

WOMAN'S WORLD.

THE RADIANT CHRIST.

The new religion lies in being kind. Faith works for men where once it knelt to pray. Faith knows but hope where once it knew despair. Faith counts its gain where once it reckoned loss. Ascending paths its patient feet have trod. Man looks within and finds salvation there. Release the suffering Saviour from the cross. And amidst the waiting world its radiant God!

—Ella Wheeler Wilcox in The Delinquent for April.

A Sense of Preparation.
Starting in business life, a girl needs to have her sense of value particularly well developed if she wishes to maintain her dignity and her place in the estimation of her companions as a girl who is not easily duped or deceived. It will keep her from gush and sentimentality on her own part, and it will teach her to be suspicious of the person who attempts to gush over her. She learns to "size up" the person who cultivates her society with a palpable view to gain as well as to avoid the person who seeks to lavish indiscriminate favors on her.

A great many girls who are beginning their business career are so overcome by having money of their "very own" that they begin to spend it recklessly, give extravagant presents and fail to make any provision for the "rainy day" that is bound to come. It never pays to be too good to people. You invariably find that "gratitude is merely a lively sense of favors to come," and that, as soon as you cease to be "easy money," as soon as you are no longer willing to give or lend everything you have; as soon, in short, as you begin to wake up, just so soon does your sympathetic friend desert you.

Three where your sense of proportion comes in. If you have lost it, you are apt to grow morbidly suspicious of everyone, to cynically shrug your shoulders at the very thought of disinterested friendship, quite forgetting that the companionship which is on a fair and square basis, a give and take, bear and forbear, "Dutch treat" system, is the only kind that is worth while and lasting.

Its Dutch neck and three-quarter-length sleeves are features which add attractiveness to the whole. This useful garment would be fully deserved in Japanese crepe cloth, in any of the Scotch or French flannels, or in white lawn.

Watch Your Thirty Feet of Bowels!

YOU have thirty feet of Intestine! What makes food travel through them?
A set of Muscles that line the walls of these Intestines or Bowels.
When a piece of Food rubs the walls of the Intestines these Muscles tighten behind it, and thus it starts a Muscle-wave which drives it through the whole length of the Bowels.
It should take about 12 hours to do this properly, so that nutritious parts of the food may have time to be digested and absorbed.

But, — if it takes twice or three times that period the food spoils in passing, and becomes as poisonous as if it had decayed before being eaten.

Now, the cause of delay (Constipation) is simply Weakness, or Laziness of the Bowel-Muscles.

Want of Exercise, Indoor Employment, weakens these Bowel-Muscles, just as it weakens Arm and Leg Muscles.

"Physic" like Salts, Calomel, Jalap, Phosphate of Soda, Mineral Waters, simply flush-out the Bowels for the one occasion only.

They do not remove the Cause of Constipation.

But this is different! Cascarets. Cascarets act on the Muscles of the Bowels and Intestines. They act just as Cold Water, or Exercise act on a Lazy man. They act like exercise.
A Cascaret produces the same sort of Natural result that a Six Mile walk in the country would produce.

Mr. D. R. Gourlay, advertising manager for the well-known piano firm of Gourlay, Winter & Leeming, Toronto and Winnipeg, is amongst the prominent men and women who testify to Zam-Buk's great curative power. He writes to the company as follows: "Gentlemen,—I have pleasure in stating that upon the recommendation of a relative I purchased a box of your remedy (Zam-Buk) and by a few applications entirely cured a very severe sprain of the back. While not given to indiscriminate use of, or belief in, patent medicines, I am conscientiously recommend Zam-Buk.

A GOOD SPRING TONIC.

At this time of year, says a well-known authority, the kidneys become weak, clogged and inactive, failing to filter out the poisons and acids, which sour the blood, causing not only facial and bodily eruptions, but the worst forms of rheumatism, nervous and stomach troubles, and painful, annoying urinary affections.

It is worth anyone's time now to get from any good prescription druggist the following ingredients:

One ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion.
One ounce Compound Salutarin.
Four ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla.

Mix by shaking well in a bottle and take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

This simple, home-made mixture will force the kidneys to normal healthy action, so they will filter and strain all poisonous waste matter from the blood, and expel this in the urine. At the same time restoring the "full blood" count, that is, 85 per cent. red blood corpuscles, which is absolutely indispensable to perfect health.

WOOD FAMINE IN WINNIPEG.

Fuel is impossible to get—snow in bush to blame.

Winnipeg, April 9.—(Special.)—Winnipeggers are confronted with just as great a shortage of fuel wood as at any time during the serious shortage which prevailed during the winter.

The supply of cordwood in Winnipeg to-day is practically nil, and those who are in need of this commodity will have to use other fuels.

One of the principal causes of the present famine has been the abnormal depth of snow in the bush all winter, preventing operations of any kind. Coupled with this is the partially crippled condition of the railroads.

NEW LAW "UNWORKABLE."

C.P.R. at Winnipeg is Finding Trouble Handling Sunday Traffic.

Winnipeg, April 9.—(Special.)—It is stated that the Canadian Pacific Railway have found that some of the provisions of the new Lord's Day Act are unworkable.

When the act came into effect orders were given that no work should be done on Sunday, except that incidental to the handling of thru passenger trains. No trains were to leave the yard between Saturday night and Sunday midnight.

Definite employees are said to have declared that it was impossible to do the work which had to be done under these conditions.

OBITUARY.

John Tinning.
In the death of John Tinning yesterday, the mainstay of the city lost an old and greatly respected friend. Born in Toronto 75 years ago, he was for many years wharfmaster at the old York-street wharf. A splendid sculler in his youth, he was one of the famous four-oar crew which won the Canadian and Great States championship several times. It had been his habit to walk from his home at 50 St. Mary-street to Akroyd's boathouse. Last week he contracted a cold, which, owing to the fact that he was out of the same disease of Mrs. Tinning, was not properly treated, and he died of pneumonia.

