

It was agreed that there is a continuing challenge to define human security and the continuing need to involve experts and others from civil society in concretising the elements of the Canada-Norway partnership. Participants thanked the Chair and each other for the useful and engaging meeting and offered to continue to participate in these discussions.