Austria and Russia.-Vienna, August 31. -New proposals have been made by Russia which will involve new negotiations. Letters of the 28th, from Berlin, say that Austria has so far accepted the Russian proposals as to have countermanded the further movements of the troops. The subscription to the Austrian loan is closed for a month. It amounts to nearly Russia. - The Journal de St. Petersburg of the 23rd gives a report from General Bebutoff of the battle at Kars. It speaks in high terms of the bravery of the Turks.

GREECE .- As the chelera is very violent at the Piaus, the French commander has pro-posed to remove his men to Athens. This has caused a most unpleasant sensation in the capi-Letters from Athens of the 22nd August state that the Ministers of Austria, England and France were preparing to quit that capital. It is said that the Emperor of Austria is dis-pleased with his Envoy for having exceeded his instructions, and countenanced acts committed against royalty and the person of the king.

Athens, Aug. 26th.—The Porte refused to delay rigorous measures against the Greek shipping unless King Otho will recognise the demand of an indemnity to Turkey. The Greek Government replies by making a counter demand to an amount of considerable importance in the present state of the Turkish finances.

Sweden .- The Colome Gazette has the following from Stockholm, dated the 22nd; it is singular, however that a fact of this kind should not have been mentioned in any of the telegraphic communications: 'The French General has handed over the civil government of the Aland Islands to the Crown Provost, M. Lygnell. DESTRUCTION OF HANGO .- Dantzic, Sept

The Bulldog has just arrived, having left the allied fleet on the 30th at Ledsund. Hango has been destroyed by the Russians. The French forces have not yet left Bomarsund. General Baraguay d'Hilliers, General Jones, and Admiral Deschesnes have had a look into Helsingfors The passage of Abo is found to be extremely and it is probable that the fortresses will not be attacked. The French had lost 600

Telegraphic advices from Stockholm state that the Russians are raising a new battalion of rifles in Finland to supply the loss of the garrison of Bomarsund. Aland is declared infected with cholera, and a quarantine is imposed on all arrivals thence. THE EXPEDITION TO THE CRIMEA. - Vienna, Sept. 1.—Official intelligence has been received that the expedition against the Crimea is about to be carried into effect. Marshal St. Arnaud, the commander-in-chief, had arrived from Constantinople, and the movement was to take place on the 2nd September.

Telegraphic despatches from Vienna shew that acy is at the present moment very active in the Austrian capital. The expected message had arrived from St. Petersburg Prince Gortschakoff was holding out new expectations and promises to Austria, even going the length of pretending his master's readiness to accept the our conditions laid down in the notes exchanged between England, France, and Austria on the 8th, in order to induce negotiations; it is reported, however, that the new Russian propositions are illusory, and imply the maintenance of Mustapha Pa tions are illusory, and imply the maintenance of a peculiar Russian protectorate in Turkey under Abarged form Nevertheless they are, it is a changed form. Nevertheless they are, it is said, entertained by Austria, and are likely to figure in Count Buol's next note to the Western report of the capture of Bayazid.

The Prussian minister is in close and continued communication with Prince Gortschakoff. the communication of the four propositions.

might have been anticipated that, engaged in a great war, we could scarcely pass a week in the summer of 1854 without having something of interest to communicate to our readers. But the fact is otherwise, and we cannot help our- the entry of Omar Pacha into Bucharest on the selves. Of course we have rumours or specula-tions. But few will trouble themselves to inquire what truth there is in assertions that it ish troops and the Wallachian militia. He has is fully determined upon by the Cabinet not to taken up his residence at the Convent of Kotromeet Par iament acting with the Earl of Aberdeen as Premier next spring, or that we owe to Wallachians. his Lordship's policy the visitation of the allied troops by cholera at Varna. It is more to the learn that 60,000 Russians are being concenpurpose to record that the same enemy appears to threaten us on the Aland Isles-which we would willingly, if we could, present to the King of Sweden—and that the expedition has, at last, and Galatz. left for the Crimea, though on what date is not very certain. There has been some strange blundering somewhere, to allow the intended attack of the allied commanders to have been made public in this country so long beforehand. The positive statements in the Ministerial papers, backed by the acquiescent speeches of Lord John Russell and the Earl of Clarendon, cannot have been simple speculations. And to these it may, perhaps, be due that the Russian troops, withdrawn from the Principalities, contest our march to Sebastopol. Our soldiers must, however, be heartily rejoiced that they are now to meet an enemy in battle, rather than one they can maintain no fight with. God

A fire has consumed the habitable portion of Varna, just before our troops were leaving. Its origin appears doubtful; but that some Greeks assisted its spreading there is no doubt, for two were caught in the act, with torches in their hands, as they were firing dwellings. They met with martial justice, being hung the next