David Roberts.

After a short illness of a few months David Roberts, architect, died yesterday at his residence, 480 Huron-street. He was a long-time resident, being born in Toronto 62 years ago. Mr. Roberts was a man of retiring disposition, nevertheless, made many friends. In his profession he was held in highest esteem, some of the principal residences of Toronto being his work, among which are the residence of the late George Gooderham on Bloor and St. George-streets, the late P. G. Blackstock on St. George-street, and the residence of the late George Gooderham on Bloor and St. George-streets, and many others of like standing. Mr. Roberts was also a leading member of the Granite and other Toronto clubs.

Are You Dying With Heart Disease

Sometimes you wake up, heart throbbing like a steam engine. Your breathing is short and irregular; pains shoot through the chest and abdomen and cause horrible anxiety.

Your trouble isn't with the heart at all. These sensations are the outcome of indigestion, which has caused gas to form on the stomach and press against the heart.

But how long can your heart stand this? You know well enough it will soon play out.

It can be done with Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they correct digestion, tone up the liver and kidneys, guarantee you freedom from further attacks.

Buchanan's Wife

The Story of a Woman Who Dared to Meet Herself the Love and Happiness That Were Debarred Her by Great Circumstances.

"Only a touch of fever," he said, and the woman thought that his voice went with his altered face, that it was tired and slack. "I had a fairly bad time of couple of months ago," he said, "just as we were finishing, luckily, but the sea voyage across from Buenos Ayres set me almost right again. I shall be fit as ever in a few weeks. You are looking amazingly well," he said, conventionally. "I've never seen you look so well."

"Oh, I!" she said, in the same tone of polite unconcern. "I'm well, of course. I'm positively sleek. I'm growing fat and matronly. It's quite ridiculous. You see—I've had such a quiet, lazy peaceful time of it. I just like a cow at pasture, I might say, if that weren't quite too insulting to my friends. I don't know what Allan Trevor was here with me? And Stamboloff is here a great deal, and heaps of others who've taken us under their wings."

"Yes, yes," he said, looking down between his clasped hands at the pattern of the rug. "Yes, to be sure."

"Are you going to stay abroad another year?" he asked, presently, when she did not speak.

"Oh, I don't know," she said. "I suppose so. There's nothing really to take me back to America. I've so few friends here, and theabella is the only one who truly counts. Dear old Aunt Arabella! She writes to me quite regularly once every fortnight and tells me all the news. I want to see her, of course; but there's almost no one else. And," she said, after a moment, looking away to one of the things on the tea-table—a silver strainer—it was—so that it dropped to the floor. Beatrice and Faring stooped for it at the same instant, and on the floor their hands touched. It was like an electrical contact between two charged wires. The woman began to tremble, and for a moment she had not the strength to raise herself.

"Harry, Harry, Harry!" she said, in a shaking whisper. "Faring drew a swift gasp which was like a sob, and his face went white.

"What might have come of their sudden loss of control, so one can say, at that moment Allan Trevor came into the room, and almost immediately after Stamboloff was announced.

ARABELLA SUMMONS.
The correlation of striking events in the life of any individual is too familiar and too widely recognized to excite amazement. There is some mysterious law by which business comes in groups instead of singly, and we all recognize this law and express our criticism upon it. It is only when we come upon its workings in a long or short action or in the drama that we get a scornful head and talk wisely about it.

And this same law, it would seem, must be held responsible for the bringing together of Harry Faring and Mrs. Buchanan; its setting at naught, at least for the hour, of the long year of repression and peacefulness; and the coming of a message from far away, a "minutiae" message, that the sight of the man she loved, unproved her from her new world and thrust her, trembling, face to face with Fate.

Faring and Stamboloff had risen to go. They had made their adieux and had turned towards the door of the salon when a servant entered with a telegram. Mrs. Buchanan said:

"Oh, just a moment. We must arrange about the theatre. May I read the despatch?" she tore open the flimsy envelope, and Allan Trevor said: "Oh, it's not a peevish letter. The paper is white. It must be a cablegram."

Then Mrs. Buchanan sat down. After a moment she said, very low: "Harry, Harry!" and Faring went quickly across the room to her. But first he said something to Stamboloff, and the Russian beckoned little Miss Trevelyan to the room to her. Then Mrs. Buchanan sat down. his pallor of cheek, had dropped from him like a cast-off garment. There was another, larger table in a corner, with books and magazines and daily papers. He searched among these, and took up the day's edition of The Paris New York Herald. He turned to the shipping news.

"To-day,"—Thursday," he said. "Thursday, the sixteenth, Friday? No, nothing fast on Friday, Saturday September the eighteenth. French and American. The St. Louis will do it!" He turned back into the room.

"Betty," he said, "the St. Louis, of the American Line, sails from Cherbourg on Saturday. That is the day after to-morrow. You must be ready for the special steamer-train which leaves the Gare St. Lazare at 9.20 in the morning. I will see to the tickets and all that, and Stamboloff will look after your affairs here. Mrs. Buchanan nodded slowly. "Yes, yes," she said. "I understand." But she seemed in a daze. She listened to him like a child who is told what it must do at a certain time. Her eyes were bewildered like a child's eyes, and trusting. After a moment she said: "And then the frosted and stood looking down thoughtfully at the woman who sat before him.

"No, Betty," he said, "I shan't go with you."

She cried out at that, but he held up his hand to stop her.

"Wait. Let me explain," said he. "I shan't go."
