher tariff was necessary to roll back the deluge of American goods which would otherwise be dumped on this unhappy country when the reaction set in. It was stated that hard times had commenced in Great Britain and Germany and were soon to come in the United States. As a matter of fact Germany is just emerging from a spell of serious depression under an almost prohibitive tariff, and British trade and industry are booming. In the United States there is not the least sign of the approaching storm. It seems to be visible only to the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. The present universal prosperity must be followed by a universal depression, and no tariff barriers, however high, will shield any country against it. Will anyone say that the National Policy saved off hard times in Canada? Everyone knows that for a considerable period before 1896, hundreds of factories were idle and thousands of artisans unemployed. There would be some plausibility in a demand for increased protection at such a time, but the request is incomprehensible when the factories of the country are working overtime and cannot keep up with orders, and when labor is so scarce that the Manufacturers' Association asks to be allowed to import it. The present tariff crusade has the appearance of a "hold-up," an attempt not to secure increased business for Canadian industries because they have admittedly all they can attend to, but to raise prices on the consumers. There may be individual industries which are not receiving equality of treatment with the others, and the Government will no doubt redress these grievances if they exist, but the difficulty of treating all alike is insuperable under any tariff system. For instance, the shirt and collar manufacturers pointed out that they had no protection at all because the duty on their raw material, cottons, was equal to the protection on the finished product. At the same time the cotton manufacturers are asking an increase in the cotton duties. Again, the makers of neckwear complain that they pay 20 per cent on their raw material and have a protection of only 23½ per cent. In other words they are 6½ per cent worse off than under free trade. The duty on one article may touch scores of manufacturing processes related to it. It will be seen that the Government has many conflicting interests to consult and harmonize before it can in justice to all lay a hand on the tariff.

United States Politics.

The United States Senate has wound up the session in public disgrace. It ratified the Cuban treaty, but rendered it useless by an amendment requiring the assent of next year's Congress. It also refused to grant tariff concessions to the Philippines, although Governor Taft declared these were necessary to save the islands from a crisis which would inflict starvation on a multitude of natives. President Roosevelt pleaded eloquently for both the Cubans and Filipinos, declaring that the honor of the American people was involved. The Senate also threw out the Hay-Bond traps and refused to touch reciprocity in any form. This is a blow at Newfoundland, and should promote the sentiment in the island in favor of entering the Canadian Confederation. The Senate, in these matters, deliberately affronted the President, and the Administration. It is no longer a secret that President Roosevelt is at open war with the machine of his party, and is the object of intense dislike by Republican senators and congressmen who resent his self-assertion and his high-minded and independent use of patronage. They lose no opportunity to discredit him. The President is not the man to turn the other cheek, and well-informed observers predict a tremendous storm in the Republican party before the next election. Roosevelt is a popular hero, and with the masses behind him can defeat any combination. He starts out in a few days on a speaking tour, which will cover more territory than any president of the United States has ever attempted. It will be in the nature of a boom for his re-nomination in 1904, and will probably decide the issues of the campaign.

Senator McMullen now appears as an out-and-out advocate of higher protection. The searier air of the upper chamber hasn't clarified his economic ideas.

The Women's Immigration Society of England is vigorously engaged in supplying the Canadian matrimonial market. The women of Canada might invoke the alien labor law, but it is not likely that they resent competition, much less fear it.

"Resolved, that the Senate of the State of Nebraska, hereby desiring to commemorate the 17th day of March, A. D. 1903, do hereby commend that policy of the present King of Great Britain, which has for its purpose the relief of the peasant class of Ireland."

The King will enjoy a hearty laugh when he gets this. The Senators of Nebraska still have a George the Third conception of the British monarchy. The King of Great Britain today has no policy except that of his ministers. At least it is good policy on his part not to show any other.

