

THE EVENING TIMES, ST. JOHN, N. B., TUESDAY, JANUARY 4, 1910

5

See the New Hamburg Embroideries

Here's a collection worthy of your careful notice. Dainty, delicate, fresh, new embroideries in the most magnificent designs you could imagine.

A more beautiful assortment was never collected into our store. The best products of European manufacturers have been gathered here for your choosing.

Every design, every pattern, every piece of embroidery reflects the latest styles of the foreign fashion centres.

Even should you not be ready to buy, come and look over this splendid collection. It will repay you for your trouble, though you will find it more a pleasure than a trouble. This handsome collection includes:

DAINTY EDGINGS, in Swiss, Nainsook or Cambric, ¾ to 36 inches wide, 5c to $1.75 a yard.

INSERTIONS, Nainsook, Swiss or Cambric, many to match edgings ¾ to 5 inches wide, 5c to 95c a yard.

BEADINGS, Plain or Doubled Edged, in all widths.

ALLOVERS, Swiss or Cambric, 65c to $2.50 a yard.

Our Great Stock-Taking Sale Starts Today

MACAULAY BROS. & CO.

SPECIALS ON LADIES' FUR-LINED COATS

We have a few Ladies' FUR-LINED COATS in stock which we are prepared to sell at BIG REDUCTIONS from the present prices, in order to clear out within the next few days.

These coats have black broad cloth covers, linings of squirrel, hamster, muskrat and kaluga, with collars of Alaska Sable and black martin. Sizes 34 to 44 bust. The present prices are from but we will make reductions in the prices well worth taking advantage of.

$45.00 to $75.00

D. Magee's Sons, 63 King St.

"A THING OF BEAUTY AND A JOY FOREVER."

Diamonds and other Precious Gems
Fine Jewelry, Watches, Clocks and Silverware
GIFTS AND REMEMBRANCES

For Ladies Wear
Chains, Bracelets, Necklets, Locketts, Brooches, Bapins, Laccapins, Hatpins, Collarpins, Sprays, Crocetics, Stars, Sunbursts, Love Knots, Beautypins, Chataines, Mesh Bags, Purses, Albert Chains, Double Vast, Curb Chains, Ribbon Fob, Scarf Pins, Sleeve Links, Shirt Buttons, Cuff Holders, Tie Clips, Bosom Studs, Society Emblems, Watch Charms, Fob and Seal, Key Rings, Fountain Pens, Ink Wells, Match Boxes, Safety Fastenings

And an endless variety of Wat ches, Rings, Silverware, Toilet Sets, Manicures, Field, Opera, Eye Glasses, Spectacles. All warranted to give satisfaction and offered at most reasonable prices. Yours Respectfully,

W. Tremaine Gard, Goldsmith and Jeweler
77 Charlotte Street

RECEPTION IN HONOR

OF MARGARET ANGLIN

Leading in social interest on Thursday last was the reception which Mrs. Julia Ward Howe gave in the afternoon at her residence on Beacon street, Boston, in honor of Miss Margaret Anglin, now appearing in the dramatized form of Mrs. Margaret Deland's story of "The Awakening of Helena Richie." Mrs. Deland like Mrs. Howe is a native of St. John, N. B. Mrs. Howe is a warm personal friend, and she received with Mrs. Howe and Miss Anglin, who was accompanied by her sister, Miss Ellen Anglin, and her manager, Louis Netherole, brother of Olga Netherole. Mrs. Howe was assisted by her daughter, Maude Howe Elliott, in receiving. Mrs. Howe, who is met occasionally at notable gatherings, is to attend the Colonial Theatre next Wednesday to witness the main performance by Miss Anglin and her company.

Everyone Thought She Was Going Into Consumption.

Gained Ten Pounds in Two Weeks by the Use of Burdock Blood Bitters.

Mrs. Fred Biggs, Kingston, Ont., writes: "I was completely run down, my blood was out of order, and I used to get so weak I would be compelled to stay in bed for weeks at a time. I could not eat, was pale and thin; every one thought I was going into consumption. I tried everything and different doctors until a friend advised me to use Burdock Blood Bitters. I did not have one bottle used before my appetite began to improve. I used six bottles, I gained ten pounds in two weeks. When I began to take it I only weighed ninety-three pounds. It just seemed to pull me from the grave as I never expected to be strong again. I will tell every sufferer of your wonderful medicine."

