

WOMAN'S REALM

IN THE HOME AND OUTSIDE

SWEATERS.
Everybody out our way is making sweaters. Last year I should have said "knitting" sweaters, but this year the crocheted sweater has struck us all, and we have gone flat mad. When a group of friends meet on the tennis court it is the burning question of the hour whether you will open your crocheted sweater up the front, or whether you will be resigned to fashion's whim and make a "pullover," a method which shows to advantage all your meticulously counted stitches, but a kind of garment which when once donned, cannot be removed except at the peril of disarranging one's hair in a serious manner.

At home, on verandas or in front of the fire on rainy days, the crocheted sweaters are going and it is of no use to visit one's best and most chatty friend expecting the usual bit of summer gossip, for all she can say is, "Did you put forty rows on your sleeves," or "Womn't you like the pattern a little higher up?" Those who are learned in the ancient art of crocheted are showing others and you see many disciples sitting at the feet of a mistress of the craft, who says authoritatively, "Now do six thick squares and finish with three open meshes."

Certainly the sweater, far from disappearing has taken a more important place in the summer wardrobe than ever before. The woolen ones with sleeves are the more suitable for our climate whose evenings, even in August, are apt to be decidedly chilly. All young people have pullover jerseys and the bright hues of these, worn over white dresses, make an admirable note of color in the landscape. Usually a ribbon to match the sweater encircles the panama hat and very often the stockings worn are of the same gay hue as the woolen coat. A bow of ribbon at the neck of the dress or shirt waist further carries out the scheme.

The latest fashion of the sweater seems to be a combination of both knitting and crocheted, the body and sleeves of the "jersey" (the far more euphonious English name of this useful article) being knitted, while the collar, cuffs, and band are done in an elaborate flat pattern. One very lovely sweater, which was made in England was knitted of heavy cream silk in this manner, and its wearer was the admiral of all beholders at a summer resort recently.

For the first sweaters a heavy wool is preferable as the pattern shows up better than in the lighter weight. No one need be afraid to begin one as the squares mount up very quickly and after the design is completed the rest is comparatively easy. Many of the summer issues of the women's magazines gave excellent directions while with several of the brands of wool sold in the city, a page of designs is donated to the purchaser.

Charming knitted sweaters of silk or shawl wool are quite the thing to wear with an afternoon dress or with the crepe de chine blouse and satin skirt which is so deservedly popular a costume this season. In these jerseys, navy blue is a leading shade though the delicate rose pinks, mauve and blues are most attractive. A style adopted by slender youthful figures is knitted in the pullover fashion with a very full puffed sleeve having a large puff (made by using big needles) just above the narrow cuff. The puff is sometimes made of brilliant colors in a Roman stripe effect or of two contrasting shades. Woolen dusters crocheted, adorn the neck, which is round, square or V-shaped according to individual taste.

So whether the weather is hot or cold the sweater fulfills its purpose for comfort or for looks and fulfilling its useful and ornamental purpose in life admirably.

What do you think about it?

UNCLE HIRAM AND HIGHER CRITICISM.

Mr. and Mrs. Hiram and a lecture at the church the other day. An' I'd really like to tell you. What the preacher had to say. For he talked in measured rhythm. Of the higher criticism. An' he said old-fashioned doctrines. Now have mostly passed away.

An' he said the light of science. Had full many comments won. Since the higher criticism. Had his noble work begun. Just as if the light of men. Could illuminate God's plan. Just as if the talisman. Could illumine the sun.

Mr. and Mrs. Hiram and listened. But we did not understand. What this high-toned city preacher. Tried to figure out so grand. He was all too deep for me. For I really could not see. How it helps us on our journey. To the bright celestial land.

Why this higher criticism? Why this theorizing craze. Prying into plans eternal. Doubting God's mysterious ways. When the Bible reads so clearly? Here's a sample I love dearly. An' it's got enough of gospel. For the balance of my days.

"Come ye weak and heavy-laden. Come an' I will give thee rest. Drop your load of sin and sorrow. Lay your load upon my breast." Why don't every gospel preacher. Try to follow the great Teacher. Both in walk and conversation. If they want their labors best?

I suppose the world's advancing. At a very rapid rate. An' my poor old-fashioned notions. May be sadly out of date. But I'll give this word of warning. On the resurrection morning. Higher criticism lectures. Won't unlock the golden gate.

Scotch Hospitality. Balke McTavish: "An' so ye leave Giesca" on Monday. What are ye deirin' the mornin' night?" Mr. Jarvis: "To-morrow, Thursday, I've no engagements." Balke: "An' the next night?" Mr. J.: "I'm free then, too." Balke: "An' what will ye be doin' on Saturday?" Mr. J.: "On Saturday I dine with the Buchanans." Balke: "What a peety! An' wanted ye to talk dinner wit' us on Saturday."