The World hints that those Tory "stenographers," who were in the play, supposed to be lying in a dark room behind a piano, diligently making a verbatim report of an alleged conversation between "Cap" Sullivan and Gamey, don't like to talk about their feat. And yet the doing of such a thing would be something to talk about, especially to practical stenographers. — Hamilton Times.

So it would. The best stenographer in the world would have difficulty in catching a running conversation verbatim, even if he had everything convenient. According to Gamey, these shorthand writers were lying down behind piano cases in a dim light. Their original notes of the Gamey-Sullivan confab will be decidedly interesting to the profession.

The judgment in the East Middlesex election case is being freely commented upon by the Opposition press. These critics profess to be puzzled because Mr. Clark, in Center Bruce, was unseated through the act of an agent in treating a voter, while Dr. Routledge escaped. They must have hazy notions of the principles of law. Are judges not to take motives into account? In Center Bruce the judges found a corrupt intent in the treating. In East Middlesex there could be no suspicion of wrong motives. As the trial judges point out, Dr. Routledge, in the practice of his profession, was constantly traveling about, and was in the habit of treating his friends liberally, though himself a total abstainer. Before the election he consulted a solicitor and was told there was nothing illegal in the custom, which he, therefore, continued, but in a more moderate way. It will be remembered that Mr. Richard Tooley, the former member for East Middlesex, was vindicated on precisely the same grounds when his seat was protested. The law must be construed in the light of special circumstances, and not applied rigidly and mechanically, without regard to the spirit of the act. The veiled attacks on Chief Justice Falconbridge and Justice Maclellan are not to be wondered at, however, when the leader of the Opposition sets the example by assailing in the Legislature the Supreme Court judges.

The other day, when Gamey made his play in the Legislature and before it knew how Mr. Whitney would steer, the London Free Press very naturally took strong ground for a judicial inquiry and the immediate adjournment of the Legislature till the case should be disposed of. Of course, the Free Press was astounded when it found that its editorial, forcible as it was, was a slap in the face to Mr. Whitney, and now it is backing and giggling to try to get itself in line with its leader. Some people have a theory that the leading Tory papers had been fully informed in advance as to the outline of the Gamey-Whitney conspiracy, and that so sure were they that the Government would insist on referring the matter to the Parliamentary Committee that they prepared their articles appealing that course, and Whitney had to change front so quickly that he forgot to cut out that part about "loading the dice," which he had intended to use in speaking of placing the investigation in the hands of a committee, a majority of whom would be Liberals. Certainly Whitney's break and the London Free Press' article give color to that theory. But in any event the organ's predicament is very amusing, accustomed as it is to "hopping from side to side."

THE KING IS UNWELL

London Post Advises Balfour to Renounce Premiership.

London, March 20.—The Post says King Edward's health is by no means as good as could be desired. Court officials, according to the Post, are commenting on the worn, tired look which is continually on his face. The Post today suggests that Premier Balfour accept a peerage, with the foreign secretaryship, vacating the premiership in favor of Mr. Chamberlain.

"It is almost the only alternative to dissolution," says the paper.

Bank Loan Rates.

Montreal, Que., March 20.—The bank rate on call loans which was reduced from 6 to 5½ per cent on Feb. 11, has been restored to the 6 per cent basis, which prevailed all last winter during a period when money was not only scarce but dear.

ONE LUNG

May be gone and yet the remaining lung will be amply sufficient to sustain a vigorous activity. As a general thing few people make more use of both lungs than is equivalent to a healthy use of one lung.

These facts are all in the favor of the man or woman with weak lungs, even when disease has a strong grip on them. Many a person living in health to-day has the lungs marked by the healed scars of disease.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes weak lungs strong. It cures obstinate, deep-seated coughs, bronchitis, bleeding lungs and other conditions, which, if neglected or unskillfully treated, find a fatal termination in consumption.

