

Four artists exhibit at Canada House

*Proverbs, 1982,
acrylic on canvas,
188 x 170 cms
by Joseph Drapell.*

Four Canadian artists will be showing some of their work in an exhibition at Canada House, to be held from February 13 to April 2, 1985.

The four artists – Joseph Drapell, Harold Feist, Douglas Haynes and Leopold Plotek – produce large, bold and dramatic canvases. They are confident artists whose work has been bought by collectors as well as appreciated by gallery visitors.

The artists' background demonstrates something of the cultural mix in Canada, and it underlines the close ties that exist between Canadian culture and that of Europe and the United States.

Joseph Drapell was born in Czechoslovakia, studied in the US and now lives in Canada. Harold Feist was born in Texas, studied in the US, came to Canada and is now a Canadian citizen. Douglas Haynes was born in Regina, Saskatchewan, and has stayed in the west of Canada. Leopold Plotek was born and brought up in the USSR and Poland, and emigrated to Canada in 1960. He now lives in Montreal.

*Cadomin, 1984,
acrylic on canvas,
174 x 72 cms
by Douglas Haynes*

Front Cover

Floor of the new Toronto Stock Exchange

Photo: Toronto Stock Exchange