In Asia, the Russians claim a great victory by Prince Babutoff in the neighbourhood of Kars, with the capture of 23,000 Turks; probably a telegraphic error, for the despatch immediately adds, "3,000 Turks were left dead on the field, and the remainder fled to Kars." The armies we know have been for some time in sight of each other—the Turks under Zari Pacha in a very disorganised state—so that we can scarcely doubt that a battle has been fought with considerable advantage to the Russians, though by no means all that claimed in the despatch. It is probably an exaggerated acgel or Bayazid, and reported by that Commander to Prince Babutoff, his superior officer, as having been fought on the 30th of July, when, according to the Invalide Russe, 370 prisoners were taken, and 2,000 Turks left dead on the evening, in a spirit store. This building was so fine and so menacing, which is not at the mercy of a well-directed fire. Admiral Parseval the same construction, till they approached very Deschesnes says our gunners have proved that the granite of Finland is not exactly proof against their bullets. The fortresses of Cronstadt and Sweaborg, rendered more accessible, will neither the French troops had turned out, followed by be secure nor impregnable. General d'Hilliers does full credit to the English troops. He says: General Harry Jones, by contributing by his marines and sappers to the attack on the towers of Bomarsund, has shown us once more what however, was made upon the advancing element, which now embraced both sides of the street, till a hody of 400 French sappers came up, bringing with them eight or ten fire-engines, which some of them plied most vigorously, while others, with pickaxes and crowbars, den everything round about of a nature to feed the raging element. Parties of sailors from the ips in the harbor tendered similar assistance But all would probably have been in vain, if the wind, which had hitherto been blowing directly upon the magazine, had not suddenly changed and began to blow in the opposite direction.

This circumstance probably saved the magazine The flames being thus turned back, passed with inconceivable rapidity along both sides of the Corso, as the main street is now called, till it reached the depot where the commissariat stores were kept. They spread with such swiftness that it was impossible for the united efforts of more than 4,000 military to stop them, by pulling down houses, throwing water, or any other measures. These stores, and a large portion of their contents were destroyed. Much nowever, was saved. Thence the fire spread, from three points at once, into the Turkish quarter, where a mosque and many houses fell a prey to it; and then the united mass of flame passed rapidly on, full in the direction of the powder magazines of the Turks and the French. It is impossible to describe the anxiety which prevailed at this moment, increased as it was by the explosion of some spirit casks from time to time. At one moment there was a complete panic, for a row of building houses just opposite the magazines fell in with a horrid crash, scattering flakes of fire in every direction. But the falling materials happily crushed the flames beneath their own weight, and advantage was taken of the circumstance to pour upon them enormous volumes of water from the engines, brought up from the sea. As in the case of the British magazine, the wind happily changed, and the poudriére was thus saved by three o'clock in the morning. The fire, however, raged the whole night in the Turkish quarter, and during the two following days there were numerous heaps of smouldering materials, which occaionally threatened a renewal of the conflagation One half of Varna has thus been left desolate and in ruins. Between 400 and 500 houses were destroyed, and two mosques. During the night the French soldiers shot six Greeks; one was captured in the act of setting fire to a umber-room in the general hospital, and killed upon the spot; and five, it is said, were taken into custody.

The British forces, by this catastrophe, lost a vast quantity of oats and flour, and nearly all ots and shoes stored for the use of the men. The French losses were still greater. Many of their officers have lost all their baggage. The effect of the fire was immediately to raise the price of provisions and of lodgings to a very high rate, and to reduce many of the native inhabitants to a state of perfect misery-homeless and ruined .- Morning Chronicle.

THE WAR IN ASIA. The accounts from the seat of war in Asia are by no means satisfactory, and it appears pretty certain that the Turks have been defeated in two recent engagements. these occurred on the 29th of July, when the Turkish army, under the command of Selim Pasha, were defeated at Bayazid Letters from Constantinople of the 20th announce that a great battle had been fought on the 7th before Kars, but the result of the combat was indecisive. The loss on both sides was reckoned at Hassan Pasha

The Russian Invalid of the 18th publishes the Wrangel says that early on the 3Ist of July, the town of Bayazid, and both castles, were taken by the troops under his orders, and that the Telegraphic despatches from Berlin state that
M. Benkendorf had arrived at Stettin from St.
Petersburg, and would proceed immediately to the King of Prussia. He is said to be the bearer of an evasive answer from the Czar to the communication of the four propositions.

The Turks who took part in the battle were estimated at 13,000, of whom 3,000 were killed timated at 13,000, of whom 3,000 were killed. THE WEEK.—Even at this time of the year it Bayazid corps no longer exists.

THE RUSSIANS AGAIN IN THE FIELD .- We trated, under Gen. Luders, at and near Galatz. Fresh batteries are being constructed on the and Galatz.