It had been tried with disease and pleurisy years and the trouble had almost become chronic. A. S. Elam, of Howe, Ia., "had several kinds of medicine from different physicians without benefit. At last wrote to Dr. R. V. Pierce and got his advice, and began using his Golden Medical Discovery." I have used twenty-five bottles. When I commenced taking it I had no hope, but I made a stupor hump. Now I feel better than I did before I got sick. Have a good appetite and am able to do my work. I sincerely recommend Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery to all who are afflicted as I was."

Those who suffer from chronic diseases are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence strictly private. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets assist the action of the "Discovery."

Bank Wrecker Arrested.
Philadelphia, Pa., March 20.—George B. White, vice-president of the South Pennsylvania National Bank of Hyde-man, Bedford county, Pa., was arrested today by Federal officers on a charge of conspiracy to wreck the bank. He is accused of looting the institution of $25,000. White was held in $5,000 bail for hearing.

QUIET SESSION

IN THE COMMONS

Most of the Time Spent by Committee in Supply.

THE SENATE ON MR. TARTE

The Hon. Mr. Scott and Sir Mackenzie Bowell Discuss His Dismissal.

Ottawa, March 19.—Most of the time of the house today was spent in committee of supply, a number of items on account of civil government being voted. The Opposition criticised the Government's methods of grading the increases of salaries in the civil service, and making appointments by making provision for them in the estimates with the phrase "notwithstanding anything in the civil service act."

The Premier could not say just when the redistribution bill would be introduced, but it would be at an early date.

IN THE SENATE.

In the senate, on the orders of the day being called, Hon. R. W. Scott was present for a time, but was forced to leave early. He found that Todd said that when a minister resigned his position, but retained his seat in his own house, the reason of his retention could not be explained in the other house. There had been a very full explanation in another place, and in Mr. Scott's letters of October last. Commencing with the Finance Minister's declaration in the house in March last, Mr. Scott traced the leaving of the minister for London. Mr. Tarte had been invited to address many meetings during the summer, and intimated that the imposition of a higher tariff would be advantageous to the country. During the Premier's absence he was informed of this, and on his return to Canada he met Mr. Tarte, when mutual explanations took place, ending in Mr. Tarte's tendering his resignation. He read Mr. Tarte's letter of Oct. 20, and the Premier's answer on the next day. He dwelt on the necessity of unanimity of view in the council. Whatever independence might exist in the council chamber, there must be unity outside. Mr. Tarte's explanation seemed to him sufficient. He wished to make no comment on it. Mr. Tarte left in harmony and good will with his colleagues. Mr. Sutherland took his place as Minister of Public Works, and Mr. Prefontaine went to the department of Marine and Fisheries.

Leaves an Estate Valued at $400,000 to His Family.

Buffalo, March 20.—The will of Arthur R. Pennell, who was killed in his automobile, was filed yesterday. It appoints his wife executrix, and in case she should not survive him, he appoints his mother and brothers executors. After making a number of bequests to relatives and to his lawyer, he bequeaths the remainder of his estate to his wife, mother and brother in equal parts. In case his wife does not survive him, the estate goes to his mother and brother in equal parts. A superficial estimate of the combined value of the estate places it at about $400,000. The will is dated June 5, 1902.

King'smill's

OFFERED TARIFF IN CONFIDENCE

Remarkable Statement by the Manufacturers' Assoc'n.

IN CONFERENCE AT OTTAWA

But Mr. Fielding Insists the Public Should Be Acquainted With the Schedule.

Ottawa, March 20.—One of the most remarkable dialogues in the recent political history of Canada occurred at the Parliament buildings yesterday morning during a hearing given by the Premiers and the Ministers of Finance and Customs to the representatives of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, which, with 1,218 members, representing over four millions of invested capital, is an organization of very great influence.

Mr. Cyrus Birge, of Hamilton, the president, presented the plea of the members for an immediate and general revision of the tariff. The Premier was present for a time, but was forced to leave early. The dialogue between Mr. Fielding and Mr. Birge followed an offer of a tariff, in confidence, embodying the views of the manufacturers. He said that the association was not in politics, but desired to advance its own interests, and that of Canada. He freely admitted that Canada was prospering as it never did before, but while not a pessimist, there were evidences that hard times were at hand. There was no immediate danger, while the home demand taxed to the utmost the capabilities of the manufacturers in the United States and Germany, but when the domestic demand fell off, Canada would be deluged with the surplus products of those countries at low prices.