The blood reaches every portion of the body to distribute nutriment and remove effete matter and waste products. Clearly then, any influence, good or bad, affecting the blood, must necessarily affect the entire system for good or evil as the case may be.

Get pure blood and keep it pure by removing every trace of impure morbid matter from the system by using Burdock Blood Bitters. It exerts a curative influence unapproached by any other remedy.

For sale by all dealers. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

LONDON SLOWNESS

Haste in Church Building Contrasted With Bridge Making

London's slowness in building bridges across the Thames as compared with her readiness to build churches and towers with a favorite theme of the writers of the eighteenth century. At a time when her population was well over 1,000,000 and her homes lay for miles on each side of the river she was apparently well content with her one London Bridge.

At last, in 1734, Westminster was seized with the desire to have a bridge of her own. Application was made to parliament for powers, only to encounter the fiercest opposition from the city, the 40,000 watermen, the inhabitants of Southwark, and the west country bargemen, all of whom inherited the commons to protect them against this new enemy. The result was that the bridge was not built till 1750.

Blackfriars, at first called Pitt's Bridge, was finished in 1769, at a cost of £200,000, defrayed by tolls. Waterloo was opened, as its name would convey, on the first anniversary of the famous battle "with great pomp by the Prince Regent in person, accompanied by his royal brother, the Duke of York, the Duke of Wellington, and a long train of persons of the first distinction." Then came Vauxhall Bridge and Southwark Bridge, neither of which Waterloo brought much grief to the mill of its enterprising builders. What they lost in cash, however, they gained in cash from the foreigner. The proposed St. Paul's Bridge is to cost five or six times as much as any of the existing bridges.

Or all the bridges that have not been built surely the one on Charing Cross to Waterloo is the most important. The full tide of London flows at Charing Cross but the vehicle that would cross the river there must make the detour to Westminster or to Wellington street. Even the foot passenger has only the clamorous and the stars and the eluded rush along a ganway which is a mere annex of the railway bridge. We are still a long way from abolishing the Thames as a driving line, though we have abolished it as a means of communication.—London Chronicle.

GETS LOMBROSO'S SKULL

Turin, Jan. 3.—Professor Lombroso's skull has been turned over to one of his pupils, Professor Roncsconi of the University of Parma. The skull will be measured and examined in conformity with the wish expressed by Lombroso before his death. Afterward it will be placed, together with the professor's skeleton, in the Anthropological Museum of Turin University.

YOU NEEDN'T keep on feeling distressed after eating, nor belching, nor expelling gases, nor suffering from indigestion, nor from the stomach and other digestive organs for the proper performance of their functions. Take Hood's.

WHEN BRITAIN HAD NO DEBT

William III. Theme of J. M. M. Duff Before St. James Literary Society, Montreal

(Montreal Gazette)

Great Britain without a national debt would seem strange today, yet only three centuries have passed since the date of her first liability. This fact was recalled by J. M. M. Duff in his lecture on William III. before the St. James Literary Society last evening. Before William stepped on British soil, England was in the position of complete immunity from foreign financial obligation. She had not even the Bank of England, writing in the middle of the nineteenth century, observed that a debt of £800,000,000 was no more felt by the nation than a debt of $80,000,000 would have been a century previous.

The reign of William was marked by the establishment of the school system in Scotland, which the Scotchmen soon acquired the reputation of being better educated than their contemporaries. At any rate the coming of William was the first of a new era in the history of the country.

William died in 1702. He had never loved the English, and they had never loved him. His favorite residence in England was at Hampton Court. It was while riding near this palace that he fell from his horse, the accident resulting in his death. The lecture was illustrated by lantern slides showing among other things the crown jewels in the Tower of London, Westminster Abbey, St. Paul's Cathedral and other scenes of interest, concluding with the portraits of King Edward VII. and of Queen Victoria.

The lecture was efficiently operated by Alfred Griffin to whom a vote of thanks was passed at the close.

INDIAN ANARCHISTS SENT TO ANDAMAN

Calcutta, Jan. 3.—All the prisoners sentenced during the recent Alipur conspiracy trials have been sent to the Andaman Islands.

