followed by Calgary Volleyball Club (80 points) and the U of C Dinosaurs (77 points). Bears' coach Hugh Hoyles thinks his team is in control now: "We feel that the other teams have to come to us now because we are number one. We have improved more over the year than they have. In the last four matches against U of C, the Bears have won three.'

Panda coach Pierre Baudin is less optimistic, but he still believes his team will win. "I'm trying to heal all my people." But, he adds, "If everybody is healthy we'll walk away with it." Of Mickey Fusedale, Debbie Shade, and Alison Roper, all injured during the last AA tournament, only Fusedale will be unable to play this weekend. Shade will see limited action, while Roper has fully recuperated.

The Pandas, with 86 points, are just behind Calgary Volleyball Club (95 points), and just ahead of U of C (72 points).