THE EXPEDITION TO THE CRIMEA. - The sailing of the expedition to the Crimea is variously fixed by recent despatches for the 20th, the 25th, and the 30th. It is composed of 70,000 men, 20,000 of whom are Turks. The delay is attributed to the non-arrival of the remainder of the flotilla of gun boats and floats for landing the heavy artillery. The light division (Sir G. Brown's) and the Duke of Cambridge's will embark first.

The health of the troops has greatly improved under the new dietary, but they are now suffer-ing from fever. The Duke of Cambridge has been confined at Devno by erysipelas, and Prince Napoleon was sufficiently recovered to rejoin his divis on.

SINGULAR RUSSIAN PROCLAMATION.—Olessa is being prepared by the Russians to withstand any fresh attack, and all the damage done to the town by the late bombardment is now completely repaired. The following proclamation was read to the garrison on the 13th inst.:—
"In his exalted wisdom His Majesty the Emperor has ordered the withdrawal of the troops which had entered Moldavia and Wallachia, and commanded their presence where the danger is greater. In order to the protection of the Danubian Principalities against an inva-sion by the Turks, the ancient ally of His Majesty, the Emperor undertakes the duty of temporarily occupying those provinces. In this place we have to do with a new enemy, who entertains the wicked and presumptuous intention of attacking us in our own country. enemy has been repeatedly fought and vanquished by our brave fathers. From you His Majesty the Emperor expects the like. By your bravery and discipline you will conquer and utterly defeat the foe. This new enemy is more expert and courageous, and better led, than are the Turks; nevertheless, your valour and might will suffice to overcome him, as your fathers have done before you. In the battle with these French, think of the glorious year of

Tuesday night's Gazette contains numerous despatches from the Baltic relating to the How the fire originated is not at present pre- taking of Bomarsund. Several officers are cisely known. It is, however, attributed to incendiarism; and it is said that several Greeks 2,235 prisoners are being conveyed to England

A correspondent of the Independance Belg says the taking of Bomarsund led to the seizure several important papers from the private secretary of the Emperor Nicholas and from his Minister at War, which contain very curious particulars. It appears from one of them that the Russian Government attached immense importance to the Isles of Aland, and had taken great pains to organise an energetic resistance. The French troops at Bomarsund suffer extremely from cholera, and will probably embark again immediately. Sixty died on one day.

HARVEST PROSPECTS .- DUBLIN, Monday Morning .- The potato crop excepted, all the latest accounts respecting the general prospects weather has somewhat mended, and vesterday, for the first time these many days past, the ickly laden hue of the sky changed to a clear blue, with the bright and hot sunshine of the summer months. The reports of the potato are of the old conflicting character, but it must not be concealed that the bad greatly preponderate over the good, and correspondents, says one journal, who have hitherto been most hopeful now write in consternation regarding the rapid progress which the disease is at present making The humidity of the atmosphere, so prevalent of late, has no doubt contributed much to this state of affairs; but as yet comparatively little injury has been done to the tubers-a circum stance which is so far satisfactory. The west still continues to be comparatively free from the visitation-a Galway paper asserting that the loss likely to ensue will not amount to a fortieth not to say the fourth part of the crop, as the alarmist stated early in the season.' vicinity of Belfast, on the contrary, a calculation made by a gentleman largely engaged in agricul-ture shows that fully one-half of the crop-is diseased. This result, according to other agriculturists in the same quarter, may be taken as representing the condition of the crop generally, although, in the same instance, where potatoe nad been planted in ground that had not been broken for a few years previously, there are no symptoms of the blight. The Dublin Advocate olishes a communication from a well informed correspondent, who writes as follows:-"The state of the potato seems to be the all-absorbing The accounts are so exceedingly conflicting from every district that, without personal inspection, it is difficult to form an opinion on This much, however, is manifest to all, that the old disease has made its appearance in all parts of the country : the extent of its ravages, and at what point its progress may be fr m Mair cu ation, 15 of the value of £30 per stayed, are questions beyond our reach to divine. annum, each The nature of this disease, and the havoc it has made, up to the present, in some districts we have carefully examined, creates serious apprenensions that the amount of damage already done far exceeds that of last year, and may prove, from its present type, equally as fatal as it did in 1847. The breadth of land under potatoes being so much greater than in any year since 1847, leads us to hope that we may yet have spared sufficient to leave the crop equal in quantity to the produce of the last season." Dublin Evening Packet, writing npon the same subject, has the following trite remarks, which perhaps would apply with equal force to the empiricism which prevails with regard to another and more fearful visitation of Providence: As to remedies, all that is written on this subject is absolute nonsense, and founded upon notions of the disease purely empirical. cutting off or pulling up of the stalks is practised, in entire ignorance on the subject. The amount of information which has been acquired is just sufficient to show us that the causes of and remedies against this wonderful disease are alike inexplicable; and when applying supposed remedies, we are, in fact, often doing a certain and defined amount of injury for the sake of a purely speculative advantage."-Nottingham
