reigns; they dressed their windows with white insure the in the part of the school they be a could flags; they redsed up their children in their time, rashly rescol their lives by grouping to madely and prolonged from house to house the multi- on floot or on the sectors. On the Place de Complied cries of "Long live our liberators! Down corde, and individually we range cockade which with the tyrant! Long live the Bourbons". The the people migh look upon as a symbol of trea-astonished, and, as it undecided between the hisassumance, and, as a undeclared of everence of the property of the property of the property of the specially of the people, or by Newdown if they failed, they poleon was in their eyes the great culprat of the bad no other salve, or by an evan in the complicity invasion which protated the stones of their cay, of the Emperor All van let. This it was neces-The calm and affecting attitude of the sover-signs, the discipline of their troops, the polite-ness of the generals, the mole-by of the conque-rors, the miracle of the capital thus respected, of those traing oil hearths, of those peaceful possesions, of those monuments undefied, of those magazines wide open,—while not a hand date touch the riches with which they were filled, that armed National Guard which formed a barrier around this forcent of northern hordes, this police, this security, these tranquil visages, these signs of juy; these festival banners in the pied rather than conquered,—made the people pass from consternation to grantude, and to the enthusiasm of their security in this bewilderment of their imagination and their senses. The elightest impulsion would have driven them to territory would have been invaded without resolutions the most unexpected the evening before. Without knowing in reality the meaning the usual premainary occurrences of the state than these two distorters. In order to be prepared for all events, the they mingled with them tamely and olinda, as Shan had formed a corps of 30,000 men, inif out of complaisance towards some unknown tended to act in the southern part of the object which presented itself to them for the solution of their uncertainties.

Nevertheless, this royaust movement (conceived in some chateaux and in some horels got leapture of Bushite. Or hearing this news up that morning only by some young men and the Shan assembled the Divan, and it was some old members of the ancient nobarty, favor- testived that the corps commanded by Mired by some literary men, agreed to and encour-aged by some ambitious ones, eager to desert aza. Meheme I Kahn should move torward the Emprey, and to offer their services to a new and take a post on to cover the province of sovereign) did not communicate useff, without l'arsistant of which the English had occumurmurs and without resistance amongst the pied the coast in such an expected manner. people. Some blashed at this manifestation of C the 7th of January Fezlah Kiran, who real and profound harved of the Empire, as he commands the first division of the army of ing a shan, ful and compulsory homage to their the South, quitted Kashan, his head quare-conquerors. Others looked on such displays as tors, by orders received from Teheran, with unreflecting, impredent, and as likely to form, his first brigade, to proceed to the defile of i on the morrow, lists of proscription against Paris. The greater number were actually ignorant whom and for what the royalists were expending so much ardent enthusiasm. Guidren Khan, who commands the second brigade under the Republic, youths under the Consulate, of his division, and who was at Hamadan. men under the Empire—they knew nothing of to march to the place and join h.m. These : "The Russian embassador, M. de Kour-the history of their country but the revolution, orders were panetually attended to, and by takin, visited the prison of St. Lezare, had the history of their country but the revolution, orders were particularly the conquests, and the reverses of the Emperor the last accounts the two generals were this shull box in his hand at the moment that The friends of the absent family of the Bourbons is gether on the 14th January in the protection of the prison in which sacceeded but with difficulty, and by taking vince of Farsistan, whitner Muza Meheinstein women were confined for theft. One of the before the eyes of the Emperor of Russia some other divisions. The Moniteur de Particular women, seeing it, fell into fits. After she had been brought round, she was questioned that particular women, seeing it, fell into fits. After she had been brought round, she was questioned as to what had such an effect upon her. Restoration. One thing alone was succeed and ume and significance. The assemblages to a unitary of the second the princes. Since tered them multiplies around the princes. Since the difference in the lands, displayed them to the experience and experts the difference in the lands, displayed them to the most distance of the dignity of a compacted people, the work of the solvent is men who beet the mist celebrate hours and recollections were regional them to pronounce a ward there were them to pronounce a ward that world free their souls from the voke of the Empire, and restore to them the kings of their tathers. They had been the Victorian and the Prince them to pronounce a ward that world free their souls from the voke of the Empire, and restore to them the kings of their tathers. They had the place of a miser be the energy and bodiless of their funds, and the cockados amongst the crowd their funds, wards white cockados amongst the crowd their tathers. They had the place of a miser be the energy and bodiless of their funds, wards white ribbons at the ends of their race of Bosibon was rather a worship than a houses, raplied to these crees and these estants is simple preference. It was assistent power than houses, raplied to these crees and these estants is simple preference. It was assistent power than a kingle of the interpretation of the control of t houses, replied to these cries and these significantly simple preference. It was less their power than by similar demonstrations. They chapped their their history that they so is it to regular with the hands to encourage the royalists; they bowed wings of their former days. On that marring houses only presented one color and one voice, [son, and pumsh with death. Bit carried away by impatience, and knowing that revolutions The people of these quarters appeared to be idemand a devotion regardless of consequences, they had ventaged their lives for their ancient