The Bengali leaders, including Rash Behari Ghose and Surendra Nath Banerji, have issued a manifesto on the subject of the reforms. They declare that the regulations regarding the new councils are an unpleasant surprise, that they are in striking contrast with the spirit of Lord Morley's utterance when he announced the reforms, and that they constitute an ordinance of exclusion.

It is argued that the special electorates which have been created clash with ideas of representative government and made an invidious class distinction among the community to whose efforts the reforms are being reduced to an insignificant minority. In conclusion, the signatories say that the party still hopes that the rules will be modified on the broad, progressive lines in which the Morley reform scheme was cast.

H. P. is a thick, rich sauce, compounded solely of most delicious Oriental fruits and spices and pure malt vinegar. Its makers claim for it that there isn't another sauce to compare with it for true, fragrant flavor, and judging from its already wide popularity, the general public have been quick to endorse the good opinion of the manufacturers.

It is a glad and proper thing to be the originator of a proved success. The title that has sought out to the public taste may be less than your finger-nail, or bigger than your whole body-size doesn't count—nothing really counts but this: that you have worked your way to the discovery of a commodity that supplies a known and felt want, and that you have sold it to the public.

It is a glad and proper thing to be the originator of a proved success. The title that has sought out to the public taste may be less than your finger-nail, or bigger than your whole body-size doesn't count—nothing really counts but this: that you have worked your way to the discovery of a commodity that supplies a known and felt want, and that you have sold it to the public.

It is a glad and proper thing to be the originator of a proved success. The title that has sought out to the public taste may be less than your finger-nail, or bigger than your whole body-size doesn't count—nothing really counts but this: that you have worked your way to the discovery of a commodity that supplies a known and felt want, and that you have sold it to the public.

It is a glad and proper thing to be the originator of a proved success. The title that has sought out to the public taste may be less than your finger-nail, or bigger than your whole body-size doesn't count—nothing really counts but this: that you have worked your way to the discovery of a commodity that supplies a known and felt want, and that you have sold it to the public.

It is a glad and proper thing to be the originator of a proved success. The title that has sought out to the public taste may be less than your finger-nail, or bigger than your whole body-size doesn't count—nothing really counts but this: that you have worked your way to the discovery of a commodity that supplies a known and felt want, and that you have sold it to the public.

It is a glad and proper thing to be the originator of a proved success. The title that has sought out to the public taste may be less than your finger-nail, or bigger than your whole body-size doesn't count—nothing really counts but this: that you have worked your way to the discovery of a commodity that supplies a known and felt want, and that you have sold it to the public.

It is a glad and proper thing to be the originator of a proved success. The title that has sought out to the public taste may be less than your finger-nail, or bigger than your whole body-size doesn't count—nothing really counts but this: that you have worked your way to the discovery of a commodity that supplies a known and felt want, and that you have sold it to the public.

It is a glad and proper thing to be the originator of a proved success. The title that has sought out to the public taste may be less than your finger-nail, or bigger than your whole body-size doesn't count—nothing really counts but this: that you have worked your way to the discovery of a commodity that supplies a known and felt want, and that you have sold it to the public.

It is a glad and proper thing to be the originator of a proved success. The title that has sought out to the public taste may be less than your finger-nail, or bigger than your whole body-size doesn't count—nothing really counts but this: that you have worked your way to the discovery of a commodity that supplies a known and felt want, and that you have sold it to the public.

It is a glad and proper thing to be the originator of a proved success. The title that has sought out to the public taste may be less than your finger-nail, or bigger than your whole body-size doesn't count—nothing really counts but this: that you have worked your way to the discovery of a commodity that supplies a known and felt want, and that you have sold it to the public.

BUDGET MEN BEST TALKERS

Asquith, Grey, Birrell and Burns Defend the Government

GROWS WARMER

Liberals Make Capital Out of Lord Hugh Cecil's Admission—Conservatives Complain of Rowdiness They are Encountering—Novelist Takes a Hand

London, Jan. 3.—The disparity of the oratorical strength of the two great parties was never more emphasized than to night when Premier Asquith at Hadding-ton, Sir Edward Grey at Embleton, John Burns and J. Macnamara at Battersea, Augustine Birrell at Bristol and Walter Runciman at Dewsbury urged the value of the budget, condemned protection and protested against the naval scare, while on the Conservative side Austin Chamberlain was the only noteworthy speaker.

