Dublin Employers Refuse To Settle

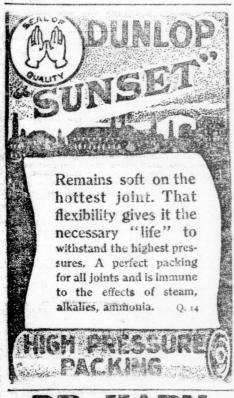

[Canadian Press.]

Dublin, Ireland, Oct. 7 .- The deadlock between the employers and the striking transport workers here is complete, and there seems to be no prospect of an immediate settlement of the dispute.

George Askwith, the official "strike breaker," and his fellow commissioners of the board of trade, submitted to both sides proposals to form the basis of direct negotiations between the disputants.

The report of the commissioners condemn the demand made by the employers that the men shall undertake not to join the transport workers' union, and at the same time con-