A letter from Teheran to the 3rd of Janvary, ria Russia, states that Isa Khan, who governed the town of Herat in the name of the Shah, after having defended it against the Persian troops, has been assassinated by an Afighan.

The Monteur de l'Armee publishes some interesting details relative to the movements of the Persian troops. The Court of Teheran was aware of the departure of the British squadron for the Persian Gulf long before its arrival, but it did not expect its empire. Such was the position of ulairs, (when he heard at the same time of the arrival of the British expedition and the Zindjeran, on the frontiers of Farsistan. At! the same time he commanded Emineh; Restoration. One thing atone was sincere and profound amongst the reflecting part of the contary, the entire Persian population | It's so trightful, she said, she see a souff lation,—weariness of the Empire, and harred of training at the contary, the entire Persian population | It's so trightful, she said, she see a souff lation,—weariness of the Empire, and harred of training training to the contary, the entire Persian population | It's so trightful, she said, she said, exists another defile equally celebrated, in the centre of which flows the river Bendema, which the first column of Feziali Khan's first division occupies at this moment. The plan now adopted to cover the province has always succeeded. Mirza Mehemed Khan, the Commander-in-chief. is to establish his head quarters at Shirazi the capital of Farsistan, which is still one of the finest towns in Persia. Shiraz is sitnate on a small river called the Racknabad, to the midst of a fertile valley, defended by high morntains and by a girdle of hills, which forms a strategetic line difficult of This valley is about 20 miles long and 10 broad, and its fertility is remarkable. The works of the citidel, constructed by Kerim Khan in 1768, and repaired by Feth Alı Shah in 1795, were in a great part destroyed by the terrible earthquake of 1813, and again in 1921, which left ineffaceable traces. The fortifications were repaired by Maliomed Shah in 1829, and in 1935, with several emprovements on the original plan by a European engineer. The fortifications consist of a brick wall 10 feet thick by 21 high, flanked by 10 round towers, with batteries en barbette, together with a wide and deep duch all round. The town is defeuded by a vast citadel, which serves as an arsenal, These works, though well covered, are badly armed. Shiraz, independently of its deticions climate, its monuments, and its women, celebrated for their beauty throughout Asia, merits the attention of the scientific world for giving birth to the two greatest poets of Persia-Sadi, with died at 100 years of age in 1296, and Hafiz, who died in 1389. The monument of the latter poet has survived all the vicissitudes of his native c'v. The ruits of Persepolls, the ancient capital of Persia, are 30 miles from Shiraz. There are several other towns in Farsistan worthy of attention besides Shiraz, such as Yezd. Aberkhoud, Kazeroun, Fer-ozabad, and Darebjerd. Bushire, lately captured by the British tmops, is the most important town on the Persian Gulf. It is in some measure separated from the remainder of the province, and is surrounded by tribes who were never completely subdued by the Shah. The British army is in an excellent position, having established an intrenched the same time ac commands the second bugade mirably fortified, secure against any attack.

as to what had such an effect upon her. It's so trightful,' she said, 'to see a souff