It is well indeed for the Conservatives that the rank and file are fighting the cause with vim, that its leaders flood the country, and its posters cover every hoarding.

The Liberals are making some capital out of Lord Hugh Cecil's admission: "It is quite true if the lords habitually, or even frequently, rejected budgets it would disorder the working of the constitution." They praise his intellectual honesty and ask the electors if they are going to rest with the hereditary chamber whether the government of the country is to be thrown into disorder and how often.

The Conservatives complain of the "rowdiness" they are encountering, especially in London, and declare it is organized. They blame Lord George's "persistent violent language" in his speeches.

Premier Asquith declares that neither friend nor foe knew what Mr. Balfour's policy was to be.

Sir Edward Grey emphasized the efficiency of the government.

Mr. Burns said the Conservative papers indicated that every able-bodied man was in the workhouse or rapidly going there. There were only 300,000 men in the workhouse, but the number of men in the workhouse was increasing.

Mr. Birrell said he had never before seen a man in a top hat and a monocle, and he declared for a nominated second chamber, with no veto.

Mr. Chamberlain, speaking at Hereford, acceptably preached tariff reform.

Although there is still practically a fortnight to the opening of the polls for the general election the close of the present week will see the end of the participation of the peers in the summer session.

It is this that the law provides that no members of the upper house may intervene or participate in a campaign after the election writs have been issued.

During the time mentioned, however, the members of the second chamber, who have taken a very prominent part in the campaign, will be busy and will address no fewer than 115 meetings.

London, Jan. 3.—Maurice Henry Hewitt, novelist, has entered the election fight with a two column manifesto addressed to the "Workmen of England" in which, describing himself as "one of yourselves, gaining my livelihood by the work of my head and hand," he reminds the workers that they form the overwhelming majority that they form the backbone of the nation.

Mr. Hewitt proceeds to declare that he belongs to no party, but intends to vote for a Liberal or a Laborite, because "first, the House of Lords is a preposterous assembly, which has become dangerous to the state and must be abolished in favor of an elected body; second, because tariff reform is the hopeless policy of reaction, whose advocacy by the Conservatives is due to wishy sentimentality and vile self-interest."

We once heard of two girls who were heartbroken—one because she couldn't marry a certain young man, and the other because she did marry him.

Nothing succeeds like success.

It is a glad and proper thing to be the originator of a proved success. The title that has sought out to the public taste may be less than your finger-nail, or bigger than your whole body-size doesn't count—nothing really counts but this: that you have worked your way to the discovery of a commodity that supplies a known and felt want, and that you have sold it to the public.

It is a glad and proper thing to be the originator of a proved success. The title that has sought out to the public taste may be less than your finger-nail, or bigger than your whole body-size doesn't count—nothing really counts but this: that you have worked your way to the discovery of a commodity that supplies a known and felt want, and that you have sold it to the public.

It is a glad and proper thing to be the originator of a proved success. The title that has sought out to the public taste may be less than your finger-nail, or bigger than your whole body-size doesn't count—nothing really counts but this: that you have worked your way to the discovery of a commodity that supplies a known and felt want, and that you have sold it to the public.

It is a glad and proper thing to be the originator of a proved success. The title that has sought out to the public taste may be less than your finger-nail, or bigger than your whole body-size doesn't count—nothing really counts but this: that you have worked your way to the discovery of a commodity that supplies a known and felt want, and that you have sold it to the public.

It is a glad and proper thing to be the originator of a proved success. The title that has sought out to the public taste may be less than your finger-nail, or bigger than your whole body-size doesn't count—nothing really counts but this: that you have worked your way to the discovery of a commodity that supplies a known and felt want, and that you have sold it to the public.

It is a glad and proper thing to be the originator of a proved success. The title that has sought out to the public taste may be less than your finger-nail, or bigger than your whole body-size doesn't count—nothing really counts but this: that you have worked your way to the discovery of a commodity that supplies a known and felt want, and that you have sold it to the public.

