TWO BODIES TAKEN FROM ST. CLAIR

River at Sarnia Gives Up Remains of George Fralick and Alex. Stewart.

Police Say Stewart Met His Death, Accidentally, But an Inquest Will Be Held.

[By Our Own Man.] Sarnia, Aug. 24.—The St. Clair River gave up some of its dead last night and this morning, and the bodies of Alex. Stewart, a former Grand Trunk brakeman, of 426 Clinton street, Toronto, the young man who fell off the Huronic two weeks ago at the dock here, and of George Fralick, the Sarnia blacksmith, who met with a fearful death on Sunday last in the propellers of the steamer Joseph Butler, are at Phillips' undertaking rooms awaiting disposal.

Finding of Stewart. Stewart's body was found by Mr. W. J. Constable near the Cleveland Mills last evening about 7 o'clock while out in his gasoline launch. It was towed to Baker's wharf, when Chief Crawford took charge of the remains. Stewart's nose was broken, Mrs. M. McLeod and Miss Wynnie his eyes were discolored, and there McLeod have returned home after a was a bad bruise on his temple. Dr. week's visit with friends at Glenelg, Bradley, the coroner, decided to hold an inquest. It is not known whether he met with foul play, or whether he the effects. Fifteen cents was all the money found on the body. Seen Two Weeks Ago. About two weeks ago, Stewart went into the barroom of the Chapman House, and asked the bartender, Alex. Sinclair, if he could leave his dinner pail there. He was granted permis sion, and went his way. Since that time he had not been seen until his body was found last evening. Today Chief Crawford took charge of the dinner pail. A meal, badly mildewed, was all that was found. An Investigation. Chief Crawford has continued his investigation into the drowning of Alex. The Second Body. The second body, that of George Fralick, the young blacksmith who was drowned on Sunday last, was located this morning in Lake Huron, near the entrance to the River St. Clair. Word was sent to Sarnia that a body was floating there, and P. C. Alex, Caverly, Frank Goodwin and J E. Hughson went after it. The Marine Corps of Port Huron had in the meantime picked it up, and were bringing it to Port Huron. P. C. Cavthey were brought back to Sarnia.

Fearfully Mangled. The body was fearfully mangled. The right arm was severed at the shoulder, and the forehead was cut off. Several other bad gashes were found on the corpse. Every stitch of clothing was removed from the body. It was taken to Phillip's undertaking-rooms, and Coroner Bradley notified. For a while it was thought that the body floating in the lake might be that of William Stewart, a brother of Alex. Stewart's, who has been miss ing for a couple of weeks. However, the identification of the remains as those of the unfortunate George Fralick, has been made. HOLIDAY ON 'CHANGE.
