THE OLD FLAG AGAIN?

Apparently the hypocritical tories in Canada propose to wrap the flag around them in the next federal elections, and, by appeals to the emblem which should be regarded as too sacred to be dragged in the mire of politics, endeavor to divert attention from the carnival of reckless expenditure and wholesale graft which has marked the Borden administration. The Hon. G. H. Perley, acting high commissioner in London, in an address yesterday said that the question of Canada's participation in naval defence would be settled at the next general election, and he believed it would be to the satisfaction of all Canadians and the Empire. Apparently the Borden government has in mind an appeal to the people in which flag-waving will be a special feature. The trick was quite successful in 1911, and since the government cannot hope to win public approval on its record of administration it has apparently decided to assume once more the high imperial role, and once more save the Empire. The people, however, will not be deceived a second time. They saw the naval emergency which was conjured up for political purposes fade away and disappear. They have observed the utter failure of Mr. Borden to develop a naval policy, except the discarded one of contribution, and they are now convinced that appeals to the old flag have simply been made for political purposes. Any attempt to hide the record of a party which is responsible for such iniquity as is now being revealed in the province of New Brunswick, and will be revealed in greater degree as time goes on, will be justly and emphatically resented by the Canadian people.

The evidence given before the Royal Commission this morning makes it all the more evident that Mr. W. H. Berry should be brought here to testify.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

What a record the tories in all parts of Canada have been making since 1911. The fact is now being brought home very clearly to the people of New Brunswick.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

If Hon. Mr. Crothers becomes lieutenant-governor of Ontario, and Hon W. J. Hanna enters the Borden government, the path will be made more smooth for Sir Adam Beck in the Ontario provincial arena.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

The Home Rule bill as amended by the House of Lords has been returned to the House of Commons, and there is a report that there is to be another conference between the leaders of the two parties in the house before its fate is decided in that chamber.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

Do the members of the Flemming government still think that in failing to take action to secure the attendance of important witnesses before the Royal Commission they are strengthening their own case? If they entertain such a belief they will have reason to discard it in the not distant future.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

Apparently there is a belief in financial circles in London that the Irish question will be amicably settled, and it is declared that such a settlement would be followed by the release for investment purposes of hundreds of millions of pounds which are now on deposit in the banks.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

The elimination of Huerta, which now appears probable, would go far toward restoring comparative peace in Mexico, although a continued period of turbulence in that country must be anticipated, because of the rivalries and the conflicting interests which seek to control the affairs in different parts of the republic.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

A gentleman who made an automobile tour from Boston to St. John found the worst roads in New Brunswick, and the worst holes along the main highway between Fredericton and St. John. How long will the people of this province tolerate such a condition of affairs? The roads are a disgrace, and they are also a heavy tax upon the people who use them, not only because teams cannot carry such loads as are carried over good highways, but because they are responsible for very much more wear and tear of wagons, carriages and automobiles, than if they were placed in proper condition.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

We are told that Hon. Mr. Foster is about to return to Ottawa after a holiday at Dalhousie, and that after a few days there he will set out to tour the country with the Dominion Trade Commission. Mr. Foster may be described as a detached member of the Borden government. He goes about much at his own pleasure, and has little to do with the affairs of the cabinet. One of the ablest men in the party, he has not been regarded with unmixed favor by the more ambitious and also the more unscrupulous politicians who surround Mr. Borden. One can imagine with what feelings Mr. Foster in his holiday nook at Dalhousie has read of the exploits of the tory party in his native province, as revealed before the Royal Commissions in St. John and Fredericton. There are many who believe that if Mr. Foster had more influence with his party its record during the last three years would not have been of quite so scandalous a nature.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

"Berry said he had orders from the surveyor-general to collect it," said one of the witnesses before the Royal Commission this morning, when asked why he had contributed that $15 a mile on his crown land holdings. He further attributed to Mr. Berry this terse statement: "The government sent me over here to get it."

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

The fact that a deputation of international suffragettes was told by representatives of both parties at Westminster yesterday that the suffrage question must soon be dealt with by the British government shows that even the outrages perpetrated by the militant suffragettes have not warped the judgment of English public men.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

One of the boys who was a witness in the recent robbery cases said that the gang usually planned their work on Sunday. The fact should impress upon all parents the importance of knowing what their boys are doing on Sunday. A little more parental interest in the boys would save them from much trouble. Surely the lessons of the last week will not be wholly lost.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

The convention of dentists in this city once more directs public attention to the importance of systematic care of the teeth. As a matter of fact there should be dental inspection as well as medical inspection in the public schools; but as yet St. John schools have neither. How long will the citizens be content to lag behind in a matter of so great importance to the health of the community?

