HUBBELL WEARS HELMET; ANOTHER PITCHER HURT; LINE DRIVE BREAKS LEG

Philadelphia, June 8.—The lively ball now in use in the major leagues resulted in another Philadelphia National League pitcher being sent to a hospital here.

Tom Sullivan, rookie left-hander from Albany, of the Eastern League, was the victim. A line drive in batting practice struck him in the left leg and knocked him off his feet. He was removed to Stetson Hospital with a fractured leg.

Sullivan was pitching during the hitting release, preceding the opening game between the Phillies and Pittsburg Pirates. Henline, the "Philly" catcher, sought by McGraw for the New York team, drove the ball that broke the leg.

Hubbell, big right-hander of the Phillies' pitching staff, was released from

Stetson Hospital last Saturday, convalescing from slight concussion of the brain, resulting from having been struck above the ear by a ball batted by Brooklyn player in a game. Hubbell will wear a specially-made steel plate over his ear when playing in future to protect against another such blow which, dealt at or near the same spot, would be fatal, surgeons told him.

WHICH COMES FIRST SOCIALLY?

President Harding Asked to Determine Relative Status of Major General and Rear Admiral.

Washington, June 8.—From Hawaii has come a request that President Harding determine whether a major general shall have precedence over a rear admiral in social receiving lines, and who shall sit at the head of the table when two such officers are present. The question has been raised in the case of Major Gen. Charles F. Sumner, commanding the American troops in Hawaii, and Rear Admiral Edward Simpson, commander of the naval base at Pearl Harbor.

According to the regulations of the army and navy the ranks of major general in the army and rear admiral in the navy are relative and equal. But it is being contended by naval officers in Hawaii, and incidentally, by their wives, that Rear Admiral Simpson should have social precedence over Major General Sumner, when both are present at a function, on the theory that before the officers in question received their present commissions permanently the naval chief held the rank of rear admiral temporarily.

On the other hand, the usual procedure in army and navy practice in cases of apparent equality of rank is to determine the question of precedence by the dates of the commission. General Sumner was made a permanent major general before Admiral Simpson received his permanent rank of rear admiral.

Secretary of War Weeks and Acting Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt, to whom the controversy has been referred, have forwarded the papers to the respective Judge Advocates General of the army and navy for decision. Upon their decision, as law officers of the government, provided it is approved by their superiors, the army and navy sets its social functions.

There has been no friction between General Sumner and Admiral Simpson with regard to seniority. Secretary Weeks said, but he added that the question of precedence had arisen and in such a place as Hawaii, where the functions of the army and navy practically interlock to a certain extent, it was deemed desirable that the question of who is the chief authority should be definitely settled, particularly in connection with the relations of the military, naval and civil authorities. In case the Judge Advocates General of the army and navy fail to agree it is assumed that the decision will have to be made by President Harding as commander-in-chief of the united services.
