A STRAIGHT TARIFF ISSUE

The Globe of Friday deals with the Tarde-Sifton episode in its usual namby-pamby fashion. It says that Mr. Sifton has a right to his view and that Mr. Tarde has a right to his. It also says that the present tariff is a reasonable tariff and a moderate tariff, and that, therefore, no change is likely to be made in it—in fact, that no change ought to be made in the interest of the country. Now, that is not the issue. The real issue is that Mr. Tarde says that there ought to be a change in the interests of protection and the encouragement of home industries, and Mr. Sifton says that neither himself nor the West will stand for any change in the tariff in the direction of protection. This is a straight declaration of war as between two members of the Laurier cabinet. The Globe pretends that there is no war by saying that there is going to be no change in the tariff. But the issue is raised, and we imagine that the bulk of the people of this country are in favor of a tariff sufficiently protectionist to encourage new industries to be located here. The tariff is the one instrument with which we can compel every nation with which we have business to treat us fairly, and the crying issue in Canada to-day is to so use our tariff as to compel the people of the United States, who close their markets to us and to our markets, to change that law or take the consequences. And that same tariff can be applied equally to Germany, which is hostile to us at present, and to all other European nations. That is the issue, and the Globe must say where it is on this question. The question cannot be dismissed in the namby-pamby fashion in which the Globe attempted to dismiss it Friday.

LANDS FOR VETERANS

At the session of 1901 the Ontario legislature decided to award 100 acres of land to veterans of the Fenian Raid, the Northwest Rebellion and the South African war, and a year and a half or more has passed without any of the lands being apportioned. Finding the delay irksome a veteran of "Sixty-six" writes The World a letter of complaint. He points out that the legislature was none too whole-hearted in passing the measure, that when the grant was finally decided upon the prospective grantees were deprived of the pine and the minerals on the lands, and lastly that while the government is delaying the issue of certificates to the land the veterans are dying off. He recalls the good work that the men of 1866 did for their country, and thinks it a shame that their small reward so tardily decided upon should still be withheld from them. It is no doubt hard luck that the veterans have to wait so long for their lands, and no doubt the government might have hurried their distribution to some extent, but it is fairness to understand that the department has held back all certificates with the idea of issuing them all at once, so as to avoid showing favor to any. It is thought that by issuing all simultaneously the recipients will each have an equal chance in obtaining a choice of locations in the land distribution. We shall help to curb the impatience of the men of Sixty-six, by announcing that the government promises to issue the certificates this fall.

DUNDONALD HAS A MISSION

Two Toronto Journalists—one of them yet in shorts pants—are constantly in a state of perturbation lest something may happen to Canadian liberty. They seem to fear that it will wander away in the night, or that someone will steal it while their backs are turned. They are in a perpetual state of hysterics over their self-assumed charge, and fairly shriek if anybody goes near it. If Canadian soldiers visiting England are not carried on flowery beds of ease, one of these neurotic newspapers weeps in long double-column articles for days at a time; and the statement that Lord Dundonald "has a mission" is the latest announcement to throw the nervous sheets into a blue funk. Canadian liberty is not in any danger, and it would comport more with national dignity if these papers displayed a little less trepidation. Local autonomy is firmly established in the Dominion, and hysterics will add nothing to the security of national self-government. As far as the Earl of Dundonald is concerned, he has, in his public statements, clearly shown that he understands his position in this country. In announcing his ideas as to the improvement of the Canadian militia, he has plainly made the reservation that his recommendations are subject to the approval of a responsible minister. It is, nevertheless, true that the new Commander-in-Chief "has a mission" in Canada. Otherwise, there is no purpose in his being here at all. Moreover, because he fully appreciates the true value of the citizen soldier familiarized with the saddle, the rifle and the spade, and because he evidently understands the democratic conditions existing in this country, Lord Dundonald is emphatically the man for the place, and since Canada has at last secured the man for the place, it were a pity if nervous newspapers should throw obstacles in his way, and thus put a drag on his usefulness. Certain sections of the Liberal party have not been any too friendly towards the serious task of developing an efficient militia force in this country, and we trust they may henceforth pursue a more patriotic not to say a more dignified, course on the question.

MR. TARDE AND PROTECTION

Hon. Mr. Tarde, continuing his campaign in favor of protection and the encouragement of native industries. At a dinner of the holders of liquor licenses in the Province of Quebec, at Montreal, on Wednesday night, he said that while he did not himself use alcohol (he likes a glass of good wine), still, he thought we ought to make all our own whiskey in this country, and all our own gin. He said we could make as good Scotch whiskey as is made in Scotland, and as good gin as is supposed to come from Holland. He sided with the resolution passed by the association, that the government amend the law, so as to encourage Canadian-made alcohol, as against the imported article, either for consumption or manufacturing purposes.

TWO HUNDRED MILLIONS

The World Friday drew attention to the enormous crop which Ontario is reaping this year, and what we then said we wish to somewhat amplify. We use large figures when we have to value the year's wheat crop at $11,000,000, and the oat crop at over $31,000,000, but both these sources of revenue are surpassed by the yield of hay, which without taking in the second crop will bring the farmer $40,000,000.

And according to the Department of Agriculture, when we include all the cereal crop and the dairy and livestock industries, we must fix the total agricultural product of Ontario for 1902 at about $200,000,000.

We are proud of such a showing, which compares with Manitoba and Northwest total returns, combined estimated at probably $60,000,000.

WHITE SLAVERY

At last the governments of Europe have been induced to take steps for the suppression of what is euphemistically known as "La traite des Blancs," the infamous international traffic in women. A conference will be held in Frankfort next month to consider the best means for concerted action to deal with a system of white slavery which President Loubet indignantly denounced in a recent address as an abomination and disgrace to civilization. It is impossible to go into the details of this horrible business, which, however, were fully exposed in the August number of La Grande Revue, and copied by several German newspapers. The writer showed that the traffic is as thoroughly organized as was the negro slave trade of former times, with its salaried agents, its centres of distribution and its regular exchanges. This network of systematized infamy was further shown to extend to all parts of the civilized world, and that concerted international action, directed with uncompromising severity, was the only way in which it could be broken up. The movement in this direction was brought to a focus when the Empress of Germany took an active personal interest in it and appointed Count von Keller, her chamberlain, to act as chairman of the committee to make arrangements for the Frankfort conference. It is stated in the New York press that the United States has not been invited to send a representative, altho its eastern coast is mentioned as mentioned as a possible active personal interest in it and appointed Count von Keller, her chamberlain, to act as chairman of the committee to make arrangements for the Frankfort conference. Cold is the Hand of Charity

The man, who during his lifetime, makes no provision for the future welfare of his family, has to leave them, very often, entirely dependent for support upon the charity of friends.

At such a time an instalment policy of life insurance, providing an annual income, either during the entire lifetime of the wife or for a stated number of years, proves a friend in need, bringing relief from absolute want and affording a means for educating the helpless children.

The NORTH AMERICAN LIFE offers the very best of security. A policy in it pays.
