William Burgess: I do not see that amnexation will help us. My place, which became part of the city-three years ago, isn't as well off as we are. Mr. Burgess advocated a higher taxation. He said that the ratepayers weren't paying enough money for good roads, so could not expect them.

In answer to the secretary's question as to how many houses there were in the district, Mr. Burgess replied that there were about 260, and a population, including children, of about 1800.

In the throngs of negroes a few white men could be seen doing the same work as the rest. These cosmopolitans, who prefer the ground to a bed, and the world instead of a house, for a home, appeared to be quite contented altho they worked like the slaves of old.

During the day thousands of men, women and children visited the grounds to see a city within a city. The stake gang was followed around by a large crowd. It is something unique to see these men drive the posts into the earth to which the guy ropes are fastened. No wonder the old as well as the young were fascinated to see fifteen sledge hammers striking the top of a stake one after the other. to see fifteen sledge hammers striking th top of a stake one after the other, but with such rapidity that the noise resembled the explosions of a fast motor boat. The repartee of these men, as they worked, was also very amusing. Some spoke with a southern drawl but there were other accents used which proclaimed some of the colored men to be natives of other countries.

THAT does it cost you in dollars and cents to cook with coal? Aside from that, what does it cost you in exertion, such as carrying a heavy scuttle of coal up a flight of stairs, emptying ashes and kindred little disagreeable jobs? If all, or a good part of the heat generated in a coal range was used in cooking it would not be so bad, but as it is, a great deal of it is radiated into the kitchen, and you know what that means in midsummer weather

WEST TORONTO, June 16.—The anadian Pacific Railway have very nuch improved the appearance of their tation at Royce-ave. and Dundas-st.

Canadian Pacific Railway have very much improved the appearance of their station at Royce-ave. and Dundas-st. by the construction of a terraced lawn around it with flower-beds scattered over it. It is their intention to ask the council to buy and tear down the flatiron building which stands directly across the street on the Junction-road, and transform the gore into a small park. This is near the site of the old Toronto Junction market, and is one of the busiest parts of West Toronto, and a small breathing spot is sure to prove a benefit in the future.

A vocal recital by the pupils of Mrs. Marie S. McGill, directress of the Toronto Junction College of Music, assisted by Miss Beatrice Prest, violin, will be given to-morrow evening in the College Hall, 1684 Dundas-st.

Work has at last been commenced on the much discussed "town park" on Keele-st., and about half a dozen teams are employed in leveling it. Opinfons differ as to the exact number of years which will elapse before the citizens of the west end will be able to use it. At present there is one lonely tree standing at one end and no vestige of any further beautification.

In spite of the disagreeable weather, a number of the local lodges of different orders held their annual church parades and services to-day. Courts Davenpart No. 32, Toronto Junction No. 1263, and Companion Court Stevenson No. 688, marched from St. James' Hall, corner Dundas-st, and Pacificave, to St. John's Church this morning, where the members attended divine service. The parade was headed by the Keele-st. Salvation Army Band, and numbered about 200. Special music under the direction of Mrs. Marie S. McGill was rendered by the choir, including the Coronation Te Deum and Stalner's anthem, "Hark, Hark My Soul." The rector, Rev. T. Beverley Smith, B.A., had charge of the service and preached the special sermon in which he congratulated the order on their annual church parade this morning to the Ferth-ave. The facts, which came out at the inquest, held here by Coroner Laurier yesterday morning, showed that the accident was the result of taking too much for granted on the part of various employes of the company, and the bold statement was made by Conductor Dehnis Degan of extra 1675 that he cleared from Pearl because he felt that a message which he received there and which should have held him at that point was "phoney."

OLD RESIDENCES

A complete heating outfit — "ECONOMY"
Boilers, Radiators and Piping, can be erected in a residence while the occupants are living in it, with no disturbance to the regular routine of the household. Modern mechanics can put up these accurately fitted materials with little or no noise, and with but a very limited amount of cutting or boring of floors. In midwinter this work can be done without disturbing the old heating arrangements, which can be used and need not be removed until the modern water-heating plant is ready to be operated.