The present was, therefore, regarded as an opportune time to take advantage of the situation, and prevent, as far as possible, the trouble that was bound to occur when the slump came in the United States. The work of harmonizing the various interests in the Manufacturers' Association had been heavy, and was not yet completed.

A READY-MADE TARIFF. They had succeeded to a degree which was almost marvelous, and they were prepared to give the Government, in confidence, the schedules embodying their recommendations respecting the tariff when completed.

Mr. Fielding—Why in confidence? Mr. Birge—For this reason, Mr. Fielding: we assume that it has never been the practice of the Government to state what changes it proposes to make.

Mr. Fielding—You are not speaking of what we propose, but what you propose. Why should you propose it in confidence?

Mr. Birge—Because we don't think it would be wise for us to submit these schedules unless they are given for the use of the Government in confidence.

THE PUBLIC ALSO INTERESTED. Mr. Fielding—We shall be very glad to get the benefit of your valuable labor in harmonizing these different interests, but it is very desirable that the public should know what you propose.

Mr. Birge—We have not completed the schedules as yet, and the feeling of the association, for whom I am speaking, was that the Government would desire to use the information confidentially, for their own purposes.

Mr. Fielding—I can tell you at once that it is a mistake. The Government desires to have the information and to use it, but they prefer to have it publicly, so that the world at large may know what is proposed.

Mr. Birge said the schedules were not completed, but they could be finished in a very short time.

Mr. Fielding—It was the word "confidence" I objected to because I did not see why we should receive it in that way.

OLD FREE TRADE IDEAS. Mr. Birge—The association feel that it should be received in confidence because—may as well speak frankly—there is perhaps a tradition or otherwise, a section of the public that is still wedded to old ideas, old free trade ideas, and it is hard to get away from them.

Mr. Fielding—Then you should try to educate them.

Mr. Birge replied that the association was now conducting an educational campaign. The manufacturers, perhaps, would not be insisting upon the information which they had prepared being used in confidence if they could be assured that it would be accorded fair criticism on publication.

Mr. Fielding—We all have to submit to criticism. We have to take the good with the bad.

Before the deputation withdrew there was some informal discussion upon the question as to whether the schedules should be made public, and it was announced that the executive would take the matter into consideration.

PARCEL POST WITH THE U. S.

Have Long Wanted an Agreement With Americans, But the Latter Will Not Assent.

London, March 20.—There was an unusually large attendance in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon, when the house went into committee to debate the vote for the account of the civil service, in expectation of Colonial Secretary Chamberlain giving some interesting details of his South African tour.

However, the Colonial Secretary said that until the arrival of further papers which were now on their way to London, he had nothing to add to what already is known. He said that 100,000 Boers had been repatriated, and the Government is giving the new colonies under the peace terms and as military compensation, the remarkable aggregate of $75,000,000 towards the expenses of their resettlement.

Replying to a question, Postmaster-General Austen Chamberlain said the postoffice had long desired to conclude a parcel post agreement with the United States, but had been unable to obtain American assent. Recently, however, the United States had proposed reopening the negotiations and communications on the subject are now being exchanged.

MINERS EXPECT VICTORY

The Commission May Recommend a Ten Per Cent Advance.

Tamaqua, Pa., March 20.—Mine Worker leaders here say they have received word from their headquarters that the strike commission in its report to the President has recommended that a flat increase of 10 per cent be granted the miners. They are instructing the men to hand in a report to their leaders, setting forth the amount due them, dating the advance from Oct. 1, 1902. Nearly all the locals are holding meetings tonight, at which it is proposed to extend votes of thanks to the commission for its efforts in their behalf.