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

The impressive demonstration at the funeral of Policeman Frank O'Leary should not be without its effect upon the minds of the boys in St. John. They see the whole city paying its tribute of honor to a man who was faithful to his duty, even unto death. They carry in their minds also the picture of another, a mere youth in a dark cell, charged with the crime of murder. The contrast is so great and so striking that it must convey a lesson to every normal boy in this community. If there are abnormal boys, who think the desperado a greater hero than the faithful officer, they should be kept under surveillance, and, if they are to be discovered, both the citizens and the police authorities should get into closer touch with the boy life of the city.

LIGHTER VEIN.

Only One Terror

With a glance of venom, and a sigh of despair, Mr. H——laid aside his evening paper, and mounted the staircase whence the childish call came. "There's nothing to be afraid of in the dark," he assured his little daughter. "Ain't you afraid of dark?" queried the little maid, after a pause, "No, of course not." "Ain't you afraid of cows and thunder, dad?" "Certainly not, Margery." "Ain't you 'fraid of wasps and black sweeps?" "Of course not, you silly child," he said smiling. "Dad" came again the little voice in the darkness. "Ain't you 'fraid of nothin' in the world 'cept mamma?"

One of Them

A noted university professor who has taken much interest in the woman's suffrage movement was persuaded to carry a banner in a parade that was held some months ago. His wife observed him marching with a dejected air and carrying his banner so that it hung limply on its standard, and later she reproved him for not making a better appearance. "Why didn't you march like somebody, and let people see your banner?" she said. "My dear," meekly replied the professor, "did you see what was on the banner? It read, 'Any man can vote. Why can't I?"

Icebergs Passed By Liners.

Boston, July 14—Icebergs still endanger the trans-Atlantic steamer lanes two incoming steamers reported today. The Holland-American Liner, Seestdijk sighted eight large bergs, and a number of growlers 200 miles off St. John's, Nfld. The Allen Liner, Numidian, reported passing three great bergs last Friday.

EVERY WIFE'S DUTY

Watch Husband's Hair. If Thin or Full of Dandruff Insist on His Using Parisian Sage

Men give but little thought to the care of the hair. Not until the first bald spot appears do they really take notice. If your husband's hair is getting thin; if he has dandruff or itching scalp, take immediate action—do not let him become a bald head.

Get from any drug or toilet counter a 50 cent bottle of Parisian Sage. The first application stops itching head and removes dandruff—the great hair destroyer. A little Parisian Sage rubbed well into the scalp for a few nights will work wonders. When the hair stops falling and the new growth appears a frequent use of this invigorating tonic is all that is needed to make the hair perfectly healthy, thick and beautiful.

Surely try Parisian Sage. Always sold with agreement to refund your money if not satisfied. It's a deightful hair tonic for men and women.

RELIGION AND DRINK

That Jehovah and Jesus, that Apostles and Prophets, that the primitive church and the church fathers, that the medieval church, that all the fathers of the Reformation—Luther, Calvin, Knox, and the Anglican divines,—as well as such pious followers of theirs as John Bunyan and the author of "Swiss Family Robinson," used alcoholic beverages (Jehovah demanding them in the worship offered Him(and approved, commended, and to a certain extent commanded their use,—all this and more is deducted by the Rev. Dr. E. A. Wasson, rector of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Newark, N. J., in his book, just published, "Religion and Drink." It purports to be an unbiased examination of the Bible and of Church history in this field. Whether his conclusions are justifield or not, the book has this merit, that the evidence is clearly set forth, with its sources plainly indicated; so that any one can see and judge for himself.