It is a glad and proper thing to be the originator of a proved success. The title that has sought out to the public taste may be less than your finger-nail, or bigger than your whole body-size doesn't count—nothing really counts but this: that you have worked your way to the discovery of a commodity that supplies a known and felt want, and that you have sold it to the public.

It is a glad and proper thing to be the originator of a proved success. The title that has sought out to the public taste may be less than your finger-nail, or bigger than your whole body-size doesn't count—nothing really counts but this: that you have worked your way to the discovery of a commodity that supplies a known and felt want, and that you have sold it to the public.

It is a glad and proper thing to be the originator of a proved success. The title that has sought out to the public taste may be less than your finger-nail, or bigger than your whole body-size doesn't count—nothing really counts but this: that you have worked your way to the discovery of a commodity that supplies a known and felt want, and that you have sold it to the public.

It is a glad and proper thing to be the originator of a proved success. The title that has sought out to the public taste may be less than your finger-nail, or bigger than your whole body-size doesn't count—nothing really counts but this: that you have worked your way to the discovery of a commodity that supplies a known and felt want, and that you have sold it to the public.

It is a glad and proper thing to be the originator of a proved success. The title that has sought out to the public taste may be less than your finger-nail, or bigger than your whole body-size doesn't count—nothing really counts but this: that you have worked your way to the discovery of a commodity that supplies a known and felt want, and that you have sold it to the public.

It is a glad and proper thing to be the originator of a proved success. The title that has sought out to the public taste may be less than your finger-nail, or bigger than your whole body-size doesn't count—nothing really counts but this: that you have worked your way to the discovery of a commodity that supplies a known and felt want, and that you have sold it to the public.

It is a glad and proper thing to be the originator of a proved success. The title that has sought out to the public taste may be less than your finger-nail, or bigger than your whole body-size doesn't count—nothing really counts but this: that you have worked your way to the discovery of a commodity that supplies a known and felt want, and that you have sold it to the public.

It is a glad and proper thing to be the originator of a proved success. The title that has sought out to the public taste may be less than your finger-nail, or bigger than your whole body-size doesn't count—nothing really counts but this: that you have worked your way to the discovery of a commodity that supplies a known and felt want, and that you have sold it to the public.

It is a glad and proper thing to be the originator of a proved success. The title that has sought out to the public taste may be less than your finger-nail, or bigger than your whole body-size doesn't count—nothing really counts but this: that you have worked your way to the discovery of a commodity that supplies a known and felt want, and that you have sold it to the public.

It is a glad and proper thing to be the originator of a proved success. The title that has sought out to the public taste may be less than your finger-nail, or bigger than your whole body-size doesn't count—nothing really counts but this: that you have worked your way to the discovery of a commodity that supplies a known and felt want, and that you have sold it to the public.

It is a glad and proper thing to be the originator of a proved success. The title that has sought out to the public taste may be less than your finger-nail, or bigger than your whole body-size doesn't count—nothing really counts but this: that you have worked your way to the discovery of a commodity that supplies a known and felt want, and that you have sold it to the public.

It is a glad and proper thing to be the originator of a proved success. The title that has sought out to the public taste may be less than your finger-nail, or bigger than your whole body-size doesn't count—nothing really counts but this: that you have worked your way to the discovery of a commodity that supplies a known and felt want, and that you have sold it to the public.

ANNUAL REPORT OF E. D. CLUB

The Organization Had a Very Busy Year in 1910

THE OFFICERS

Treasurer's Report of Receipts and Expenditures Shows Credit Balance—What the Club Has Done for Clean Sport—Bright Outlook for 1910

The annual meeting of the Every Day Club was held last evening. There was a large attendance and the utmost harmony prevailed. The president, A. M. Belding, read a report telling of the growth of the club, the extent of its work, and the bright outlook for the future. The secretary-treasurer, A. W. Covey, read a report showing the financial condition of the club and giving a detailed account of receipts and expenditures.

Mr. Covey explained the various items in the report and the finance and audit committee reported that they had examined the accounts and found them correct. It was decided because of increased work to divide the office of secretary-treasurer into two.

