BABY LILY

She was a purer, fairer bud
Than Summer's sun uncloses;
Spring brought her with the violets;
She left us with the roses. A liitle pillow, where the print Of her small head yet lingers; A silver coral, tarnished o'er

With clasp of tiny fingers. A mound, the resebush at the head Were all too long to measure; And this is all that heaven has left

Of ber, our little treasure. Oh human pearl, pale and pure O little lily blossom! The angels lent a little space

To grace a mortal bosom. The azure heavens bend above Unpitying and cruel; A casket all too cold and vast To shrine our little jewel.

We cannot picture her to mind An angel, cowned and holy A fair and helpless human thing, Our hearts still keep her solely

Sleep, baby camly is thy neet, Amid the fading flowers, The while we strive to learn the words "God's will be done-not ours?"

An ancient rose-tree, said to be the oidest in Europe, is growing in the town of Heidesheim, Hanover. It is suid to have been planted by the Emperor Louis the Pious in the beginning of the ninth century when the Episcopal see founded by his father -Charlemagne, was removed to Elize. The documents proving this fact were destroyed by a fire in the cathedral it 1013, but later records show that in 1078 Bishop Hezilo had a wall built round the tree to protect it. For centuries pust this wild rose tree has been an object of interest to travellers and naturalists, and no stranger ever goes to Hildesheim without visiting the Imperial rose tree, by the side of the cuthedral .-Within the last year the old roots have sent forth several new shoots, one of which is now twelve feet high and nearly on inch in di FLIGHT OF EAGLES .- A curious obser vation respecting the rapidity of eagles in their flight has just been made by a traveller crossing the Grison Alps. An eagle in fly. ing from one mountain peak to another, at a height of 8000 or 9000 feet, performed the distance of five miles in five minutes.

MONEY -- HOW . TO KEEP IT .-- The way to keep money is to earn it fairly and honest-Money so obtained is presty certain to abide with its possessor. But money that is inherited, or that in any way comes without fair and just equivalent, is almost certain to go as it came. The young man-who begins by saving a few shillings, and thriftdy increases his store-every coin being a remesentative of good solid work, honestly and manfully done-stands a better chance to spend the last half of his life in affluence and comfort than he who, in his haste to sous indebted to him by Note or Book Acbecome rich, obtaining money by dashing speculations, or the devious means which payment of the same, otherwise they will road, at the Town-line, between the Townabound in the foggy region, lying between fair dealing and actual feaud. Among the wisest and most thrifty men of wealth, the current proverb is, "Money goes as it comes." Let young men make a note of this and see that their money comes fairly, that it may long abide with them.
