materially decreased, which is a proof of the excellent character of the investments of the company and the promptness with which the interest thereon has been pald.
James Thorburn M. D., medical director, presented a full and interesting report of the mortality experience of the company from its organization. which showed that great care had been exercised in the selection of the company's business.

The consulting actuary reported that he had made an independent examination of the affairs of the company as at December 31st, 1898, having examined the books, accounts, and balance sheet, also a detailed copy of the annual report to the Insurance Department, and stated that he warr much craffied with the result very much gratified with the result of such examination, also with the thorough system of the work of every thorough system of the work of every department throughout the office. He commended the company for closing its books promptly at the end of the year, as had been its custom from organization, and stated that not withstanding the large amount paid the policy-holders during the year, another substantial gain had been made in the net surplus, now amounting to $474.029.08 or it made up on ing to $474,029.08 or if made up on the same basis as that generally used viz. by adding the difference between the cost and market value of debentures, etc., owned by the company, such surplus would be $522,664.83

I think you are to be congratulated upon the distribution of your business, so large a proportion of which is upon so large a proportion of which is upon the 20 Payment Life and 20 Year En-dowment Pians, with 15 or 20 year dividend distribution periods. These plans not only eccure the maximum of persistence in business, but also give the Company the largest premium in-come for the longest term of years. This accounts largely for the increasing persistency of your business year by year—this marked stability com-paring so favorably with other com-

Every expert in life insurance business recognises the fact that the per-sistency of the old business is what builds up a cound scompany upon a solid foundation.

A special vote of thanks was unanimously tendered to the company's Provincial managers, inspectors, and agency staif, for their splendid work of the past year, during which the largest business ever done by the company had been secured, largely ex-cocding that of any other home com-pany at the same age in its history. After the usual vote of thanks had leen passed, the election of directors took place, whereupon the newly elected board met, and Mr. John L. Plaikie was manimously re-elected pe-sident, and the Honorable G. W. Alian and Sir. Frank Smith vice-presi-

WILL TWINE ADVANCE?

The price of binder twine has held so tenselously, through many fluctu-ntions of the fibre market, to the fig-ures quoted when the selling season was first announced, that the trade is beginning to wonder whether prices will advance or not, under the conditions now prevailing. One of the best posted men on the binder twine matposted men on the binder twithe materials in the country is Charles E. Borden, vice-president of The Union Seiling company of New York city. He is constantly in touch with all branches of the trade, and his experigreat degree of certainty, the probable movement of the market. In reference to future prices Mr. Borden says:

"There seems to be a better demand twine thirty care than there there y days ago; still some who are hholding off, are some who are minding oil, trusting that the market may de-cline, but I heard a hemp importer say the other day that the dealer who bought manifa and sisal manufactured goods to-day would buy them cheaper than the one who bought them later on as he was of the firm belief that both fibres would rule higher. There are many opinions, however, as to the future of the raw material; there is nothing to indicate, at the present time, lower prices for hemp that will affect the now current prices for twine but there are indications of higher prices for hemp that may put the price of twine up. If binder twine should go higher, it would only be natural, as everything is going up day by day.
The season of the country's prosperity seems at hand. There is an impetus to business that has been lacking in late years, and when our security markets jump up, as they are doing from week to week, and the purchasing of investment stocks and bonds is of such a substantial character, there must be an underlying, well grounded basis, as a foundation, and this is the prosnerity of our farmer, dealer, jobber, mar-chapt, manufacturer and the country at large. So if twine follows other commodities, it does seem as if it ought to go higher."-Utilted States Exchange.