President's Address. The address of the president was as follows:—

Gentlemen,—It lacks six days of three years since the Every Day Club was opened in the Mission Hall on Waterloo street. It was a social experiment, without at that time any organization except what was necessary to provide for its financial needs. There were a few men devoted to the principles which are embodied in the club's motto, and as time passed others joined them in active work. But it was not until a year ago we had sufficiently worked out our problem to warrant us in adopting a brief constitution, and even then the year was spent in the summer season, the actual work of the club devolved upon very few. That few had the confidence of their fellow members, and of the citizens of St. John; and, as the treasurer's report will show you, there is, at the close of the year, a balance on the right side.

I have personally to thank the members for their confidence and support. In no institution with which I am acquainted is there as much voluntary work done by members, and if we had a larger active membership there would be more of such work. Personally also I desire to thank the business men of St. John, who at my solicitation subscribed liberally, and enabled us to fit up and furnish this hall and carry on our work. We are also greatly indebted to ministers and laymen, who have enabled us to continue our splendidly successful Sunday evening meetings throughout the year. For your encouragement at the annual meeting, let me state briefly some of the things we have accomplished:—

1.—We have perfected an organization of earnest men who are ready to sink their differences and work together in a club that seeks to help men to be men. That in itself, however, is an opportunity, which we may fail, is a gain to the city and to our manhood.

2.—We have, with the aid of our friends, opened an open door for the man on the street; and for those who desire to engage in work for social betterment, there is here an opportunity, which, however, far short it may be of that which we desire, is, with its light and warmth, a gain to the city.

3.—We have by our example stimulated other organizations to pay more attention to the social needs of men.

4.—We have made an appeal to the better nature of men, and in our own membership there are willing witnesses to testify that they are better men and better citizens because of their membership, while the indirect influence upon many others has been greater than we perhaps realize.

5.—In the field of clean sport, through playground work, we have done much to restore amateur sport to public favor. The evidence is found in the fact that several other clubs are now working affiliation with the M. P. A. A., and thereby heartily endorsing the stand taken by this club. Three years ago, when we first leased the playground, amateur athletic sports appeared to have no future. We all know why, and the difficulties through which we have passed, and the fact that we are now a part of the M. P. A. A., and that others too, less earnest and hard-working, have been members almost as long. It is very gratifying to know that we added nineteen new members on the first day of this year, and I trust that they will prove to be steady and earnest, and endeavor to bring in others of like character. We should be able during the present winter to increase our membership very largely, and strengthen our position, looking forward always to the time when an institution with gymnasium, shower, bath, class room, library and other necessary features will rise in this city, with our name and motto over its door and on its flag.

I trust this annual meeting will be marked by harmony, business-like discussion, and the formulation of plans for a year of successful work.

Yours faithfully,

A. M. BELDING.

Treasurer's Report

The report of the treasurer was as follows:—

Mr. President, Gentlemen:—

In presenting this, the third annual report of the Every Day Club, I am glad to afford me great pleasure to note the progress the club has made and I believe you all will be surprised to note the amount of work the club has accomplished during the past year.

One year ago we opened this new club with a big debt against us, and began a new year, most of us with some misgivings as to the outcome. Under the leadership of our president most of you know how the work has progressed in all its branches, and while we have had many

The People Are Attending

The

Dissolution Sale

WILCOX BROS.,

Dock Street and Market Sq.

Great Reduction Sale of Fancy China and Glass

We Will Sell at Half Price Many Articles to Clear Before Xmas

FRUIT DISHES, regular price 30c, reduced to 15c.

TELETYPE ORNAMENTS, regular price 50c, reduced to 25c.

BISCUIT JARS, regular price 60c, reduced to 30c.

TOBACCO JARS, regular price 80c, reduced to 40c.

CHINA CAKE PLATES, regular price $1.50, reduced to 75c.

CHINA WALL PLAQUES, regular price $1.75, reduced to $1.00.

JARDINIERS and VASES, regular price $2.75, reduced to $1.50.

W. H. Hayward Co. Ltd.

85, 87, 89, 91, 93 Princess St.

WASSON'S STOMACH TONIC For Indigestion 45c & 75c Bottle

MONEY BACK IF YOU RECEIVE NO BENEFIT

The Drug Store CHAS. R. WASSON 100 King Street

PALMER'S PERFUMES Lilac Sweets Violet Leaves Rose Leaves.

The Latest Odors from