Victoria Meteorological Office, 10th to 16th February, 1994. The chief feature of the weather conditions during this week has been the prevadence of appropriately low barometric pressouthward to California, while over Northern British Columbia and the Territories the barometer has remained high and the weather very cold. The Pacific storms therefore, which at this season of the year usually spread inland to the north of this deflected southward, in some cases extending to California before crossing the mountains. This southern course has caused a considerable amount of cold north and east winds and sleet and fain both on Vancouver Island and the Lower Mainland, while extending to California heavy though most beneficial rains have occurred upon several days. The most severe storm of the week in this vicinity occurred on the night of the 16th, when the wind reached a velocity of 45 miles for some hours. This storm appeared to hover on the Coast, and by the fallen to 29.04 Inches and was followed by a strong southeast to southwest gale. Upon Sunday, 14th, another severe gale moved down the Coast, and though it was of little importance in this vicinity at Cape Flat tery the wind reached a velocity of 68 miles

Throughout this week the weather Northern British Columbia has been decid edly cold, and in the Territories and Manitoba zero weather has been continuous Upon two days temperatures of 40 pelov zero were reported at several stations. The canvassing committees made satisfactory reports, having succeeded in collecting a considerable amount, with many promises of further contributions if required, and they were requested to con tinue their work for the balance of the week. This morning a special commit-tee waited upon the Mayor and finance committee of the city with a request to a small appropriation, and was promised favorable consideration. The committee then called upon ex-Premier Dunsmuin who received them most cordially and do