It is startling to be told that the first act of Jesus' public ministry was the making and serving of alcoholic wine and that his last act, on the Cross, was the drinking of alcoholic wine. Again, can it be true that Martin Luther and his wife ran a private brewery, and that he declared alcoholic drink to rank next to the Lord's prayer and a good heart as a solace in trouble? Equally startling are the drinking habits and drinking principles that the writer imputes to the Fathers of Methodism. If his citations are correct, John Wesley pronounced alcoholic wine "one of the noblest cordials in nature." He gave up its use indeed for two years in his early ministry as an act of self-denial. But as soon as he found that people mistook his motive, supposing his teetotalism to be a matter of principle, Wesley promptly resumed drink, to prove that it was not a matter of principle: "Christianity," he said, "does not require abstinence." And he continued the use of alcoholic wine and beer (according to Dr. Wasson) to the end of his long life. His brother Charles Wesley likewise. The Rev. George Whitefield, the greatest of Methodist preachers, severely denounced the prohibition of rum in Georgia. When starting on a voyage, he gratefully accepted a supply of wine and ale. Thomas Coke, the first Bishop of Methodism, complains in his Journal that thieving sailors had abstracted sundry "bottles of excellent old rum" that his friends had given him. Bishop Francis Ashbury, the father of American Methodism, is quoted by Dr. Wasson as teaching in a sermon, "It is proper to drink, but not to excess." If all this is correct, the curious result follows that the Wesleys, Coke, Whitefield and Ashbury could not be received today in the membership of any church in the denomination that they founded.

"Religion and Drink" quotes plentifully from Pilgrim's Progress" to show that the pilgrims were cheered and invigorated on their way to the Celestial City by alcoholic wine and spirits.

The Episcopal Church is quoted by Dr. Wasson as (in its Communion office) pronouncing wine to be a "holy gift," and as invoking God to "bless and sanctify" it. This Church is further declared to require of its boys and girls, before coming to Confirmation, to learn and believe that wine strengthens and refreshes the body.

Dr. Wasson ascribes the increasing sobriety of the present day to industrial changes rather than to the temperance propaganda. He cites government figures to show that with the growing temperance in the use of drink there is at the same time, in this country, an increasing per capita consumption; and he predicts that these tendencies, if continued, will result in everybody's drinking and nobody's getting drunk. He declares, too, that the government figures for divorce and for church membership in the old time prohibition States of Maine, Kansas, and North Dakota indicate that prohibition is injurious to family and church. For the period 1887-1906 Maine had one divorce to six marriages; Kansas, one to nine; North Dakota, one to ten; whereas the ratio for the entire country was one to 13 1-2, and for wide-open New Jersey, one to forty-five, the best in the country. Maine and Kansas are also declared to be very deficient in the matter of church membership. But the unkindest cut of all is the author's declaration that missionaries from the "dry" sections regularly swarm the great "wet" centers for contributions to keep their "dry" religion alive!

He concludes what may be called the evidence from the texts with this sweeping and bold request, which will no doubt be promptly taken up: To name one single leader in the Church of God, not a professed ascetic, throughout the entire history of Revelation, from the Call of Abraham to the year 1800 after Christ, who refrained from alcoholic drink or counselled others to refrain from it on the ground that it was wrong.

It should be noted that in this book the word "drink" means the alcoholic beverages spoken of in the Bible and other alcoholic beverages no more hazardous.

How I Made My Hair Grow

Woman With Marvelously Beautiful Hair Gives Simple Home Prescription Which She Used With Most Remarkable Results

I was greatly troubled with dandruff and falling hair. I tried many advertised hair preparations and various prescriptions, but they all signally failed; many of them made my hair greasy, so it was impossible to comb it or do it up properly. I think that many of the things I tried were positively injurious and from my own experience I cannot too strongly caution you against using preparations containing wood alcohol and other poisonous substances. I believe they injure the roots of the hair. After my long list of failures, I finally found a simple prescription which I can unhesitatingly state is beyond doubt the most wonderful thing for the hair I have ever seen. Many of my friends have also used it, and obtained wonderful effects therefrom. It not only is a powerful stimulant to the growth of the hair and for restoring gray hair to its natural color, but it is equally good for removing dandruff, giving the hair life and brilliancy, etc., and for the purpose of keeping the scalp in first-class condition. It also makes the hair easier to comb and arrange in nice form. I have a friend who used it two months and during that time it has not only stopped the falling of his hair and wonderfully increased its growth, but it practically restored all of his hair to its natural color. You can obtain the ingredients for making this wonderful preparation from almost any druggist. The prescription is as follows:

Bay Rum, 6 oz.; Menthol Crystals, ½ drachm; Lavona de Composee, 2 oz. If you like it perfumed, add 1 drachm of your favorite perfume. This, however, is not necessary. Apply night and morning; rub thoroughly into the scalp.
